CIRCLED SINGER TOWER

And Skimmed Over the Sky Scrapers on Manhattan Island

NEW YORK, July 1.—The most spectacular flight in the history of American aviation was ended at Governors Island this morning by Harry N. Atwood with a wonderful circle about the Singer tower, almost grazing the roofs of the craggy sky-scraper below. Nothing so daring has ever been attempted by an aviator before. In France the Eifel tower has been circled but the baffling cross-currents from the criss-cross of canyons and cliffs of lower Manhattan island had hitherto daunted all American aviators.

Atwood rose from New London at five minutes past seven this morning with the intention of flying down the Connecticut shore and crossing Long Island sound to the aviation field at Mineola. When he got into the air he found his motor humming so steadily and the air currents so favorable that his confidence grew and instead of crossing the sound he turned inland at Mount Vernon, lowered like a falcon to reconnoiter and headed for Hell gate and the mouth of the East river. Below him lay an uninterrupted stretch of rooftops, to touch any one of which would mean instant destruction. Before him stretched the narrow and tortuous course of the river, crowded with traffic and spanned by four lofty steel bridges.

Circled the Singer Tower

As if playing with his perils, Atwood crossed the river to Long Island City near the Williamsburg bridge, turned back to Manhattan island, crossing the river a second time, flew over the city proper at no great altitude to the lower end of the island, circled the Singer tower, deflected his course past Trinity church and eastward south of the Liberty tower and the new Bankers Trust building to Wall street and hovered in smooth spirals for a moment over the amazed curb brokers in Broad street below.

The demonstration was as complete as it lay in the power of human achievement to make it. Hitherto it has been a principle strictly held to by all aviators that whenever there was a dangerous spot to cross the higher one could rise the safer. It had been calculated that for every foot of drop a properly executed volplane could carry the aeroplane forward three feet. Thus, to glide safely out of danger to a proper landing place, it was only necessary to rise high enough. But Atwood, disregarding all the rules of prudence and experience, made his turn of the Singer tower at a height of 525 feet from the pavements, a little more than 80 feet below the pinnacle of the tower and barely above the jagged Gothic roof of the City Investment building, directly below and beside the tower.

The fluttering flag at the top of the tower showed there was a wind blowing of perhaps 15 or 20 miles an hour—not enough to bother Atwood in his steady-going Wright-Burgess biplane. Theatrical as was the feat in its accomplishment it was prefaced by no theatrical announcements. Only a few people in the city knew that Atwood was on his way and of these still fewer understood that he intended to cross and re-cross Manhattan island. Everybody believed that he would take a safer, more prosaic path across low lying, level Long Island.

So, although the flight was witnessed by hundreds of thousands from the streets, the rooftops were not black with spectators as they otherwise would have been. As one broker said, "He just got up and did it."

Atwood's flight today is really a continuation of his flight yesterday from Squantum field, Boston, to New London, where he cut fancy figures above the winning Harvard shell as it drew to the finish line in the eight-oared 'varsity race. His distance then was 135 miles, covered in two hours and ten minutes. The best previous record with a passenger was 106 miles, made by P. P. Parmalee, a Wright pupil with Lieut. Foulois, U. S. A., as a passenger. Atwood carried his mechanician for a companion yesterday and repeated the feat today. His distance this morning, estimated from the map is 122 miles and his time was three hours and 20 minutes.

Rising from New London at 7.05 a. m. he passed over Bridgeport, Conn. at 8.28 a. m. At South Norwalk, which he reached at 8.50 he was well out over the Sound, flying at an even level. Between Bridgeport and New Haven a moving passenger train on the New Haven road tickled his fancy and, descending within easy sight of the amazed passengers, he followed it, headed it, crossed the tracks in front of the locomotive and, repeating his performance, made three complete circles of the train before he resumed his southward course. At Port Chester the aviator was still following the shore of the Sound at 9.03. Twelve minutes later he passed over Larchmont and it was here that his determination to dare the hazardous flights over Broadway was made.

To the finish of the run Atwood's flight was one continuous succession of perils spurned and mastered.

Atwood was stiff and cramped when he climbed out of the machine but cheerful and brisk.

"It's a pity I had to land," he said, "but I did. After crossing the Williamsburg bridge I ran out of gasoline and landed in Long Island City in a vacant lot behind the gas tanks of the Astoria works to take on two gallons. Very few people were there and I suppose most of the city thought I had made an uninterrupted flight. The fact that I didn't will have some effect on my chances for new records. I shall not know just where I stand until I have made more accurate computation. You tell me the people on the street think I circled the Singer tower. That's another mistake. I attempted it but a gust of wind caught me as I was rounding the corner and buffeted me backward so rudely that I did not care to continue the attempt. I caught my own time at rising from New London as 7:07 and at Governors Island at 10.10. My intention was to follow the shore and cross the Sound to Long Island but I was unable to get a steamer to follow me and, as I had no pontoons, I was afraid to risk the chance of falling into the water."

Atwood could not explain the psychology by which, to avoid the danger of drowning, he courted dangers ten times as imminent over the rooftops of Manhattan. Continuing the description of his flight, he said:

"It was good sailing all the way to New Haven but after that the air became more boisterous and tricky. Over the roof tops of the city and especially in the neighborhood of the skyscrapers it was, of course, worse than anywhere else and I had some rather steep plunges but I can't recall that I felt myself at any time frightened and I never was in danger of losing my control.

"You tell me that everybody in the city thought that I carried Fred Fleet, my mechanician. That is also wrong. I flew alone. My average speed I estimate roughly at 55 miles an hour."

Atwood will return to his home in Boston at 5 o'clock today. His machine will remain at Governors Island for at least two or three days. He said he did not know whether he should eventually attempt the return trip by aeroplane to Boston or not.

YOUNG GIRL IS MISSING

Her Mother Thinks That She Has Eloped With Former Boarder

Mr. and Mrs. Onesime Dube of 42 Lee street have reported the disappearance of their 17-year-old daughter, Albina Dube, who left home a week ago last Monday, and who has not returned. The parents fear that the young girl eloped with a young man who formerly lived with the Dube family. The police have been notified of the disappearance of the couple and a description as well as photos of the young man and young woman were given them, but as yet no trace of them has been found.

Mrs. Dube is grieved over the disappearance of her daughter. When interviewed by a Sun reporter this morning, Mrs. Dube related the following story:

"About a year ago a man about 28 years came to live here. He was sort of a linguist for he could speak several languages, among them French and English. Shortly after his arrival I noticed that he was courting my daughter Albina, who was then about 16 years of age, and she seemed to take a liking to him. I did not want my daughter to keep company with this man, so the best way to do was to turn him out, and so I did. So far as I could learn, he then went to Italy and returned to this country a short time later. Then he began corresponding with my daughter, sending the letters to another woman who also lived here. I got hold of several of the letters and in all those I saw he would propose an elopement. A week ago last Sunday he arrived in this city and hired a room in Moody street, paying two weeks' rent in advance, but I did not see him around my home.

"A week ago last Monday my daughter came home to dinner and after partaking of a hearty meal left for her work. A few minutes later two young girls came to the house and told me that Albina and this man were seen boarding a Lawrence bound car. The police were notified and my husband immediately went to Lawrence, but no clew of the couple could be found. A few days later we heard that the two were seen in Lynn, and there again investigations were made, but the efforts were fruitless."

The young girl was employed in the spooling department of the Massachusetts mills where there is still a pay coming to her. When she left home she wore a short blue skirt and blue waist, a long heavy blue coat, a white hat and black low shoes. She is about 5 feet tall and is a pretty brunette. Her hair is of a dark shade.

ON GLORIOUS FOURTH

What Will be Doing Throughout the City

Lowell is going to have a hang-up celebration on the Fourth of July and everyone should remain at home, and enjoy it.

The celebration will start on the Night before with five big bon-fires and a band concert and there'll be something doing all the time afterward until the holiday has passed into history.

The Night Before

Of course the Midway will be going on the common but that goes for 48 hours. Then there will be the midway at Columbus Park.

At 10.30 a band concert for which the band stand was erected today will be held on Bunker Hill off Lakeview avenue, and at midnight Major Josiah Fiske's masterpiece, a gigantic bonfire will be set off. Simultaneously bonfires will be lighted by the O. M. I. Cadets in Stackpole street opposite the home of Daniel F. Sullivan, the well known coal dealer, not that there'll be any fine screened or bituminous among the ingredients. At the Fair Grounds where Ackerman Flanagan is going to do the lighting; at Ayer city where a monster pile has been erected and at Perry street where the youngsters of the neighborhood will show their patriotism in a sheet of flame.

The regular city program for the Fourth of July, as arranged by the special committee on Fourth of July is as follows:

Ringing of school and mill bells and playing of St. Anne's and St. Patrick's chimes at sunrise, noon and sunset.

Ball game between Emmets and Dixwells, North common, 10 o'clock.

Marathon race, five miles, North common, 2 p. m.

Fireworks, South common, 8 p. m.

Band concert during fireworks display.

Band concert at French orphanage on Merrimack street between 7.30 and 9.30 p. m.

There will be two band concerts between 10 and 12 o'clock on the night before, one at the Fair grounds and the other at Bunker Hill, West Centralville.

But a host of other celebrations have been arranged. The Immaculate Conception parish preparatory to the O. M. I. bonfire is to have a night before celebration at Columbus park. The citizens of West Centralville are to have a fine display of fireworks independent of what the city is setting forth. This display will be set of in front of St. Louis' church. At the French Orphanage a fine time is assured in connection with the band concert. At the city farm the Bachelor club will hold forth and there will be numerous smaller celebrations throughout the city.

Lowell will play Lynn at Spalding park at 3 o'clock.

BRIEF MILL VACATIONS

The Holiday Will Bring a Needed Respite

Most of the mill operatives and other factory employes will enjoy a brief vacation next week and some of them will have all of next week to themselves. Most of the mills will close Monday and Tuesday of next week, but there are others so busy that they could not see their way clear to lose more than one day, the glorious Fourth.

The Merrimack mills will remain idle all of next week.

The knitting and yarn departments of the Tremont and Suffolk will remain closed all week, and the weaving and finishing departments will remain closed until Wednesday morning.

The Massachusetts and Boott mills will have two holidays, Monday and Tuesday.

The carpet mills, or the local mills of the Bigelow Carpet company, will remain idle Monday and Tuesday.

The operatives of the Hamilton and Appleton mills will have to report for duty on Monday morning, July fourth will be their only holiday.

The Lawrence will remain closed until Wednesday morning.

The Mohair Plush company will remain idle during all of next week.

The Bay State mills will work every day but Tuesday.

The Whitall Manufacturing Co. and other smaller industries, or a majority of them, will have two holidays, Monday and Tuesday.

GUILTY OF ASSAULT

Two Men Ordered to Pay Fine of $10 Each

John Redding and Frank Cole were arraigned before Judge Fisher in police court this morning on a complaint charging them with assault and battery on Zalek Dowager. At the conclusion of the case the court found both men guilty and ordered each to pay a fine of $10.

The complainant testified that about 5.30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon he was driving through Charles street, near the corner of Gorham when three men approached his wagon, two of them being the defendants. He said one grabbed the bridle on the horse while another started to pull his bags of rags from the wagon. He said he told them to stop, but they paid little attention to him and when he jumped from the wagon he claims that they struck him, knocked him down on the ground and then jumped on him. He denied striking them. He had several witnesses to testify in corroboration.

The defendants denied that they struck the man. They testified that as they were passing through the street the wagon approached and they had to wait to allow it to pass; that while the wagon was in front of them the complainant swung his whip and struck one of them on the side of the face inflicting a severe wound.

Charged With Larceny

Patrick Carney was charged with the larceny of ten pounds of lead, a toilet bowl and fittings, all of the value of $6, the property of Lizzie W. Ordway. He was found guilty and sentenced to two months in the house of correction at Cambridge.

Other Offenders

John Carney was charged with being drunk and admitted that he was guilty but pleaded for a chance. He said, "I am a sick man and have a sick wife and in the name of God give me a chance. I took two glasses of beer last night and it proved to be my undoing." His case was continued for a week.

John F. Cunningham of North Leominster also charged with drunkenness wanted a chance. He said he did not come to Lowell to get drunk but that he was led into temptation upon arriving here, and lost control of himself. The court assessed him $3.

Sumner L. Brown is on probation from the superior court and was arrested yesterday on a complaint charging him with being drunk. He will be turned over to Probation Officer Ramsay.

The case of Louis Wentworth was continued until Wednesday at the request of the police who want to investigate the case.

John P. Gallagher was fined $6.

MILLS SHUT DOWN

HOLYOKE, July 1.—The Lyman cotton mills were shut down today until July 10. The plant employs 1400 operatives.

MAY GET DOCKED

New Rule Starts for Post Office Employes

July first marks the beginning of the fiscal year at the postoffice and there will be inaugurated a new scheme to promote promptness in reporting to work among the clerks and carriers of the department.

At the outset it should be stated that this new rule is general and is in no way a reflection upon the local office which is one of the best conducted in the whole wide domain of the postal department.

Beginning the first of July each employe is allowed five minutes leeway in reporting for work. There has been a time clock that they have rung in upon going to work for some time past, but now it has a different significance.

Each employe must ring in the clock when he goes to work and if he is over five minutes late he gets a demerit for every minute over five minutes. If he gets 500 demerits within a year he will receive a reduction of salary of $100. But if in the subsequent three months following his reduction he shows up on time his original salary will be restored and he will only lose $25. If he doesn't make good within the three months the reduction goes for all time according to report. The scheme is for the purpose of promoting promptness among the employes of Uncle Sam.

VIOLATED MILK LAW

Leslie G. Hill Liable to Fine of $100

Leslie G. Hill was given a private hearing before Judge Fisher in the judge's office this morning on a complaint charging him with a violation of the milk law. Hill stated that he would appear in court Monday morning and enter a plea of guilty to the complaint and Judge Fisher informed him that a fine of $100 would be imposed at that time.

MIDWAY ATTRACTION

Big Affair to be Held in Columbus Park

The garden party to be held the "Night Before" in aid of the Immaculate Conception church, on the Columbus park grounds, promises to be a brilliant affair, for the various committees are working diligently on several novel features. There will be band concerts and dancing, while the "Midway" will rival the celebrated Coney Island. The grounds will be brilliantly illuminated, and in every particular the affair will be a conspicuous success.

From 5 to 7 o'clock the women in charge will serve a clam supper to which clerks in the stores are specially invited. At 3 o'clock the grounds will be thrown open to the children of the city. Tents have been raised, stages erected, incandescents and arc lights placed in position and the affair promises to be the biggest ever held in Lowell.

A BRILLIANT EVENT

Will be Held by Mystic Nobles Sunday

What promises to be a notable and at the same time brilliant affair will take place tomorrow afternoon in Boston, when the initiatory degree will be exemplified on about 300 candidates for admission into the Mystic Nobles of Granada, making the largest class since the inception of the order. The following cities will be represented at the degree, Lowell, Worcester, Fall River, Springfield, Portland, Me., Manchester, N. H., Providence, R. I., Pawtucket, R. I., New Haven, and Bridgeport, Conn. and Boston Caravan has made elaborate preparations for the entertainment of the gathering which altogether will number 1000 men. The Lowell men to the number of about 100 will leave here on the 2.28 train and on arriving in Boston a committee will be in waiting to escort the visitors to Grenada hall. The doors will close at 4 p. m. at which time the ceremonies will open. Dinner will be served followed by speech-making and an entertainment. The arrangements in Lowell are in the hands of Dr. Wm. M. Collins, grand monarch of Lowell Caravan.

STREET COMMITTEE

Considered a Number of Petitions Last Night

The committee on streets held a long drawn out meeting last night gave hearings and passed upon many petitions. Because of a meeting of the sewer committee the committee on streets did not get together until after ten o'clock.

The first up was the proposition for the extension of Stromquist avenue. Mr. O'Neil, who owns land in the vicinity, objected to the extension of the avenue on a straight line because, he said, it would come in too close proximity to the back of his house. He refused to set a price on his land. It was finally voted that the extension be made and that $200 be awarded to Peter O'Neil, that Mary J. O'Neil be given two cents a foot, Charles O'Neil three cents a foot and Mary C. O'Neil six cents a foot.

The committee voted to recommend a loan of $20,000 for a reinforced concrete bridge in Market street over the Merrimack canal, and for the repair of bridges in East Merrimack, Nesmith, Jefferson and Aiken streets.

The committee voted the recommendation that the asphalt for roads be furnished by the Pioneer, the Bermudes and the Gulf Refining companies.

On other petitions the committee took action as follows:

Petition of Deborah R. Hill and others, that Suffolk street be watered from Moody street to Dodge street. Granted.

Petition of Daniel F. Sullivan and others that Andrews street be watered from Lawrence street to Moore street. Granted.

Petition of Meyer Klain and others that Howard street be watered from the schoolhouse to Hale street. Voted.

Petition of M. Syderman that Liberty street be watered from Lane street to Smith street. Leave to withdraw.

Petition of Robert P. Weston and others and Mrs. E. T. Rowell and others that Humphrey street be watered. Leave to withdraw.

Petition of H. A. Thomoson and others that Westford street be watered from Stevens street to Gibson street. Granted.

Petition of Charles E. Howe and others that [illegible] street be watered from School street to [illegible] street. Voted.

Petition of [illegible] Flynn to accept a portion of State street not already accepted, and to lay sidewalks of edgestones and cinders on the westerly side. Voted.

Petition of James B. O'Malley that edgestones be laid in West Bowers street in front of premises numbered [illegible]. Granted.

Petition of L. Kirk Sprague and others that Sprague avenue be laid out and accepted. Leave to withdraw.

Petition of Damase G. Laporte that curved portion of Circuit avenue east of Felton street be discontinued as a public street. Leave to withdraw.

Petition of John G. Tucker and others that Orleans street be laid out and accepted from Hildreth street to Lakeview avenue. Tabled.

Petition of H. H. Perol and others that Inland street be laid out and accepted. Referred to engineer.

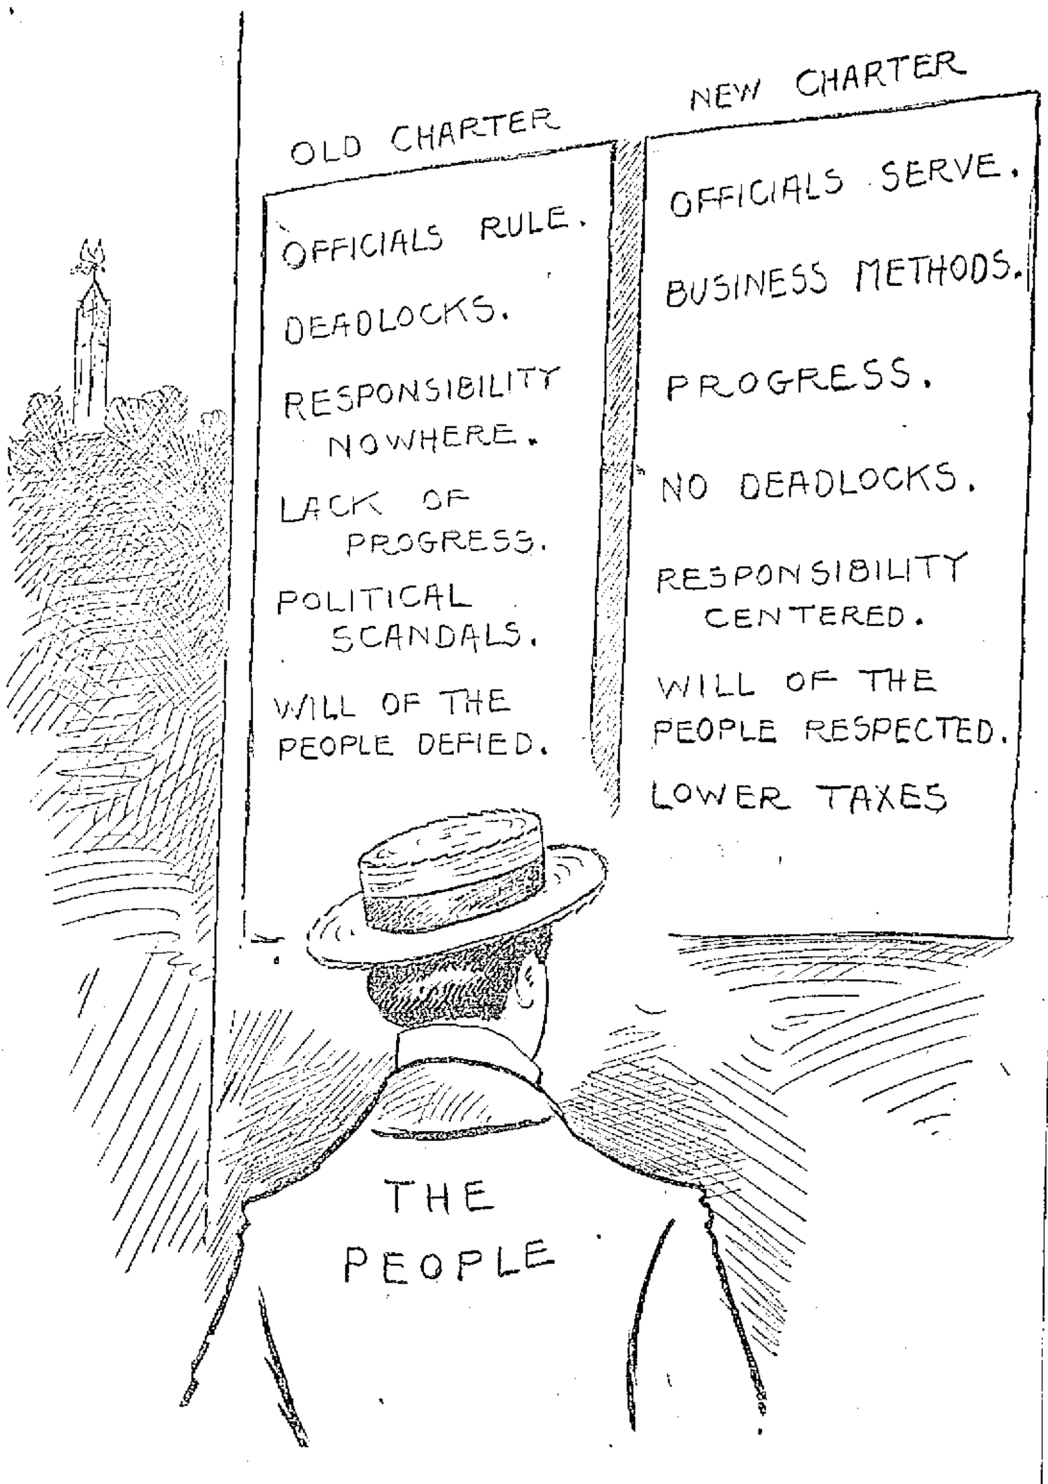

Petition of Adolph Delisle that the northerly line of Merrimack street be re-established from Aiken street to Spalding street. Referred to engineer.

Petition of Truman Parker and others that Eleventh street be extended and accepted from Merrill avenue to Aberdeen street. Voted on estimate.

Petition of Arthur Provost and others that a sidewalk of edgestones and cinders be laid on both sides of Beaver street. Edgestones and cinders granted.

Petition of Conners Brothers for permission to close to public travel for a period of two months that portion of Shattuck street beginning at the southerly line of Middle street and extending southerly, for building purposes. Leave to withdraw.

Petition of Saline Russell and others that a sidewalk of edgestones and cinders be laid on the northerly side of Riverside street from Moody street to Mt. Hope street, where not already laid. Granted.

ADRIFT IN A BOAT

Wealthy Young Man Escaped From Nurse at Cotuit

COTUIT, July 1.—A vain search of Vineyard sound was made yesterday for the small sailboat Water Witch, with its lone pilot, a wealthy young man, Kenneth Linn of Tampa, Fla., said to be out of his mind as a result of an accident on a southern baseball field recently.

A reward of $1000 is offered by his attendant for his return. He is described as 20 years old, weighing 137 pounds, dark hair, full face and two scars on his forehead.

Without food or water Linn left this harbor Thursday night and when the fact became generally known a search was made by the pleasure craft in this vicinity. Yesterday the waters of Vineyard sound were scanned for the little craft, but without success, except for the fact that the tender of the sailboat was found beached on the shore of the harbor here.

There was nothing to show that it had contained a human passenger, and it is believed that in some manner it broke away from the Water Witch some time during the night.

Struck by a Baseball

A short time ago Linn was said to have been struck by a baseball during a ball game near his Florida home. It is stated that the blow affected his mind, and under the care of R. L. Sawyer, a trained nurse, he was brought here to recuperate.

Linn, accompanied by the nurse, arrived in Cotuit last Monday. Last evening the young man escaped from the watchful eye of his attendant and boarded the Water Witch. Before he could be stopped he had disappeared down the harbor.

Whether he understands the navigation of a sailboat is not known here, but it is believed to be certain that the craft was not provisioned.

The fact that Linn had taken the sailboat out alone was not made known until yesterday, when Sawyer made the announcement and requested that if any trace of Linn were found to be notified at once. Then a search of the seaboard was instituted, but the day's hunt resulted only in the finding of the tender.

It is believed by some that Linn is suffering from some hallucination and took the boat in an attempt to sail to the home of his parents in Tampa, Fla. These persons believe that by this time Linn is somewhere in Long Island sound or near New York.

The most of the residents and summer people, however, strongly believe that he is tossing about in nearby waters, unless he has been picked up by some passing vessel or has fallen into the sea and lost his life.

NUMBER OF PETITIONS

Were Heard by the Committee on Sewers Last Night

The committee on sewers met last night and gave hearings on a number of petitions but did not take action. The committee voted to meet again on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Petitions considered included that of the American Hide and Leather company, and others, that a sewer be laid from Wigginville, from the crossing of the Lowell & Andover railroad in Lawrence street to a point opposite the premises of the American Hide and Leather company, thence across the Concord river and through private land to the sewer in Lawrence street, near Watson street.

Petition for a sewer in School street from the end of the present sewer southerly to Spring court, and in Payne street from School street easterly, a distance of about 170 feet. Milo D. Clay, Charles Houle and Joseph G. Wright appeared in opposition and no petitioner appeared.

Smith J. Adams and Mr. Kilmartin appeared in favor of a petition for a sewer in Burlington avenue.

Petition of Joseph H. Flynn and others, that a sewer be laid in Richardson street from Ida I. Boynton's land to land of the estate of J. H. Flynn, a distance of about 150 feet. Mr. Flynn appeared in favor.

Petition of Frank W. Vaughn and others, that a sewer be laid in Newell street. Mr. Vaughn and Fred Jenness appeared in favor of the sewer. No remonstrants.

Petition of Robert J. McKearn and others, that a sewer be laid in Lincoln street, 100 feet easterly of Main street. Mr. McKearn and G. F. Tilton appeared.

Petition to lay a sewer in Willard street, from the end of the present sewer northeasterly, a distance of about 152 feet. Petitioner did not appear. George W. Flint was a remonstrant.

On the petition for a sewer from Wigginville to the premises of the American Hide and Leather company, Stanley E. Qua appeared for the Stirling mills and in favor of the petition. He said that only a few high places in Wigginville were being drained at the present time and he thought that the question was a very important one. Others to speak in favor of the petition included C. P. Hall of the American Hide and Leather company, Thos. C. Wilde, William H. Hodgson and William Rutland. Mr. Kelly of 548 Lawrence street appeared as a remonstrant.

A PIANO RECITAL

GIVEN BY PUPILS OF MRS. ELLA M. WENTWORTH

A pretty piano recital was given last night by the pupils of Mrs. Ella Maytel Wentworth. The affair was held at the French Baptist church in Ennell street and was largely attended.

The pupils were assisted by Mrs. Frances Johnson-Carter of Boston and Mr. John McKelvey of this city, and their singing added much to the enjoyment of the occasion. The pupils all showed the result of careful training and a sympathetic interpretation of their music, and many of them received beautiful bouquets from admiring friends.

Those who took part in the program were the Misses Alice E. Binette, Simmone Chapdelaine, Minnie W. Ramette, M. Louise Binette, Eva Binette, Phyliss Duckworth, Helen C. Dowling, Anne H. Ramette.

The ushers were Masters Joseph A. Dowling, Wilfred L. Binette, Edgar N. Chapdelaine, Fernando Chapdelaine, Rupert C. Martel.

WESTFORD ACADEMY

Annual Graduation Exercises Held Yesterday

The annual graduation exercises of Westford Academy took place yesterday in the Westford town hall and were largely attended. The hall was prettily decorated with hemlock and potted plants. The class colors, blue and white, were prominent in the decorations, and the class motto, "Upward and Onward," in white letters on a blue background, was most artistically arranged over the front of the stage. The year "1911" was conspicuous at one side of the stage. The following students were graduated: Seth W. Banister, Ruth M. Furbush, Clarence H. McMaster, Ruth A. Flagg, V. George Hanson, Ida M. Trask, J. Omer LeDuc, Anna H. Symmes, John Feeney, Jr., and Addie LeDay. The exercises opened with a prayer offered by Rev. Benjamin Bailey, followed by the salutatory by Seth W. Banister. An essay given by V. George Hanson showed scholarly effort, and the valedictory by Anna H. Symmes was most pleasing. The presentation of the class gift, a large picture of the "Coliseum," was by J. Omer LeDue and accepted by Sadie McMaster. The music by the school under the able direction of Miss Mary Baynes deserves special mention for its excellence. Supt. Frank H. Hill presented the diplomas with a few helpful remarks, and Hon. Thomas J. Boynton of Boston gave a most able address on "Civic Government."

In the evening the alumni of Westford Academy held its annual reception and dance. There were many present who listened to a fine concert from 8 to 9 by Hibbard's orchestra of Lowell. Dancing followed until 1 o'clock. Seventy-five couples were present. The executive committee elected for the alumni was Mrs. H. V. Hildreth, Arthur G. Hildreth and Seth Banister.

GAVE A RECITAL

The pupils of Miss Margaret M. Mahan gave a recital in Kitson hall last night. The program was carefully arranged and the numbers carried out in a manner which reflected much credit on the ability of Miss Mahan.

Those who took part in the program were: Miss Margaret Stewart, Miss Martha Matthews, Master Clarence Keefe, Master Amos Florence, Miss Lillian Widen, Miss Clara Becht, Miss Agnes Murphy, Miss Martha Matthews, Miss Ruby Henney, Miss Mary Condrey, Miss May Lowney, Miss Edith Anderson, Master Robert Matthews, Mr. Joseph Mahan, Miss Anna Stewart, Miss Loretta Trask, Miss Louise Mahoney, Miss May McGlinchey, Miss Gertrude Cooney, Master William Anderson, Miss Lena Panton, Miss Margaret M. CARDINAL GIBBONS

CELEBRATED MASS ON HIS 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF ORDINATION

BALTIMORE, July 1.—In a little chapel in a home where he is at present visiting and about 50 miles from Baltimore, Cardinal Gibbons yesterday morning offered up a mass of thanksgiving in honor of the most momentous event of his long career. Yesterday he completed 50 years of a successful priesthood and 25 years as cardinal and nominal head of the Catholic church in the United States.

On June 30, 1861, Fr. Gibbons was ordained at the cathedral here by Archbishop Kendrick. Just 25 years later, June 30, 1886, the red hat was conferred on him also at the cathedral.

Yesterday morning the cardinal arose at the usual hour, 6 o'clock, and with a single assistant celebrated a low mass without any musical program and with only the members of the household attending.

The religious celebration of the anniversary will be held at the cathedral next October.

SLEPT 86 DAYS

SPRINGFIELD WOMAN WAS IN CATALEPTIC STATE

SPRINGFIELD, July 1.—Mrs. Francis Trudeau of 17 Howard place, who went into a cataleptic state March 22 last, awakened yesterday after a sleep of eighty-six days.

She has been kept alive by feeding through a tube, here eyes remaining open all the time despite her unconsciousness.

When her husband entered her room yesterday she closed her eyes for a moment and then said: "Hello."

At present she is conscious and has apparently recovered, but Dr. E. L. Davis, who has attended her, says that he doubts if she will live.

Mrs. Trudeau has been married three years and has no children.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

The regular meeting of Passaconaway tribe of Red Men was held last night. There was a large attendance and considerable business was transacted during the evening. Sachem Fred O. Marshall occupied the chair.

A committee from Passaquoi tribe of Haverhill was present to extend an invitation to the local tribe to attend an outing at Wyatt's grove near Haverhill on July 16. It was accepted and the sachem appointed George Houle, George Ryan and Geo. O. Spaulding to have charge of the Lowell end. Under the head of new business the election of tribal chiefs resulted as follows: Prophet, Fred O. Marshall; sachem, Edmund Crompton; senior sagamore, Edward Whitney; junior sagamore, George Ryan.

The following named were elected great council representatives: Charles J. Martin, Charles H. Kittredge, George E. Sutherland, George O. Spaulding and George Houle; alternates, George Frost, Albert Stopherd, Leonard F. Steele, John A. Bailey and Leonard T. Moody.

Gentlemen—Without any solicitation whatever, I beg to send you a word of commendation in putting on the market your "Foot Life." I used it in my preparation for and during the fifty-mile walk which all naval officers must take each year—I never so much as raised a blister, and at the end of my walk my feet were in splendid trim for even a longer test. JOHN ROSS ARRESTED

He is Accused of Murder Committed in Baltimore

YORK, July 1.—John Ross, charged with an alleged murder committed in Baltimore last fall, was arrested at York Beach late last night and taken to the county jail at Alfred. Ross is charged with fatally shooting a man whose name is not known here. He acknowledged his identity and made no resistance. He claimed the shooting was accidental.

The arrest was made by Deputy Sheriff Woodward assisted by Police Officer Grant. Ross was working in a summer hotel, where he has been employed for five seasons. Since the shooting the Baltimore officers have been searching for him and the York county authorities were notified to be on the watch for his reappearance here with the opening of the summer season, as it was thought he might return to his position at the hotel. Upon his return Sheriff Emery notified the Baltimore officials and was instructed to place him under arrest. Ross is about 28 years of age. His version of the shooting, about which he talked freely with the officers when arrested, was that both men were fooling and a revolver was discharged, his companion receiving a mortal wound. He did not remember whether it was in September or October. He was locked in the county jail, where he will remain until an officer arrives from Baltimore with the necessary papers to take him back to Maryland.

THE ENGINE STOPPED

Aviator Ovington Had Quite an Experience

WALTHAM, July 1.—Earle L. Ovington gave a farewell flight at the local aviation field yesterday afternoon in return for a gift or a runabout automobile.

Ovington started at 5.25 and was gone 42 minutes. During that period he flew around aimlessly, as he was lost in the clouds for a time, unable to get his bearings.

The trouble was caused by the clouds, which hung very low. He was traveling at the rate of 70 miles an hour. He took with him about 1000 souvenir post-cards, which he scattered while circling over the state house.

When he returned to the field Ovington was presented the car by Mayor Walker. The aviator leaves Waltham today for New York.

THE ANNIVERSARY

OF THE CONFEDERATION OF PROVINCES OBSERVED

HALIFAX, N. S., July 1.—Today, the anniversary of the confederation of the provinces of Canada, was observed everywhere throughout the Dominion as a holiday. Business was suspended and lengthy programs of sports, parades, picnics, fireworks, etc., were arranged in all the cities and large towns.

In Halifax the usual Dominion day salutes were fired and shipping was dressed.

GRANDCHILDREN LOSE

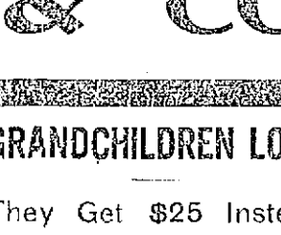

They Get $25 Instead of $25,000

MILWAUKEE, July 1.—Because Mrs. E. P. Allis, the widow of the founder of what is known as the Allis-Chalmers Co., forgot one cipher in writing her will, four grandchildren, whom she meant to give $25,000 each, are cut off with $25. This decision was rendered in the circuit court yesterday after an appeal from the probate court. The will gives each child $25.00. The court ruled that the period between the five and the ciphers could not be interpreted as a comma and a third cipher added.

THE TAFTS ARRIVE

To Spend Their Vacation at Beverly

BOSTON, July 1.—President Taft and his family, on their way from Washington to their new summer cottage at Beverly, arrived in Boston this morning an hour after scheduled time. The second section of the Washington express, to which the private car was attached, was delayed on the way up to New England by heavy traffic incidental to the boat races at New London. The president will stay at Beverly until Sunday.

In the president's party were Mrs. Taft, Charlie Taft, the president's aunt, Miss Delia Torrey, Major Butte, the president's military aide, and two secret service men.

The special car in which the president traveled from Washington was stopped in front of the Montserat station of the Boston & Maine railroad, at Beverly, where a small crowd had gathered to welcome Mr. Taft to his summer city. Upon leaving the train the party entered automobiles and were driven to Paramatta.

THE MANHATTANS

ENTHUSIASTIC OVER NIGHT BEFORE CELEBRATION

The Manhattan club held a most enthusiastic meeting last evening and the principal topic of discussion was the "Night Before" celebration planned for the benefit of the residents of the upper Gorham street section. For several years the club has taken much interest in the celebration of the Fourth, and its members have always labored zealously so that a satisfactory program could be conducted, without the residents being compelled to come into the centre of the city. This year, through the urgent request of Charles E. Crowley, John Ward, John Frawley and other hustling members, the city council committee has assigned a band concert for the night before, and no matter where one goes in that section today, all agree that this new departure will please. A bonfire is also planned and Alderman Flanagan will apply the torch.

MAN SHOT WOMAN

Then He Attempted to End His Own Life

CHERRYFIELD, Me., July 1.—In a fit of jealous rage yesterday William Hunter, 60 years old, fired two shots, it is alleged, at Mrs. Bert Davis, 31 years old, with whom he boarded. Then he attempted his own life both by shooting and drowning.

Both bullets fired at Mrs. Davis took effect and she was taken to the Eastern Maine hospital at Bangor last night, where it is considered there is about an even chance for her recovery.

Hunter is locked up in the county jail at Machias. He is well known, a widower and has two grownup daughters.

He has been boarding in the Davis family for nearly a year and it is said become infatuated with Mrs. Davis, who rebuffed his attentions and they quarreled frequently.

About 10.20 yesterday forenoon Hunter and Mrs. Davis had a quarrel in the living room of the Davis house, which is in the village, nearly opposite the postoffice. The aged and feeble mother of Mrs. Davis and her two children, aged 10 and 6, were also in the room.

Suddenly, according to the story of Mrs. Davis' mother, Hunter pulled a revolver from his pocket and fired point-blank at Mrs. Davis, the bullet taking effect in her side. Mrs. Davis ran screaming from the house, and as she did so Hunter turned the revolver upon himself and fired, wounding himself. Seeing, apparently, that he had not killed Mrs. Davis, however, he pursued her to the house of Mrs. Haley, a neighbor, overtaking her on the doorstep and firing at her again, which shot took effect in the back of her neck.

Hunter then stepped outside and placing his revolver against his forehead snapped it twice. It failed to explode and he made a dash across the village street, through a group of people who had been attracted by the shooting, and plunged into the Narraguagus river.

He was rescued by Edward Torrey after a desperate struggle in the water, as Hunter seemed to determined to drown, and was brought to land after a grappling hook had been firmly fixed in his clothing.

The Davis children ran screaming down the street on the way to the mill where their father was at work.

The shot that Hunter fired into his own body made a flesh wound not considered serious. He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Frank E. Patten and taken to Machias jail last night. Mrs. Davis was taken to the Bangor hospital last night on the late train.

Hunter is a well-to-do resident and has always borne a good reputation. He was employed in the lumber mills here, as was the husband of Mrs. Davis. Hunter's weapon was a 38-calibre revolver of cheap make and bulldog pattern. He threw it away as he dashed for the river.

JUMPED THE TRACK

Two Persons Injured in Electric Car Accident at Dedham

DEDHAM, July 1.—A big semi-convertible electric of the Old Colony street railway company under charge of William O. Curtis, motorman, and Edward Sprague, conductor, which left Dedham at 4.02 o'clock yesterday afternoon for Forest Hills, jumped the track at the bridge on Washington street over Mother brook, broke through the fence and stopped hanging nearly half over the brook.

By almost a miracle the car stopped just at the point of safety, for had it gone two feet farther it would have toppled over into the brook with probable loss of life. As it is there were no bones broken, and so ar as could be learned only two received injuries necessitating much attention.

Mrs. Catherine Schroeder of 12 Norfolk street, Cambridge, suffered injuries of the right arm and leg. She was taken to the home of her sister, Mrs. Jane Hager, Eastern avenue, Dedham.

John Goodman of 17 Grove street, West End, Boston, received injuries to his left knee. He was treated at the office of Dr. A. H. Hodgdon and went home in an automobile.

Others on the car received nervous shocks, but none of them was injured to any extent.

That there was no panic was due largely to the coolness of the car crew, who assured the passengers there was no danger, calming them so that some kept their seats while others were passing out of the car.

The car had about 35 passengers on leaving Dedham. Curtis, according to custom, on approaching the bridge over Mother brook, slowed up and went on the structure at a much reduced speed.

What caused the accident is not known. Just as the forward trucks took the rail on the bridge they swerved to the right, jumped the wooden guard, tore through the fence and stopped on the abutments, the front of the car directly over the brook, 15 feet below. The rear trucks kept the rail and prevented the car falling.

At this point the tracks run within two feet of the bridge fence.

As soon as he could Curtis turned his attention to the passengers and was able to keep any one form getting hysterical and rushing for the door. All were assisted to the ground by Curtis and Sprague.

John Dwyer has purchased the property at the corner of Appleton and South streets from Ellen T. McOwen and he intends to make extensive alterations to the same. This property consists of a tenement block in Appleton street and another in South street. Mr. Dwyer intends to extend the Appleton street block, building out to the street and raise the building.

The Cadorel property at the corner of Lakeview avenue and Fred street, has been sold to Mr. McKee formerly of South Lowell, for the sum of $3500.

Alois J. Pradel has purchased from Charles Campbell two lots of land on Lupine road, West Centralville and will soon start work on two two-apartment houses.

A LARGE DECREASE

In the Number of Contagious Diseases

A comparative statement of contagious diseases and the number of deaths from contagious diseases for six months, January to July, 1910, and January to July, 1911, was obtained at the office of the board of health today, and the comparison shows that the number of contagious disease cases and the number of deaths were not nearly as great in 1911. The statement as taken from the board of health's records is as follows:

	Contagious Diseases Reported 1910	Contagious Diseases Reported 1911	Contagious Disease Deaths 1910	Contagious Disease Deaths 1911
Diphtheria	88	99	1	8
Scarlet fever	181	89	31	1

Measles	1175	53	20	0
Cerebro spinal meningitis	3	9	3	5
Infant. paralysis	0	3	0	1
Totals	1491	270	72	15

The total number of deaths from all causes for the same six months was 151 in 1910 and 895 in 1911.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—A receiver in the district supreme court by William Sanford of New York for a fund of $250,000 held in the treasury of the United States has been asked. Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh and Treasurer Lee McClung are made defendants. They are cited to show why they should not be enjoined from paying the money to certain corporations indicated by the secretary of state.

The fund is an indemnity that Venezuela allowed the United States for concessions taken from gold and asphalt corporations. FIELD MANEUVERS

Bay State Troops Ready for the Tour of Duty

The field maneuvers of the Massachusetts National Guard will take place between Salem, Mass., and Tewksbury, from July 23 to 30 inclusively. All of the National Guard but the heavy artillery will take part in these sham battles, and the boys are very anxious for the departure.

Everything is now in readiness and the Lowell members of the guard are ready at a minute's notice to march to Tewksbury and meet the enemy. The Lowell companies of the Sixth Regiment Infantry, the Second Regiment Infantry, the First and Second Corps of Cadets with two batteries, a light artillery and two troops of cavalry as well as a part of the signal and medical corps will begin hostilities at this end of Tewksbury.

The Ninth, Eighth and Fifth regiments with some artillery will rendezvous at Salem, Mass., and march on the enemy stationed at Tewksbury. The troops will go into the field as light as possible in marching order and at no time will they exceed 25 miles a day. This end of the field will be known as the Blues, and the men will wear a blue band 3½ inches wide on their hats, the latter being worn in Texas peak. The umpires will wear white bands and the neutrals' hats will bear a white and black band, these bands being sewed on the headgers.

The maneuvers according to the members of the guard will be held on an elaborate scale and promise to be the best ever held. The first brigade will have motorcycle scouts, and its stuff will be carried on motor trucks. These trucks will weigh three tons and one will be supplied to each regiment. They will move along from camp to camp, but they are not to be captured.

The men while on the field will receive the regular army pay, but as it is the custom, this money goes to defray the expenses of the respective companies during the year.

The members of Co. G held their regular weekly drill last night at the state armory in Westford street. There was a large attendance and grand discipline was in order during the entire manoeuvres. Colonel Priest of Fitchburg was present and he expressed his admiration of the company. Next Thursday evening Major Sweetsir of Boston and Capt. Fiske, M. C., will be present at the regular weekly drill of Co. G. A physical examination of all the recruits will be held and every member of the company must be present.

A REWARD OF $500

For the Arrest of an Alleged Murderer

WARWICK, R. I., July 1.—A reward of $500 has been offered by the local police for information resulting in the arrest of Gietano Chilli, 22 years old, who is wanted in connection with the murder of Patrolman Walter McQuarrie in the village of Apponaug last Tuesday. McQuarrie was shot when he accosted a man carrying a bag of cloth which was later identified as having been stolen from the East Greenwich bleachery where Chilli was employed.

PROBABLY A SUICIDE

Lawrence Man Walked Into the River

LAWRENCE, July 1.—An apparent case of suicide took place in the Merrimack river, a few hundred feet west of the Canoe club wharf, yesterday. Aloise Desutter, a Franco-Belgian, aged 60, of 409 Canal street, walking into the river. His body was found by the police in the afternoon.

John Murphy, aged 14 years, of 12 Newton street and Edward Coughlin, aged 11, of 42 Crosby street saw the man walk into the water. They notified Patrolman Hart, who, with Arthur Hembrough of 217 Water street, later brought the body to the surface. It is said that the man returned to shore after entering the water once.

His suicidal purpose evidently prevailed, for he again walked into the water, threw up his hands and disappeared. A card in his pocket led to his identification. He was a mill operative.

MY FACE WAS ALL BROKEN OUT

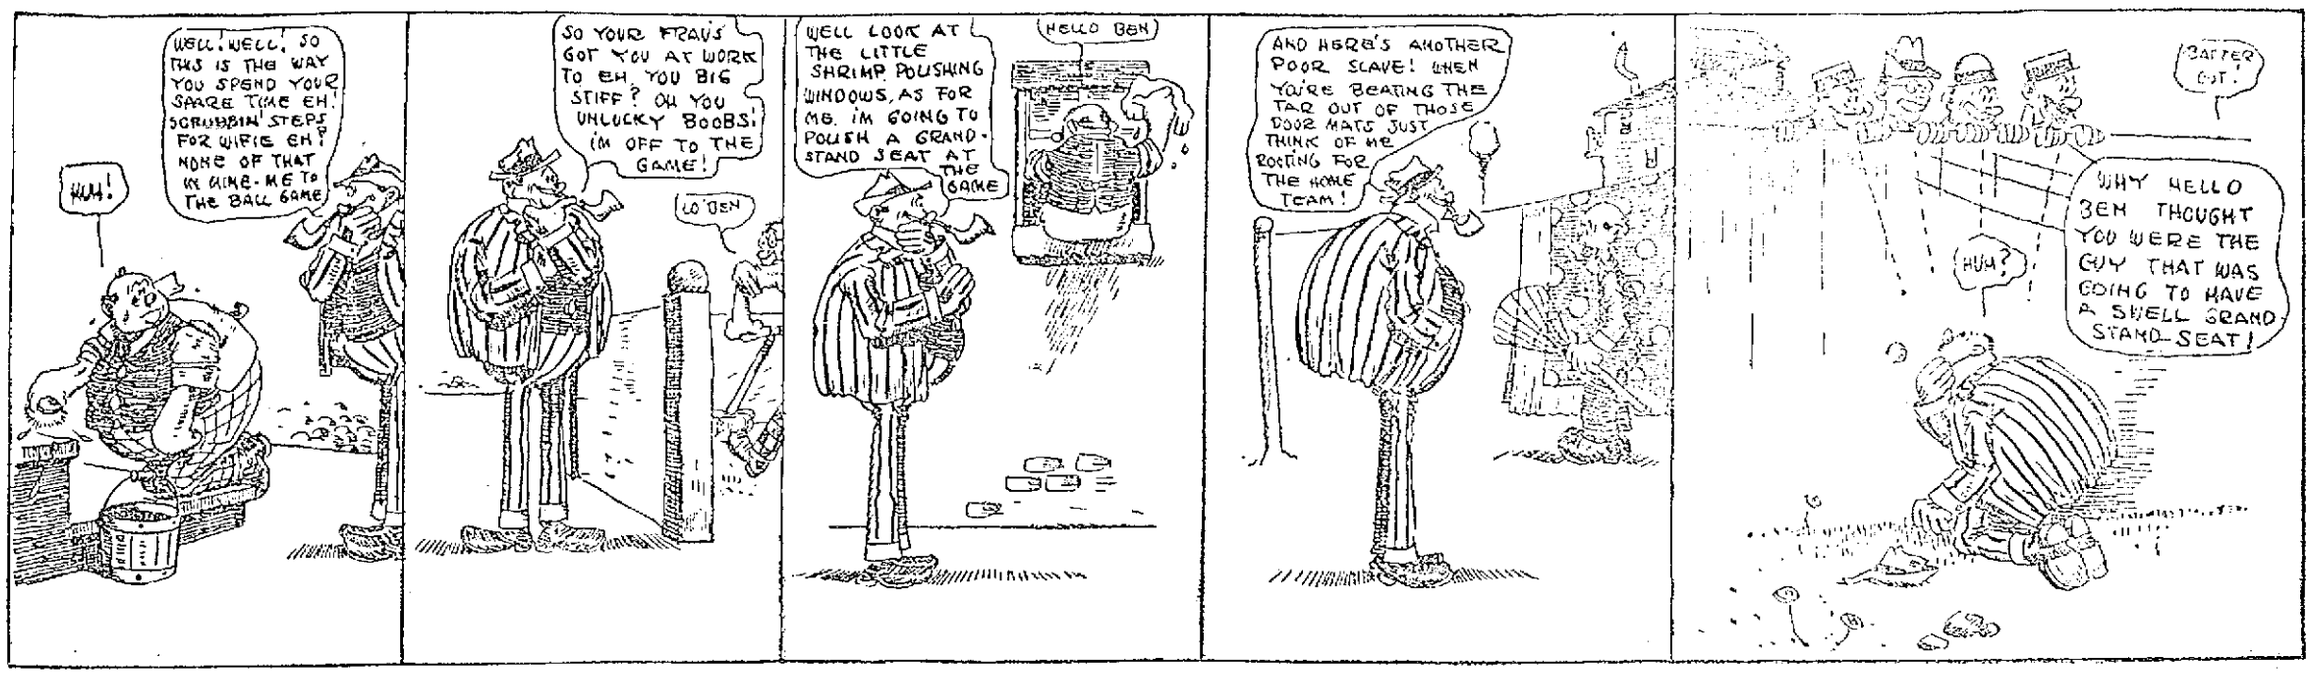

And So Disfiguring! Eruption Started with a Pimple. Came in Blotches, Causing Great Pain. Spread Rapidly. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment, Blotches Disappeared.

"My trouble started with a pimple on my nose, which I picked, and it rapidly spread all over my face, the eruption coming in blotches, and causing great pain and disfigurement. My face was all broken out, and oh! so disfiguring; being a business woman, it was dreadfully embarrassing. I was doctoring for six months without any relief. Then I saw the Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertised, so I thought I would try them, which I did. After using the Cuticura Soap and one box of the wonderful Cuticura Ointment, every one of my friends noticed the improvement. I am delighted to say the blotches have all disappeared, and I am completely cured through the use of the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I take great pleasure in recommending them to all my friends." (Signed) Mrs Nellie Lanergan, 513 Ninth Ave., New York City, Jan. 29, 1911.

For more than a generation warm baths with Cuticura Soap and gentle applications of Cuticura Ointment have afforded the speediest and most economical treatment for torturing, disfiguring affections of the skin and scalp of infants, children and adults. A single cake of Cuticura Soap (25c.) and box of Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are often sufficient when all else has failed. Although sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with 32-p. book on care and treatment of the skin and scalp, will be sent free, on application to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 20A, Boston, Mass.

FOUR PITCHERS USED

Little Jawn's Outfit Pulled Off the Victory

Little Jawn O'Brien, Panama, good cigar, grouch and all, was the attraction at Spalding park yesterday, accompanied by fighting Tommy Devine, Monkey-Shines Wormwood, who can play any of the nine positions, and the rest of the Fall River outfit looking for bother.

"You people are going along pretty well just at present," remarked Little Jawn, and then he shifted the chemist to the other side, and continued, "but, you may get yours after a time, nevertheless."

Little Jawn still wore his "the world against her" expression that has stuck to his roseate countenance since the season opened, for things haven't been breaking just right for him though he is a natural born optimist and still claims that his team in all probability will cop the pennant.

There were about 600 present and the attraction prior to the starting of the game was the warming up of Wormwood, one of the slab artists for the visitors, who has discovered a new curve which is known as the Frank Merriwell curve, owing to the fact that it is of the dime novel style.

First Inning

The vistors started off in the first inning by scoring a run, but Lowell was unable to make a tally. Groh was the first man up for Fall River and he was retired on a foul fly to Huston. Kopf drew a base on balls Hickman sent the ball into centre field for three bases, scoring Kopf. Devine foul filed to Boultes and Bowcock was third out on a fly to Fluharty.

In the latter half of the inning Moulton struck out and Barrows hit along the third base line and beat the ball to first. Cooney foul filed to Haight and Barrows went to second on the catch. Magee walked after being hit by a pitched ball. Fluharty hit to Walsh and was out at first. Reiger covering the bag.

Second Inning

Timely hitting and an error by Wright allowed Fall River to score three runs in the second. Moore opened with a single. Walsh bunted to Boultes and the latter threw good to first but Wright dropped the ball and Moore went to third on the play. Haight hit over Magee's head for a two bagger scoring Moore and Walsh. Reiger sacrificed sending Haight to third. Groh filed to Barrows and Haight scored on the play. Kopf hit to Moulton and was out at first.

Wright hit to Hickman and was out at first. Boultes fanned and Huston drew a base on balls. Warwick was third out on a fly to Groh.

Third Inning

Hickman opened the third with a single over second base but when he attempted to steal second he was thrown out a "mile" by Huston. Devine foul filed to Huston and Bowcock hit to Moulton and died at first.

In Lowell's half Moulton hit to Groh and was out at first. Barrows hit down the third base line and was called out on a very close decision. Cooney singled to left field and scored on Magee's three bagger to right garden. Fluharty filed to Hickman.

Fourth Inning

Moore filed to Barrows. Walsh and Haight struck out. Wright drew a base on balls and Boultes filed to Moore. Wright stole second and went to third when Huston hit to Groh and was throw nout at first. Warwick foul filed to Haight who made a pretty running catch.

Fifth Inning

Fall River scored another in the fifth inning. Reiger opened with a single to centre and went to second when Groh hit to Moulton nd was retired at first. Kopf hit to Boultes and was out at first. Reiger going to third Hickman drew a base on balls. Devine hit to left field fence for two bases, scoring Reiger. Hickman tried to come home on the hit but was nailed at the plate.

Lowell scored three runs in the latter half of the fifth inning. Moulton opened with a single and Barrows was given his base on balls. At this point Reiger was taken out of the box and Wormwood put in. Cooney hit a Texas leaguer to short left field the Fall dropping between Devine, Moore and Hickman, diling the bases. While the Fall River players were arguing over the ball Moulton stole home. Magee hit to Kopf who threw wild to first and Barrows and Cooney scored while Magee went to third. Fluharty foul filed to Kopf. Wright hit to Walsh and Magee was doubled up between third and base on the play, Boultes hit to Groh and was out at first.

Sixth Inning

There was plenty of excitement in the sixth. Bowcock hit to Boultes and was retired at first. Moore singled Walsh sent the ball over the left field fence but it was just this side of the foul flag and when the umpire called it foul there was great kicking on the part of the Fall River players. Walsh then struck out. Moore tried to steal second but he was too slow and was thrown out.

Huston went to first on balls. Warwick hit to Kopf who threw to second getting Huston and the ball was sent to first for a double. Moulton singled but was caught while trying to steal second.

During the latter half of the inning "Jawn" O'Brien was informed by the umpire that he would have to leave the grounds if he did not conduct himself in a proper manner.

Seventh Inning

Haight hit to Warwick and was retired at first. Wormwood hit to the left field fence for two bases, but he died there, for Groh filed to Moulton and Kopf died to Boultes.

Lowell scored three more runs in the latter half of the seventh. Barrows repeated his work of yesterday by making a home run inside the grounds. Cooney singled. Magee bunted down the first base line and beat it out for a single. At this point Bannon put Groh out of the game for kicking. Bowcock went to short stop, Moore from centre to left and Chief Williams, the Indian, was placed in centre. Fluharty sacrificed. Wright singled to right field scoring Cooney and Magee. Boultes filed to Hickman who threw to first for a double.

Eighth Inning

Hickman hit to Cooney and was out at first. Devine got hit by a pitched ball and walked. Bowcock sent the ball over the left field fence for a home run scoring Devine and himself. At this point Warwick was taken out and Yount substituted. Moore filed to Barrows. Walsh hit a red hot liner to Boultes but Jake held on to it.

Huston drew a base on balls. Youht bunted to Wormwood and Huston was thrown out at second. Moulton hit to Bowcock who threw to second, getting Yount and the ball was sent to first for a double play.

Ninth Inning

Haight got a single to left. Wormwood bunted to Yount who threw Haight out to second. Williams singled to centre field. Kopf hit to Boultes who tagged Wormwood running to third. Hickman got a single to centre scoring Williams. Hickman and Kopf tried to work a double steal and the latter was thrown out at the plate.

Barrows hit a grounder which Wormwood knocked down and Bowcock fielded it to first. Cooney foul filed to Kopt. Magee hit one too hot for Hickman to handle and he got on first. Fluharty filed to Kopf.

DIAMOND NOTES

Fall River again.

Dear Mr. Barrows: Please accept this slight token of our esteem, hoping that it will find you well, and that the national commission won't cop it.

Yours truly,
Mr. Bull Durham.

Poor Barrows has one consolation. They may take his coin away from him, but they can't deprive him of his smoking tobacco for he has earned 100 packages in two days, which is going some.

Groh grew fresh with Bannon, and Tommy grew indignant at Groh, and another Indian appeared on the horizon.

Didn't both managers make a slight mistake in pulling out their first pitchers?

Yesterday was the first time this season that Fred Reiger has not finished the game he has started.

Harry Huston is throwing perfectly these days.

And Brockton is in second place again! They do come back.

Hickman was right there with the stick; likewise the chin music.

TWO HARD HITTING LIGHTWEIGHTS WHO ARE TO BATTLE FOR WORLD'S TITLE IN SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—Ad Wolgast, holder of the lightweight title, and Owen Moran are ready for their 20-round bout to be held here July 4. The battle between the pair promises to be one of the best ever held in this section of the country. As to weight and size they are very evenly matched, both being about the same height and can scale at about 128 nicely if called upon to do so. The chances are that they will go into the ring about 130 pounds each. Moran is a past master at boxing, and he knows the game as well as any of them. As to hitting, there is little to choose between them, for boys who have met both of them say that Moran is the harder hitter of the two, although they admit Wolgast has the more dangerous swing. Moran depends more upon straight punches and a nasty shortarm uppercut that is liable to make trouble for any opponent. The pair met in New York some time ago, and Moran was awarded a newspaper decision over Wolgast. Since then the latter has improved wonderfully and is now considered by many ring experts to be one of the greatest lightweights that ever stepped into the ring, especially since he administered a severe trouncing to Frankie Baras. Wolgast is ruling favorite in the coming bout.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN

Lawrence Man Met With Serious Injury

PORTLAND, Me., July 1.—John Bowler of Lawrence, Mass., was struck by a Grand Trunk freight train last evening. He was on the track back of the Galt block on Commercial street and was apparently asleep. One leg was fractured and the other half was nearly cut off at the ankle and was amputated after he was taken to the Maine general hospital.

Bowler is 38 and for three weeks had been at work on the Portland & Lewiston electric line.

JUDGE LONG

SAYS HUSBAND IS LORD AND MASTER

SPRINGFIELD, July 1.—These precepts for the guidance of wives and husbands in cases of difference over household economy were laid down by Judge Charles L. Long yesterday in the separate support case brought by Mrs. Edith S. Marsh against Henry D. Marsh, assistant treasurer of the Five Cent Savings Bank:

To begin with the husband is absolute lord and master of the exchequer.

Under the law he is entitled to his meals at any hour he wants them.

He may select such food as he chooses. If he wants one food and his wife another, the husband's decision goes.

A servant girl to whom the husband objects must be discharged.

Finally, man, who pays the bills, and not the woman, is boss.

Judge Long advised the Marshes to patch up their differences. Mr. Marsh left the court room wreathed in smiles. Mrs. Marsh did not indorse the court's opinions, and said so.

INSTITUTE OF INSTRUCTION

PROVIDENCE, July 1.—With several departmental meetings and a general session in the forenoon the American Institute of Instruction closed its three days convention in this city today. Practically all phases of school life and the educational problems peculiar to New England were discussed at the meetings today by college professors, school superintendents and teachers from all the New England states.

The speakers at the closing meeting today were Charles Prosser, deputy commissioner of education for Massachusetts, whose topic was "Standards and problems in vocational education" and Dr. Winship, editor of the Journal of Education, who spoke on "New England's Future." Among the other speakers at today's sessions were Mrs. Charles Flagg, president of the Maine Federation of Women's clubs; Superintendent Arthur D. Call of Hartford, Conn.; H. C. Morrison, state superintendent of public instruction for New Hampshire; Superintendent Clark of Somerville, Mass., Superintendent Verplank of South Manchester, Conn., and Miss Mabel Robertson of Fall River.

IS TRAINING HARD

Jimmie Gardner Getting in Shape Right

Jimmie Gardner of Lowell is training as he never has before for his twelve round bout with Wild Bob Moha, which will be decided at the Armory A. A., Boston, Thursday evening, July 6th. Mike Twin Sullivan, who has boxed Moha, told Gardner that Moha is all that has been said about him, and then some more, and as Jimmy knows Mike to be a first class judge of boxers, he is going to be in tip top shape. Joe Thomas, the ex-welterweight champion, is boxing with him.

George Robinson, who has made some splendid contests as an amateur against heavier men, is to box Jack Cottman, of Philadelphia. They will appear in the semi-final bout of eight rounds.

Dave Powers of Malden will find a worthy opponent in Ted Thompson of Chicago. They will box six rounds.

The opening preliminary is between Billy Yerkes of Hot Springs and Joe Brown of Boston.

The Fourth of July won't be complete without ice cream. Order a White Mountain freezer of the Thompson Hardware Co., and enjoy your own ice cream.

HARVARD'S VICTORY

Yale Crew Badly Beaten in the Varsity Race

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 1.—Harvard administered to Yale the worst defeat that the Blue has received in rowing for many years yesterday afternoon, when Capt. Roger Cutler's giant eight led Capt. Frost's crew from start to finish over the four-mile course. Harvard won by 55 1-2 seconds or 14 boat lengths.

This means that the Crimson defeated the Blue by 882 feet in four miles. The times of both crews were slow and way below the record of the river, because the race was rowed against a stiff southwest wind, which blew directly against the crews, and as the breeze was also against the outgoing tide there was rough water in some spots, which made it impossible for Harvard's speedy crew to take a shy at the record of 20:10 that has stood since 1888.

Harvard's time was 22 minutes 41 seconds, and Yale's 23 minutes 40 1-2 seconds.

Of the three races in yesterday's regatta, the first one, for the freshman eights, which was rowed at 11 this morning, was the only real contest of the series. Yale was expected to win this race and it came out just as scheduled, although the Blue had a much harder time in defeating the Harvard youngsters than had been expected.

For a mile and a half the crews raced by side, Yale leading most of the time by a few feet, but never by more than a third of a boat length. But when the eights started their sprint for the finish line, Yale had the speed and pulled away from the Crimson shell, winning by one and a half boat lengths. The times were: Yale 11 minutes 53 seconds, Harvard 11 minutes 58 1-2 seconds.

Following the freshman race, the varsity four-oar crews took their turn. Harvard was booked to win this event and here again the result was just as predicted. For a mile it was a fairly close struggle, although Harvard led all the way from the first stroke.

In the second mile Yale tired and fell steadily to the rear, while Harvard's smoother and faster four was increasing its lead, until when the flag fell, announcing Harvard the victor, Yale was three and a half boat lengths behind. The times in this race were: Harvard 13 minutes 37 1-2 seconds, Yale 13 minutes 52 seconds.

Through a strange freak of nature, all three races were rowed against a strong head-wind, although the two in the morning were rowed upstream, while the varsity race in the late afternoon was down the river. Until 12 o'clock a strong wind, carrying from east to west-of-north, blew down the river against the incoming tide. Then just at noon, the wind shifted clear around and came up fresh from the south, and so blew against the outgoing tide and against the varsity crews in their race. So in neither contest was it possible to do any fast rowing, so far as time goes.

While the oarsmen would have liked more favorable conditions for the satisfaction of finding out how fast they could row, there never was a more glorious race day on the Thames for the thousands who came to see the regatta than this has been. And never in this country has there been gathered any such fleet of steam, power and sailing craft as floated on this beautiful river when Harvard and Yale measured oars this evening.

There is always a good-sized fleet of yachts anchored along the course, forming a lane for the shells to pass through, but yesterday put all previous displays way in the shade. From the railroad bridge clear up and past the navy yard, a stretch of two miles on either side of the course, yachts and boats of all sizes, from the immense steamers that only the millionaires can enjoy, down to the most diminutive power cat, the duffik was passed; not in a single line on either side of the river, but packed in as closely as cable lengths would permit. College colors and every bit of bunting found in the locker was swinging in the breeze.

And mixed here and there in this brilliantly decorated fleet were big excursion boats packed with spectators. One carried the Harvard club of Boston, together with the celebrating classes of the Harvard classes of 1891, 1901 and 1906. The steamer brought them around this morning from Watch Hill, where they had spent the night.

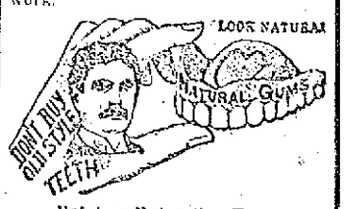

One of the most conspicuous yachts on the river was the Utowana, owned by the duke of Sutherland, which had just arrived from Gibraltar, bringing a party of distinguished guests across the ocean to see the race, although the duke had been unable to make the trip. Four U. S. revenue cutters and the torpedo destroyer Seneca added to the brilliant spectacle, while their crews raced up and down the river in power launches and barges, keeping the course clear for the racing shells.

More people watched yesterday afternoon's race than have ever seen a rowing contest between Harvard and Yale on the Thames before. The two observation trains, running on either riverbank, which longer than ever before, were both filled to their capacity, while the highways that run along the hills rising to the shores had continuous processions of automobiles.

Of course Lowell friends of the new charter feel grateful to Norman White who championed the charter for Lowell on the floor of the house at a very critical stage in the progress of the bill.

The city of Fitchburg is threatened with another epidemic of diphtheria, four nurses and several patients at the Burbank hospital having contracted the disease. The board of health of Fitchburg should get busy. When a hospital has to close on account of the disease, the condition would appear to be serious. It is fortunate that the schools are not in session. There is general curiosity not only in Fitchburg but outside as to the cause of the disease.

JUDGE FALLON'S TREATMENT OF BOYS

Some of the Boston papers made a great hullabaloo the other day because Judge Fallon of the police court ordered a boy of thirteen years held in $200 for the juvenile court and in default sent him to the Charles street jail. There was a lot of sympathy for the boy's mother because she was poor, and Judge Fallon was severely criticized by papers that have heretofore had nothing but words of praise for him. But all this went well until the other side of the story was told.

Judge Fallon while in the police station overheard the boy say: "Oh, it's nothing to be locked in a cell. I'll soon be out again."

That statement combined with the fact that this boy had been in before on other charges convinced the judge that unusual severity was necessary. The boy was one of a party who entered an empty house, cut off the water pipes and sold them for junk.

"To turn him out with a mere reprimand," said Judge Fallon, "would be to encourage him to go on in his criminal course;" and so it would. If such juveniles are immune from punishment while they acquire criminal habits it will be useless to attempt to reform them afterwards. Where boys show precocity in criminal tendencies they should be treated with the degree of severity necessary to compel them obey the law.

Judge Fallon has always been recognized as a just judge, and in this case his course was perfectly proper. He would be unjust to the boy and to the community if he allowed the lad to boast of his immunity while committing a serious crime.

SUPPRESSING THE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

Editor Sun:

Dear Sir—In your editorial in Monday's paper you seemed to criticize the teachers of Lowell and to say that closer supervision is necessary in order to procure better results. I think you will find the teachers of Lowell equal to those of any other city and doing just as good work. No conscientious teacher will be helped by closer inspection. Yours truly, E. H. H.

We had no intention to criticize the teachers of Lowell. If they were not as a whole faithful and hard working teachers the results would not be as good as they are under the go-as-you-please system now in force.

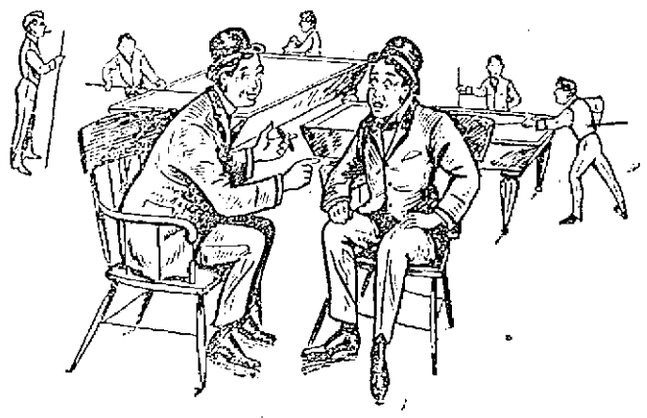

We hold that better results generally can be secured by more careful inspection or supervision which means that a man well trained in practical educational methods should go into every school room in the city, judge of the work done there not only as it appears in the class room, but in reference to lasting results, then criticize what is wrong or defective and have it remedied at once.

Were such a system of supervision in force all the teachers would do better work, and those who are now working in ruts or neglecting the essentials for the non-essentials would soon change. The whole question is one of getting the school board to allow the superintendent to do his duty by giving him the authority and holding him strictly responsible for results.

Supt. Whitcomb's statement at the meeting of the school board on Monday evening was illuminative of the methods at present in force in the school board. He said in effect he had always sought the cooperation of the grammar masters in running the schools but had not always been able to obtain it. The lack of this cooperation was an injury to the schools, he said. He had been criticized for not being able to command the loyalty of the grammar masters, but he allowed that "if he could not command he had shown at least that he could obey." That implies that instead of commanding the grammar masters he has been obeying them.

Dr. Lambert stood for the advisory board by saying that if twelve principals could come together and cooperate and the superintendent of schools could not secure their cooperation, the fault lies with the superintendent, not with the twelve. That is an absurd and an unjust statement. Had the superintendent of schools the power that he should have there would be no question of the cooperation of all the principals. If the board were doing its business in a business-like way it would promptly get rid of any principal who refused to cooperate with the superintendent for the benefit of the schools. Instead of doing so the board has organized the principals into an independent body to do some of the more important parts of the superintendent's work, a body that is so exclusive that it does not allow the superintendent to be present at its meetings. But having twelve members perhaps it has misgivings about the "unlucky thirteenth." We are not speaking here particularly for Supt. Whitcomb but for the system necessary to attain the best results. The superintendent, whoever he may be, should be superintendent and should have the authority to run the schools as he deems best. He should be held responsible for results, and if he cannot "make good" some other man should be employed in his place. But if the most distinguished educator in the United States or in the world were in Mr. Whitcomb's shoes today he could not do anything more to improve the schools, because he has not the authority. What the school board should do if it must have a board of supervisors and if at the same time it wants to be logical is, not to suppress the superintendent but to abolish the office altogether and let the truant officer call at the schools occasionally to see that the ventilation and sanitary conditions are all right. Why pay a man $3000 a year and then tie his hands so that he cannot earn his salary?

The fact is, the school board has adopted a very bungling system and one that will not work. The sooner it is dropped and the sooner the requirements of the new law are put in force the better for Lowell and for Lowell schools.

AT THE CLUB

"Well, how do you like your new machine, Harry?"

"I like it first rate, Andrew, and you can take my word that it is as good as I can buy."

"By the way, Harry, where did you get your car?"

"Why, you ought to know; I purchased it from the Moody Bridge garage."

"Honestly speaking, I knew where the machine came from, but I wanted to make sure, for I have a little story to tell you about one of the proprietors of the garage, Joseph Marin."

"Throw it out, I am patiently waiting for it."

"Of course I wouldn't want you to tell Joe about it, but it is this way. Some time ago Joe was driving up Moody street at a fair rate of speed. At a point between Aiken and Spalding streets a little boy accidentally ran into the path of the machine. Joe, who at all times has an eye out for such occurrences, quickly applied the brakes and in a very short space brought the auto to a full stop. But, alas! it was too late, the boy was knocked down and run over by the large touring car."

"Did he kill the lad?"

"Take your time, let me tell you the story. Well, Joe jumped out of the automobile and looked around for the chap, but the latter could not be seen. Then Joe got his jack and raised the auto and with fear scrutinized every part of the mechanism, thinking to find the mangled body twisted around the machinery. Such was not the case, however, for the remains of the chap could not be found. By this time a large crowd of people gathered around the machine, but the disappearance of the boy was a mystery. Part of his clothing was found twisted in the gearing. Somebody said that the boy who was killed was named Berger and that he lived on Ford street. Joe then went to the house to inquire if the Berger boy had been killed although he felt that a dead boy would not disappear so quickly unless ground to atoms. You can't imagine what our friend Joe saw when he reached the Berger home."

"The boy's ghost?"

"No, not his ghost, but his body all greased up from toes to head, and the chap was just telling his mother that he was lucky Mr. Marin did not catch him. The boy explained later that when the machine struck him he fell between the two wheels and was uninjured, and when the machine had passed over him, he hurriedly ran home so as not to give the automobile driver a chance to scold him for getting in the way."

"Well, that is the best I heard yet, Harry, but for the love of Mike don't let Joe hear that you are telling it around."

Harry's Horse Story

"By the way, Andrew, I heard of a local stablekeeper who lost a horse lately in a very strange manner.

"He had purchased a horse from a Tewksbury farmer and went out one evening in his automobile to get the animal, intending to lead it home with a hitch rope behind the auto."

"Did the horse run away?" asked Harry.

"Well, not exactly that. Farmers' horses, as a rule, do not run away but they sometimes walk away and that is probably what this horse did."

"It was getting dark as he set out for the city with the horse tied to the auto by a hitch rope. The horse trotted so beautifully after the auto for the first mile or so that the stableman thought he had a very intelligent animal, and so he had.

"When he struck Andover street, however, he looked back but found to his astonishment that the horse had disappeared although the rope was there.

"Was the horse ever found?" inquired Harry.

"Oh! yes, he was found in his stall next morning after feeding all night on new mown hay.

"When the stablekeeper called the next day to get the animal it was so badly swollen as a result of eating the green hay that it could not be taken out of the barn door."

PEOPLE OF NOTE

A writer says in the Liverpool Daily Post:

"Here is a perfectly true story which has never appeared in print but which is known to scores of people: A maiden lady was bicycling in the south of Scotland and caught in the handlebar of her machine the chain which supported her glasses snapping it into several pieces. So she went into the solitary shop of the village through which she was passing and asked for any sort of chain.

"The old woman said she had only a string of old glass beads which had been in her family for years, but as times were hard she would part with them. Thinking them rather pretty the lady paid the price asked which was fifteen shillings.

"About ten days later, on her return to London, she went to a jeweler to get her small gold chain mended, still wearing her glasses on the beads. The man noticed them and asked if he might show them to the head of the firm. The latter soon came forward and said he should be happy to offer £500 for the necklet.

"Without showing the least surprise the lady sagaciously answered that she would think the matter over. Then she went to a friend in one of the museums. After a little research among books he pronounced the beads to be the lost string of wonderful pearls Mary Queen of Scots had worn on the scaffold, and several experts agreed. Finally the beads were privately sold for £15,000 and out of part of the proceeds the lady took care that the old saleswoman should be made more than comfortable for the rest of her life."

"The only person to receive the degree of doctor of divinity at Brown was William R. Parshley of the class of 1886, missionary in Yokohama. Only one man was similarly honored at Yale, George W. Knox, professor at Union Theological seminary, who won his spurs as a missionary to Japan and there laid the foundation of his large contribution to the study of comparative religions.

An old lady who used to know Scott has just died in Edinburgh at the age of ninety-seven. Mrs. Jean Burke was a Macgregor whose ancestors came from the Braes of Balquhidder, and in whose family there runs a tradition that they were direct descendants of Rob Roy. Mrs. Burke, in her young days, along with her two sisters, resided next door to Sir Walter Scott, and saw him regularly every morning leaving his house for his duties in parliament house. The three young Macgregors, consistent with the tradition of their family, were in the habit of wearing cloaks of Rob Roy tartan, and the old lady recalled how Sir Walter Scott used to greet them, as they started for school with the words, "Rob Roy Macgregor."

LAKEVIEW PARK

The next one of the big, free, out-of-door attractions at Lakeview park will be seen Monday and every afternoon and evening during next week. Rollo, the Limit, will be the attraction.

Rollo has an act that justifies him in going under the appellation of "The Limit," as it is the limit in daring and pure reckless nerve. The act is fast and sensational. While it does not take long to perform it is so intensely thrilling that it seems to the excited spectator as almost an age.

It is the only turn of its kind in America although there are many of a similar nature, none, however, which go to the extent of sensation reached by Rollo. Everybody is familiar with the loop-the-loop acts of a few years ago, which were done in automobiles, or bicycles and in various ways. Each of these however, had an extension of the incline in the form of a loop to guide the looped.

Rollo introduces the novelty of doing away with the loop entirely. He dashes down a steep incline on roller skates and at the bottom flies off into space, turning a swift, complete somersault before alighting on another incline which eases off his descent to the ground.—Adv.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE

Today's two performances of "Raffles the Cracksman" will close a most successful week at this theatre.

Commencing Monday, July 3d, a dramatic event of unusual interest will be presented "Salomy Jane" the play in which Miss Eleanor Robson scored her biggest success. The Lakeview Theatre Stock company will give this fine western story a careful presentation, with new scenic effects and all the detail for which this company is becoming known. "Salomy Jane" was written by Paul Armstrong and it's scenes are laid in the fertile dramatic fields of California.

Miss Marie Horton will be seen as "Salomy Jane" and she may be depended on to give it an artistic portrayal. Mr. Arthur Behrens will have the role of the man who has demonstrated his ability to portray almost any kind of a role satisfactorily. Wm. A. Williams will play the "Gambler" and the stage coach driver will be Mr. J. J. Owens. Bartley McCullum will play Col. Starbottle the comedy role of the play and Paul Armstrong the author has made of this part a feature for comedy.

The love story told in this play between Salomy Jane and "The Man" is of the true, rugged west, and Salomy's kiss in the first act is one of the treats of the drama, for all she knows about "The Man" whom she kisses is that he has killed "Baldwin" the man who has insulted her. From that time on the love interest is strong and is without doubt the success of the play. There will be a matinee every day excepting Monday afternoon.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

"Two Thousand Dollars Reward" is the title of a pretty comedy drama which is to be given at the Merrimack Square theatre next week by that popular actor, Mortimer Snow, and his assistants, Miss Lillian Lee Anderson, C. E. Covert and Dan McCabe. The latter is the well known Lowell boy who has appeared with the Hathaway theatre stock company in seasons past and also with other favorably known organizations. The playlet in which the above are to appear is one of the very best of the numerous western pieces, and contains an evenly balanced and cleverly told story of life among the plains. It concerns the escape of a bandit who succeeds in eluding the officers of the law and for whose capture a reward of $2000 is offered. The whereabouts of the man becomes known to the young girl on the ranch, but she, knowing the true story of the affair in which it is alleged he is directly implicated, assists in shielding him from the officers and eventually helps not a little in establishing his innocence. Mr. Snow, as the escaped bandit, is sure to continue in the approval of his audiences for such a character is just to his liking, while Miss Anderson, as the ranch girl, will again be seen in a congenial part. The staging of the piece will be given the same care and attention of the past.

Ash and Carr, travesty artists, will be seen in an amusing series of burlesque of famous and well known stage folk, and Miss Margaret McDonough, who recently appeared in the Mortimer Snow Co., will be heard in songs. Will Carpenter, the Lowell boy known as "The Roller Skating Wizard" will be a unique exhibition on the rollers and is sure of meeting with the success which has characterized his work in the past. The photo-plays will be among the very best ever shown here, and are the kind that not only entertain and amuse, but instruct as well. They are all approved by the state.

For the sacred concerts Sunday afternoon and evening the Four Manning Sisters in a refined act, Dodd and Campbell, Miss May E. Whiteley, Morgan and West in a new act, and others. The pictures will be new and novel. Remember that the temperature of this playhouse averages about 20 degrees cooler than is found on the outside. Baseball results nightly.—Adv.

THEATRE VOYONS

Commencing Monday the Theatre Voyons will show "Fleeting Blood," a Biograph Western Indian picture in which 200 horses and 300 actors appear. This picture is unquestionably the best and most thrilling western reel ever made and its showing will win unlimited approval. The story of the pioneer families attacked by hundreds of Indians and their stirring defence and the exciting rescue by a troop of cavalry is well told and the outdoor fight was staged amid surroundings unequalled in impressiveness. On Thursday the Theatre Voyons will present as an added attraction the first motion pictures of the coronation of King George V in London.—Adv.

Of the Lowell Commercial College Held Last Night

Associate hall was the scene of a brilliant affair last night, when the graduation exercises of the Lowell Commercial college were held. The attendance was very large and after the presentation of the diplomas and a well rendered literary program, dancing was enjoyed till a late hour.

Altogether 71 young men and women received their papers and the beauty of this graduating class is that nearly every one is immediately going into a position that has awaited his or her completion of the course of study and practice.

Judge Frederick A. Fisher presided and also presented the diplomas, while the address to the graduates was by Cyrus A. Durgin, principal of the state normal school.

In his opening address Judge Fisher complimented the 71 graduates as well as the masters and brought out the fact that out of the class, 18 came from neighboring towns, eight from four other New England states, outside of Massachusetts, and three from Canada, thus showing the outside reputation of the college.

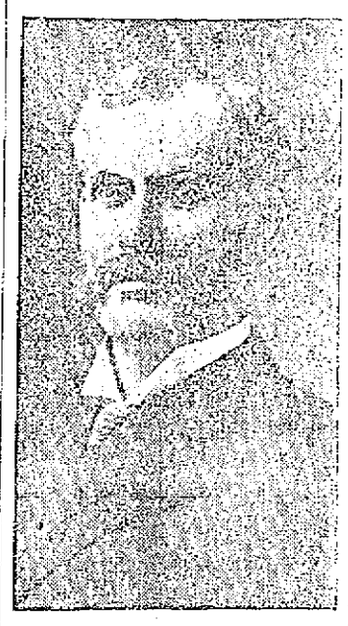

"I have no doubt," he said, "that there are larger colleges in the state, but I doubt if there are better ones; and I have taken pains to attend a recitation, and to study the curriculum. This institution seems to have anticipated, by a good many years, what is now a well recognized need,—and that is, for vocational training.

"I am glad to see that the class has adopted as its motto, the word 'concentration,' which is consistent with the motto of the college itself, as the school that has made good. Efficiency is what we are looking for today. I noticed that the curriculum includes a 'model office.' I hope the graduates will be charitable to us, when they go into our offices; for I doubt if they will find any other model office in the city."

Mr. Cyrus A. Durgin said in part: "These graduations from the different schools and colleges at this season of the year mean a great deal more than merely coming together and receiving diplomas. They mean the entrance into the world's competitions of new blood and new vitality.

"When we think of the colleges of Massachusetts, when we think of the small army of young men and young women who have been leaving those colleges this week and last week to take up the world's work; when we think of the nearly 300 high schools in Massachusetts and the hosts of young men and young women that attend them—nearly 75,000 strong; and when we think of the host of children attending the elementary schools,—more than half a million in number, requiring more than 13,000 teachers, when we think of the vast sums of money expended for the erection of buildings,—more than 13 millions,—and more than 19 millions and a quarter annually for the maintenance of those buildings; and in contrast with this, think of the size of Massachusetts as it looks on the map; we are obliged to come to the conclusion that education in this state is a very serious thing.

"In the old days, a boy was sent to college after he had graduated from the high school or the academy. There he took up the study of Greek, higher mathematics, and eventually some of the sciences; and when he emerged he was an educated man. Later on, I am glad that we did the same for the girls. I believe in that kind of education; it does a great deal for those who take it.

LEDOIT E. KIMBALL

But conditions are changing in the commercial and industrial life of the nation, and our education has changed. In these days it is not looked upon as absolutely essential for everybody to study Latin, or for everybody to know the rudiments of chemistry. We look upon education in a two-fold way—the so-called 'cultural' education and the other, which we may call 'vocational.' I am at the head of a vocational school and am talking to the graduates of another vocational school.

"Vocational training is divided into five parts: First, the professional side, dealing with the training of ministers, physicians, lawyers and teachers. It is now proposed to have agricultural schools. Then we have what we may call the industrial type of education. Then the commercial form, of which the Lowell Commercial college is a type. Last and most important of all, is the department of vocational education which has to do with the training of young women for the household arts.

"We frequently hear people speak of 'Vocational education versus cultural education.' There is no sense in that, and never has been. Anything that is 'cultural' is brought about in the last analysis by cultivation. It is a fact that if a man can speak well, we look upon him as being educated, more than if he can do something with his hands, and that is incorrect. Culture comes from doing well what you have to do; it makes no difference whether you are learning book-keeping or getting a few paragraphs in Caesar.

"There is no conflict between the cultural, or the general side of education, and that which has to do with earning one's living. I am positive that there is just as much culture in a young lady learning the ways of children and how to teach them well, as there is in learning the best verse that has ever been written."

The speaker then congratulated the pupils as well as the president of the college, LeDoit E. Kimball, for the success obtained during the year.

The class gift to the school, a beautiful framed picture, was presented by the president, Fred B. Root, and accepted by the treasurer of the college, F. Arthur Spence.

CRUSHED BY AN AUTO

Lawrence Youth Killed at Derry, N. H.

DERRY, N. H., July 1.—Stephen Murphy, 15, step-son of Noah Hamel of Lawrence, Mass., was almost instantly killed a few miles north of Derry yesterday afternoon, being run over and crushed by a heavy automobile truck. Hamel was returning from Suncook whither he had taken a load of furniture. After making a brief stop near Londonderry, the boy went to the front to crank the automobile, which was started. The boy was standing on the step and in some unaccountable manner slipped so that he was thrown around beneath the wheels, the rear one passing over his body. A physician was called, but the unfortunate lad was dead before aid could be rendered him.

BIG ATHLETIC MEET

Senior Events Will be Held at Pittsburg

PITTSBURG, July 1.—With four records in junior events smashed yesterday at the first day of the A. A. Thirty-two cities and 37 of the most prominent athletic clubs of the country are represented and these athletes besides competing for national titles also have an eye to places on the team that will represent America in the quadrennial Olympic games in Stockholm next year.

The fine weather of yesterday continued today and from all indications early in the day there would be nothing weatherwise to interfere with the program, which is scheduled to start at 2 p. m.

The accused served three years' imprisonment in Philadelphia for operating a baby farm and subsequently served nine months also in Philadelphia for violation of postal laws.

BABY KNEW THE DIFFERENCE

One mother has learned by experience that baby powders are not alike. Mrs. N. T. Hartshorn of Sandisfield, Mass., used Comfort Powder for her first baby and its skin was always healthy and perfect. For the second baby she used borated talcum, and the baby was chafed for six weeks. Then she went back to Comfort Powder and in two days the chafing had disappeared and the baby was happy. Its skin knew the difference between an irritating, highly-perfumed talcum and soothing, healing Comfort Powder. E. S. Sykes' name is on the genuine.

SCHOOL DISTRICT

THE TOWN OF WILMINGTON ADMITTED TO IT

Wilmington has been added to the school district which comprised Tyngsboro, Tewksbury, Dracut and North Reading. The town was admitted into the district at a meeting of the district school committee held at the Y. M. C. A. building in this city.

Mr. Julius E. Warren was present at the meeting as the representative of the state board of education and he explained the reason for the annexation of Wilmington to the district as outlined by the state board. Mr. Warren was questioned by the different members of the committee and after giving answers which were satisfactory to the committee it was voted to admit the town.

The change by the addition of Wilmington will add to the duties already incumbent upon Supt. of Schools S. Howard Chace and the committee in considering this phase of the situation unanimously agreed to an increase of $300 per year in the superintendent's salary, thus making his yearly compensation $2400.

Dracut as part of the former school district paid something like $1600 as the proportional share of the superintendent's salary and under the change which will include Wilmington in the new apportionment, this town's share toward the salary will be decreased according to its fractional proportion of the new district.

THE IROQUOIS CLUB

Annual Party Was Held Last Night

The annual summer party and dance of the Iroquois Canoe club was held last night at Willow Dale, and over 500 friends of the members spent the evening in a delightful manner. The clubhouse, on the shore of Lake Massepoic, was decorated and illuminated in an artistic and attractive manner, and the members of the club did everything in their power to entertain their friends.

The water front of the clubhouse was strung with Japanese lanterns, while the interior was decorated in an appropriate manner. Dancing was enjoyed at Breezy Point which was also decorated, canoes with attractive streamers being placed around the hall.

At intermission all repaired to the clubhouse, where refreshments were served and a musical program carried out. The musical program was informal, several members taking part. Mr. John Marren sang several selections, and there were also duets by the Misses Margaret and Rose McDonough. Mr. Adelarde Lamerouxe was the accompanist. Dancing followed and continued until after midnight.

Mr. George Barris is commodore of the club, and the officers of last night's dance were as follows: General managers, David Dwyer and Joseph Maguire; floor director, James Grant; assistant floor director, Herve Cote; chief aid, George Boucher; aids, Colin McKenzie, Arthur Bolton, Walter Jewett, George Watson, Chester Guild, Fred Hall, John Farrell, John Sutherland, Cecil Hosmer, Albert Willis, John Grant, William Grant, C. D. Asquith, George Nelson, Arthur Provencher, John Marren and Charles Driscoll.

MRS. GETCHELL'S WILL

Time Limit on Bequests Has Expired

The time limit placed on the distribution of her estate by the late Lorinda M. Getchell has expired and several Lowell charities will soon receive substantial bequests through her will. Mrs. Getchell died in 1906 leaving many bequests to relatives, friends and the parish house of St. John's church and the residue to the executor of her will, in trust for five years pending the return of a son, from whom she had not heard for several years. If in five years time no trace of the son had been found then $500 was bequeathed to the Day Nursery of which the Rev. Dr. L. C. Manchester is president; $500 to the Eliot church, of which the Rev. John M. Greene is pastor and $500 to the Old Ladies' home of this city. The time of the trust has expired, and the son not having been heard from, the executor, Mr. Marcella Greenwood, will soon forward to the above institutions their bequests.

Uses of Salicylic Acid

Salicylic Acid is one of the best-known antiseptics and germicides. It is so highly esteemed that practically all food products are preserved by it.

One of its chief virtues is that it removes disagreeable odors, particularly in the hair and scalp.

Salicylic acid, in correct proportion, is used in Birt's Head Wash, so that the scalp and hair are left in a perfectly clean condition after a shampoo with it, and any parasites or vermin that may have been present are effectively removed.

This feature makes Birt's Head Wash almost indispensable in the nursery.

Children using it frequently could hardly get ringworm or vermin. Birt's Head Wash also contains cocoanut oil, glycerin and whites of eggs, which are recognized by all schools as being of peculiar benefit in hair and scalp disorders, particularly dandruff, itching scalp and faded, falling, lifeless hair. In hygienic tubes 25c., at all druggists.

SUMMER FROCKS FOR OUTDOOR WOMEN

IT'S away for the seashore or country at last by the contingent that has remained in town until the present. The weather has been so delightful that the town stayers have found this to be no special infliction, and those who are now departing have the comfortable consciousness they are taking with them what are, really the latest and smartest garments.

One thing that is making this season a notable one is the popularity of the sensible outing garment. While afternoon and evening gowns are wild and even the tailor made is freakish, the costume designed for the outdoor woman is really more charming than it has ever been before.

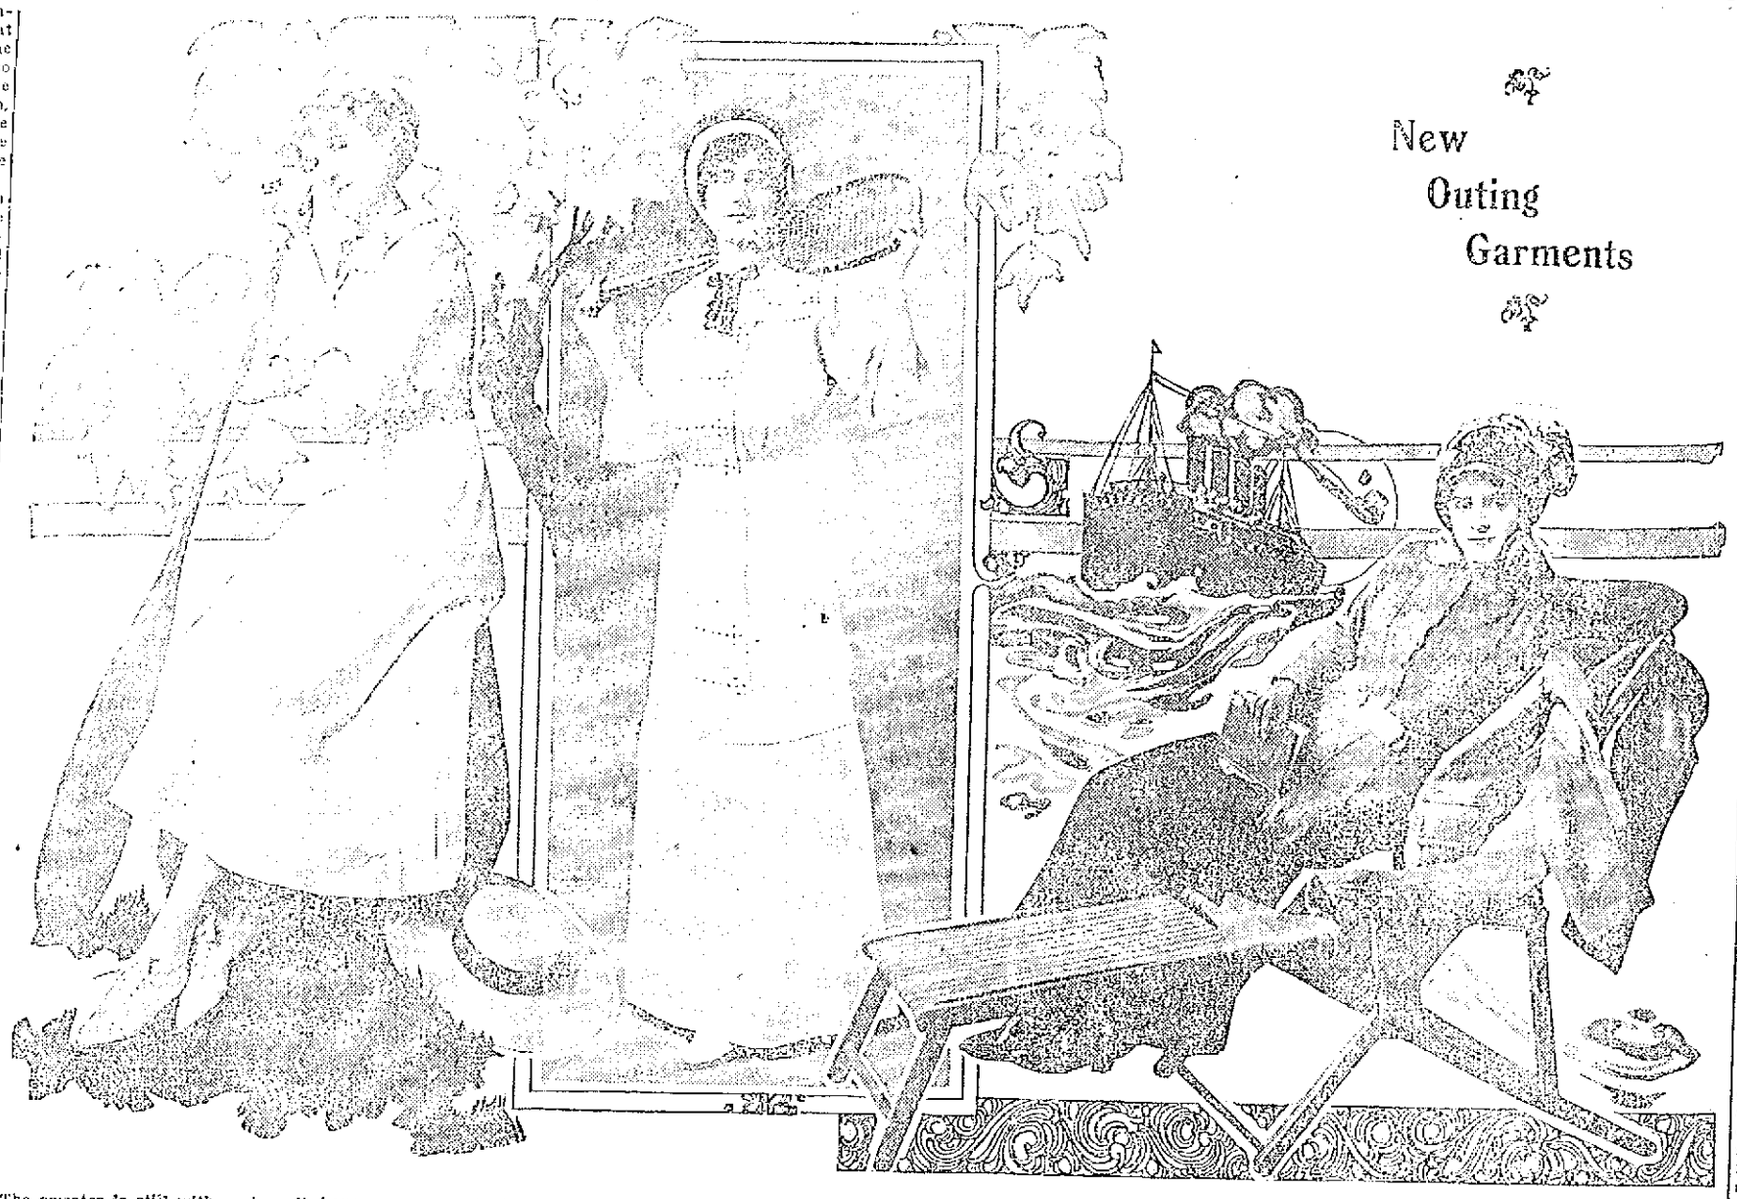

Take the modish tennis costume.

It is made of any fetching; tasteful material—linen, pique, chambray or lawn. One may wear any color that suits the taste, and it is considered quite smart to combine two shades, as blue and red, the coronation colors, or contrast any color you choose with plain white.

Embroideries also are allowable on gowns for sports. The tennis gown illustrated here is quite pleasingly adorned with a simple embroidery in white and green. The skirt has a deep hem, above which a fold of the material is adjusted to give the appearance of a tunic. The garment is a one piece affair, closing at the left, where handsome ornaments are embroidered to give the appearance of frogs. The square sailor collar is covered with braiding and embroidery and is finished with a pretty tie made of green velvet ribbon. The band of ribbon over the hair is wide enough to keep stray ringlets in place during a lively game. A soft finished, rather coarse linen is the fabric selected for this frock. For tennis, croquet, yachting, boating or a quiet morning on the hotel veranda one could scarcely hope to find a more attractive costume. With the embroidery all in white it would be possible to vary the collars and ties to give the appearance of a new frock each day.

Light blue chambray with a band trimming of interlaced circles and fleur-de-lis was adopted for the making of the other little outdoor gown pictured here. With its brief skirt it is suitable for canoeing or a morning on the links. These band trimmings may be purchased separately and are available in every shade.

For the girl who does not care to invest in an entire suit various combinations may be achieved by combining the mannish shirt waist now in the shops with a plain linen or serge skirt. Some of these waists are so severely masculine that I know of one girl who is wearing a fetching summer silk shirt which her brother bought with the intention of appearing in it himself.

New Outing Garments

The sweater is still with us in spite of the modifications of the weather. It is useful to the girl who is invited for a week on a yacht or who is contemplating a sea voyage of any particular length. Pictured here is a clinging sweater of Angora wool in the Norfolk jacket shape. On mild mornings on shipboard the sweater is quite warm enough without the heavy steamer coat of tweed or blanket cloth. The little toque of satin and velvet is suitable for the deck of the smart liner, yet is built snugly enough for a motoring journey.

The new silk jersey has low neck and short sleeves and is waterproofed for wear in the surf. The smartest bathing costumes this year are made with divided skirts, but they are plaited so that the division is not obvious.

Riding togs are also divided. The sailor hat and various modifications of the sailor are popular with the equestrienne. CATHERINE TALBOT.

TENNIS COSTUME

DEVOTEES of the tennis court have some extremely pretty styles to choose from this season. The smart tennis gown illustrated here is just as suitable for walking or golf as for tennis. Linen, chambray and even dimity are used for the construction of the modish outing gown. Any color that is liked may be chosen—pale blue, pink and a shade of sage green, which is considered very smart, are popular. The tennis gowns are very simple, the bodices seamless and attached to a straight rather narrow skirt under a wide girdle. White pearl or white crochet buttons are sometimes used to fasten the waists, and the collars are invariably low cut, generally on the sailor style, with a neat tie as a finish. The sleeves are usually short, with turned back cuffs of contrasting material. A hat of soft panama garnished with a loose scarf of oriental pattern is generally worn with the outing dress. Never before have what comes under the head of "washing gowns" been so substantial looking and so durable. Cotton voiles and marquisettes are leading ideas, and stripes of different width distinguish many fabrics, which prove useful when the classic idea in dress asserts itself. The horizontal lines and the wide stripes, together with polka dots, all figure in the new washing stuffs. Some of the colorings recall old fashioned dimities. The white voiles show formal sprays and latticework effects. Plain linens have been brought out in beautiful colorings.

Nature's Suggestions

WHEN we reflect how brief is the time which has elapsed since the period of grained woodwork and horsehair upholstery, when we recall its accompanying wall papers and carpets, with their patterns which haunted the eye like a mathematical nightmare, it seems almost incredible that so short a time has sufficed for a change so great in taste. Ugliness and stupidity were in possession in the horsehair age. Furniture was just tables and chairs. Carpets were flung down haphazard, curtains were heavy and dark. We were entirely at the mercy of the builder, who produced his rolls of paper, in which billious drabs and hot pinks were the predominating tones. They were undoubtedly bad for the nerves and altogether unrestful, but in this strenuous age, when we have become almost hypercritical, some of the atrocities of decoration which were then tolerated would conduce to madness.

We have left behind the stiff, uncompromising horsehair suits, the glass shades, the stuffed birds, the waxen flowers and are no longer to be deluded into accepting "birdseye maple" or "bastnwood" which is created by three layers of paint.

Now we think in styles, in schemes, in epochs. We can have our walls, our floors and our curtains just as simple as we like or as rich as we please. The modern builder, while he gives us colonial or empire fixtures or Jacobean moldings, does not attempt to influence us in the selection of color schemes. We are in no way coerced into accepting unsuitable wall paper. We have helpful suggestions in plenty in the artistic fabrics and paperings which are available. We can see specimen rooms where this or that complete scheme is successfully carried out, but all this only stimulates our own desire to create some individual scheme of decoration which shall be in complete harmony with our taste. People today who can see harmony are becoming as common as people who could only hear it a few years ago.

Nature is full of the kindest and most helpful hints—the warm drab and sharp green of a dish of broad beans is a classical example, and the suggestion inherent in the stalk and leaf of many plants needs only following intelligently to get the most subtle and perfect harmonies. The winter countryside, with its abundance of drabs and buffs, of grays and purples, ought to educate us to a fineness of color perception akin to that of the Japanese.

In adapting nature hints to interior decorative schemes it must be remembered that wall and curtain and furnishing are, after all, not complete decoration in themselves, but the background and scenery for the dramatis personae and need breadth and repose to keep their place in the scheme of things. Rooms should have their suggestion of purpose and association of wise ideas. A white dining room, for instance, would strike us as cold and cheerless. Even the rather heavy and dull red of the Victorian epoch is more appropriate. A dining room ought to have a certain warmth of color, though the colors themselves may be light in tone. Buffs and golden browns for paper and hangings, with old oak furniture and a carpet in a deeper shade of brown would be a very pleasing room. Perhaps the brown toned dining room is the most delightful of any, although there are many people who cling to red as the only possible dining-room color. There are many possibilities in soft green tones adaptable to dining room decoration, but blue is desirable only in its darker tones or intermingled with the red of oriental style.

Styles Favorable For Plump, Not Fat, Women

Styles were never more favorable to the plump woman than at present. The straight, trim looking skirts, the simple peasant blouse and the fashionable coat of the season are all unusually becoming to those of average height. But as to the stout short woman, heaven defend her! And she moans, "Why can't fashion editors devote several pages to women as they really are?" Dear madam, if the fashion pages were filled with pictures of women as they really look there wouldn't be a pattern or a magazine sold. Women are illustrated as they want to look, not as they are. Their vanity has to be appealed to, for women as a whole can't stand the truth. It would be interesting to know if the stout ladies one sees gowned in the height of the style think that they are replicas of their tall willowy sisters illustrated in the fashion books.

CHILDREN'S ROOMS.

For children's rooms and night nurseries pale pink and white is a delightful combination, and while striving to have everything as dainty as possible one must avoid unnecessary fluffiness, remembering that all draperies, etc., will be paying frequent visits to the laundry.

WALL DECORATIONS

Many Dainty Floral Designs and Japanese Effects

Colored effects predominate in the scheme of wall decoration this season. Bold chintz patterns on delicate backgrounds are some of the most beautiful among the selections to be seen in the best shops. With these decorative papers it is hardly necessary to hang pictures. One of the most delightful examples of Japanese art is in delicate tones of pink on a creamy brown striped frieze, which are most effective, with the deeper colored dado headed by a narrow fanciful border, which border is also placed at the top of the frieze. This particular design can be adapted to various treatments. It is a copy of an old Japanese dress. The rose crown decoration on white striped paper is one of the most beautiful of the hand printed patterns suitable for high pitched rooms. The sweet pea is a novel design for a frieze on white moire paper. Another new idea for high walls is square paneling, obtained by floral borders on white or cream grounds. The aster border is one of the prettiest of this kind. The Sevres crown decoration and the laburnum with diaper filling are other notable examples of this form of wall treatment, especially suited to a drawing room or boudoir.

LET THE LITTLE ONES FIDGET.

Children of the present day will not "be seen and not heard." They have learned that a wise doctor has said that the more a child is heard the finer will become its lungs, the deeper its breath and the more lasting its health. Every child must be allowed to fidget. It is not only nice for the child, but an absolute necessity to insure normal development. The modern child has advantages over its parents.

Acknowledging Invitations

An invitation should always be answered as quickly as possible and in the same form that it is given. For instance, if you receive a card which says, "Mrs. Jones requests the pleasure of Miss Brown's company on Wednesday, June 12," you reply, "Miss Brown has much pleasure in accepting Mrs Jones' kind invitation for Wednesday, June 12." If, on the other hand, Mrs. Jones writes, "Dear Miss Brown, I shall be so glad if you will come to tea with me on Wednesday, June 12," you answer, "Dear Mrs. Jones, I shall be delighted to have tea with you on Wednesday, June 12." This rule of answering invitations holds good in every case. If you send a refusal it is polite to give a reason and not merely to say that you are sorry you cannot go. After being present at a dinner, dance, wedding, "at home" or large tea party it is usual to call upon the hostess within a week.

The Summer Girl's Hair

IF hair is never given special attention at any other time it should be considered in the summer. The no hat fad makes this imperative, and the no hat fad is one that has come to stay—it is so comfortable and convenient. Now that the "hat must match the gown" ruling is so strict the dispensing with a hat when the occasion will allow it affords a neat way of getting around this requirement. At the fashionable summer resort one sees people hatless as often as with hats. The coiffures, however, are works of art.

The girl who cannot employ a fashionable hairdresser can do much to improve the condition of her own hair. It should always be clean. The doctrine that hair should only be washed or shampooed at frequent intervals is nonsense. Hair should be given a good shampoo or wash at least once a month, and if the hair is dry a little glycerin added to the water will neutralize the effect of the soap and water so far as the depletion of oil in the hair is concerned.

At this time some formulas for improving the condition of the hair may be useful.

To make the hair look glossy comb it with a comb on which a few drops of hair oil have been dropped. Oil of rosemary used alone will serve. This will prevent the hair from becoming limp and unmanageable. It is best combed thus at night when retiring.

To restore hair which has faded from its natural color apply this lotion:

Tincture of jaborandi, 4 drams; lanolin, 3 drams; glycerin, 2 drams; soft soap, 1 dram.

Mix thoroughly and rub into the roots of the hair every night.

Gray hair is generally hopeless. A loss of sulphur in the blood or iron in the blood is sometimes a cause of early grayness. Sometimes use of these tonics will help the hair. It at least ought to prevent the grayness from spreading. Dandruff sometimes is a cause of grayness. The cure is treatment for the removal of dandruff. A nervous shock or a fever may bring about a change in the color of the hair. Rock salt dissolved in brandy is a hair tonic recommended by some. An unguent made by melting beef marrow to measure a gill, adding a tablespoonful of olive oil and a few drops of violet for perfume sometimes restores gray hair.

To remove dandruff from the hair take tincture of cantharides, 1 ounce; rectified spirits of wine, 1 ounce; essence of rosemary, 10 drops; essence of verbena, 10 drops; bay rum, 1 ounce; orange flower water, 3 ounces. Mix and rub into the roots of the hair every night.

HATS FOR GIRLS.

A pretty hat for a young girl is made in black fancy straw with a high crown and trimmed on both sides of the brim with old world rose patterned ribbon. This hat is also adorned with clusters of tiny pink roses and green leaves.

A very pretty hat in black straw, intended for quite a tiny wearer, is lined under the brim with frills of ivory lace and trimmed round the crown with wreaths of pink roses and knots of ribbon, while another hat, which is entirely new, is covered smoothly with black satin and arranged with a trimming of flowers and ribbon and a lining of shot silk chosen in pale colorings.

The Pretty Mannequin

THE life of a Parisian dressmaker's model, or mannequin, as she is called in France, is outwardly luxurious and easy. She dresses in silk attire, she walks upon carpets rich and rare, she has a maid to dress her, a hairdresser to do her hair in the very latest style, her hands are carefully manicured, and for at least five hours a day she parades before an admiring audience in dresses so beautiful that even the heart of a millionairess is sometimes reduced to envy.

She puts on disdainful little airs with her employers, she orders her dresser about with the haughty ways of a stage duchess, she stands or glides before the highest ladies in the land with the detached indifference of the most regal of sovereigns, and the idea of associating her with anything sordid or poor or hardworking seems preposterous.

But there is a very different side to the picture.

Where does she live, this beautiful mannequin? What wages does she earn? What position does she hold in the eyes of her fellow workers? And what becomes of her when her beauty and grace have gone?

A beautiful American girl in Paris was in desperate straits for money and even for food. She was too good looking to have any success as a governess, a nurse or anything domestic, so she thought she would become a mannequin.

So she, with this idea in view, went to see a big dressmaker, and after receiving her none too politely he offered her nine hours' work a day and $20 a month, no food included.

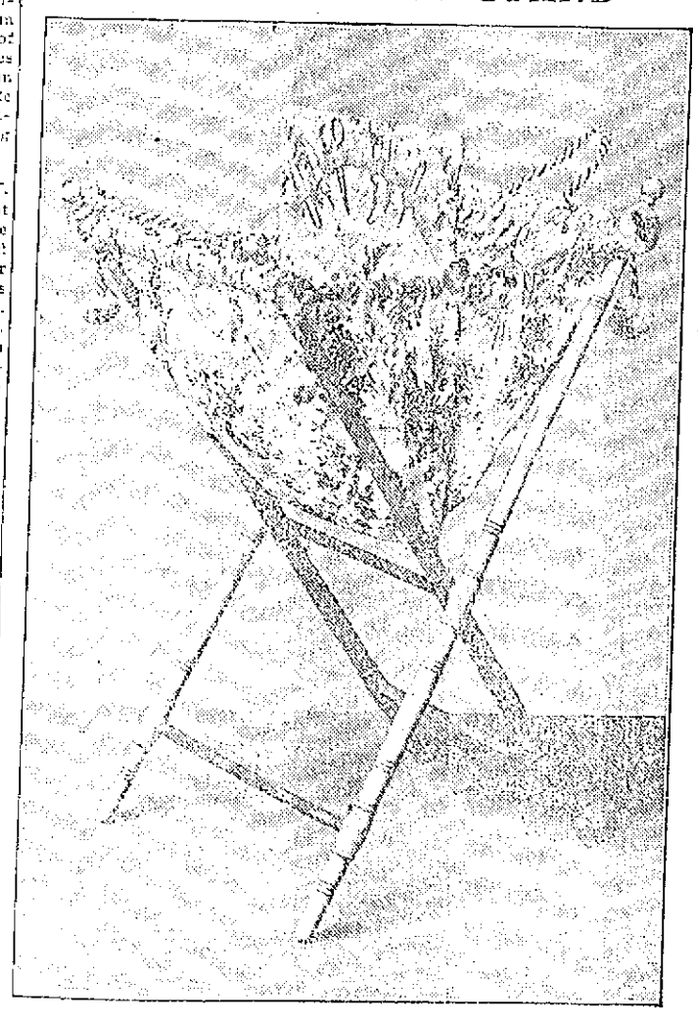

She told him it was impossible for her to live in Paris on that and still keep her good looks.

"No one asks you to," he answered, and when she angrily told him that she was an honest woman he merely shrugged his shoulders and told her she could please herself whether she took his offer or not.

In defense of the man's apparent callousness let it be said that the majority of French mannequins accept these conditions with philosophy. They probably do not like them, but they are essentially cynical and fatalistic, and possibly they come to the conclusion that "such is life," so why make a fuss about it? Thus the dressmaker grows used to their indifference and finds any objection to his accepted conditions merely tiresome.

There are exceptions to these cynical philosophers, of course, and some mannequins are quite virtuous bourgeoise, with husbands and babies at home whom they cherish and love honestly and simply, but the greater number revel in fictitious wealth and ease so long as their beauty lasts.

PORCH SEWING STAND

THIS cretonne covered sewing stand is just the thing for use with the smart willow porch furniture with its cretonne cushions. Such stands cost quite a penny in the fashionable shops, but ingenious women can easily duplicate them or invent something similar just as good. The framework of the stand folds together like a camp chair, and on the cretonne bag are handles by which it may be picked up and carried about. Inside the bag, which consists of cretonne, the sewing utensils are slipped on a flat cretonne covered extension of cardboard, which may be raised or lowered as needed. The spools of thread are arranged on the case beneath the scissors, etc., and a set of needles, including all kinds and sizes, is included. The dividing partition has a semicircular compartment of elastic pockets, in which sewing conveniences may be slipped.

Though capacious enough to accommodate any amount of needlework, mending and darning, the stand is so light and convenient that it may be picked up and carried anywhere.

LOCAL FRATERNITIES

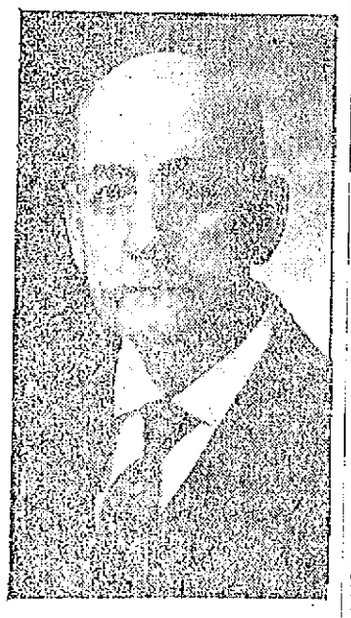

FRED I. VINAL, N. G.,
Grand Union Lodge

Grand Union Lodge, I. O. O. F.—Its History and Present Officers

The order of Odd Fellows in this country dates from April 26, 1819, when Thomas Wildey founded Washington lodge, No. 1, in Baltimore, Md., but prior to this, and running even to 1823, lodges were "self-instituted" in this country, said lodges, each and all, believing themselves to be the only Odd Fellows' lodge existing in the United States at that time. It was then the custom, where five brothers could be got together, to self-institute and operate a lodge. Records were not considered necessary, so no definite knowledge as to their work has been treasured.

Grand Union lodge, No. 7, of this

FRANK B. WRIGHT,
Secretary of Grand Union Lodge

city sprung from the seventh oldest lodge in the country, Merrimack lodge, which was instituted in Lowell on July 18, 1823. Later came Mechanics lodge, instituted Oct. 26, 1842; Lowell lodge was instituted Oct. 9, 1845. The latter surrendered its charter on Dec. 26, 1850, and was reinstituted Feb. 20, 1871. Lincoln lodge was instituted on March 4, 1879.

On April 4, 1907, the four latter lodges consolidated and formed what is now known as Grand Union lodge, No. 7, the first board of officers being as follows:

N. G.—C. C. Thompson.

After the consolidation the lodge first met at Odd Fellows hall, corner of Market and Central streets, which is now known as the republican headquarters. In the 70's, the Carlton building in Merrimack street near Shattuck street, was purchased and remodeled, and the meetings were held there until the Odd Fellows temple in Middlesex street was erected. The meetings are now being held at the latter place every Thursday evening.

There are now 434 names on the membership roll and the lodge is in very good financial condition. Under the efficient care of the present noble grand, Fred I. Vinal, the lodge is very prosperous and its funds as well as its members are increasing rapidly.

Those in charge of the lodge at the present time are the following:

STOCK MARKET

SOME ADVANCES IN THE EARLY BUYING MOVEMENT

Later There was a Downward Tendency—Atchison and Southern Pacific Went Half a Point Below Yesterday's Closing—The Remainder of the List Was Steady

NEW YORK, July 1.—Strength in the Erie issues which were influenced by the report that the road was to be affiliated with the Canadian Pacific was the feature of the stock market at the opening today. Erie first and second preferred gained a point each and the common a substantial fraction. Canadian Pacific remained virtually stationary. A heavy buying movement in Western Maryland advanced that stock 2 1-2. U. S. Steel was not affected by the government report and the stock gained a small fraction. A few of the less active issues were weak.

The general market made only a feeble response to the rise in U. S. Steel to 79 1-4 and prices sloughed off afterwards with Atchison and Southern Pacific leading the decline. The attendance of traders on the floor was small.

The slight advances effected in the early buying movement were lost when the list adopted a more definite downward tendency. Atchison and Southern Pacific were especially heavy and were forced to about half a point below yesterday's closing. The remainder of the list straddled around last night's level.

Erie Railroad Situation

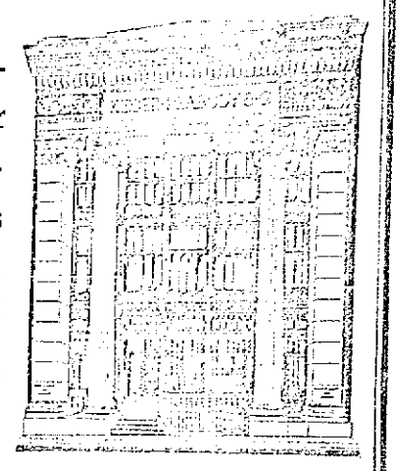

NEW YORK, July 1.—Notwithstanding the sharp rise of Erie railroad stock, which yesterday made a high record for the year, there was no confirmation here today of the report that the controlling interest in the Erie had passed to the Canadian Pacific. It is known, however, that a number of Canadian capitalists have been buying Erie stocks, and yesterday's rise is attributed to this action.

It was learned that while no general traffic arrangements have yet been made between the Erie and the Canadian Pacific, the matter has been discussed informally. Such an arrangement would give the Canadian system entrance into New York via Chicago and Buffalo and afford additional means whereby the Canadian Pacific could meet the competition of the Grand Trunk, which recently acquired a connection between its New England lines and Providence, R. I.

BEAUTIFUL PAGEANT

Great Celebration Was Opened in Taunton Today

TAUNTON, July 1.—Depicting this city from the time of the Indians to the present day one of the most beautiful pageants ever seen in New England was opened here today. The pageant will continue three days. Two hundred persons participated in the exercises. The pageant was presented this afternoon before enthusiastic crowds. Indians at the time of the landing of the Pilgrims first attracted the eyes of the spectators. Then on the attractively decorated shore of the lake was shown the landing of Columbus. In connection with this scene winsome girls dressed as Spanish maidens danced. The next episode dealt with local surroundings, showing the landing here of Pilgrims from Taunton, England and the founding of this city. An attack by Indians and the burial of an Indian chief concluded this scene. Then was shown King George III. in his court and Taunton Green on the eve of the Revolution.

But what stirred the hearts of the spectators the most was the scene depicting Robert Treat Paine leaving Taunton to attach his signature to the Declaration of Independence and again his return to Taunton.

The pageant closed with folk dances.

LINN FOUND ALIVE

Wealthy Chicago Man Disappeared on Yacht Water Witch

COTUIT, July 1.—Kenneth Linn, the wealthy Chicago young man who on Thursday night disappeared on board the yacht Water Witch from this place, was found alive on Popponsett point, seven miles from here, on the shore of Nantucket sound today.

Linn was located this forenoon near a summer residence on Popponsett point, according to word received here by Dr. J. J. Higgins, but nothing was said about his physical condition. It is believed, however, that he must be in a starving condition, as there was no food on board the sloop Water Witch, on which he left this place Thursday night. The sloop was found off West Chop today.

Naked and insane, Linn, who is well to do, boarded the Water Witch on Thursday night after eluding his widowed mother and a man nurse and sailed out of the harbor. His disappearance was made known yesterday and since that time searching parties had searched the Sound and its shores for Linn.

Linn was injured in a baseball game in Tampa, Fla., recently, and the injury affected his mind. To recuperate he was brought here last Monday.

Horace Nickerson of this place and three other young men who had been searching the surrounding country found Linn in the hunting lodge owned by Fred W. Lowell of Cambridge.

Nickerson stated that Linn talked rationally at times and seemed to regret the way he had left Cotuit. To all appearances young Linn was none the worse for his experience. Linn said that he sailed only a few miles in the Water Witch, then put in at the cove. He saw that the Lowell house was vacant so went in there to spend the night.

As soon as they discovered the young man the searchers notified N. R. Sawyer, the nurse from whom Linn escaped, and Linn was taken back to Cotuit.

CATHOLIC CHURCH

AT CANOBIE LAKE TO BE OPENED SOON

The new Catholic church at Canobie lake will be formally opened in about a fortnight. It will be called the Church of the Immaculate Conception. For several years past the cottage occupants at the lake were obliged to attend services in the neighboring cities. A petition from the vacationists as to the need of a church at the lake was tendered the bishop at Manchester. The parish was then established and Rev. Fr. John J. McNamara appointed pastor.

Fr. McNamara has recently purchased the Ida Allen place at Salem Depot for a parochial residence, and there the services are held during the winter season. He has had charge of the local parish for two years, celebrating mass at Salem at 8.15 and at Pelham at 9.30. In the summer the service at Pelham was held at the usual time, but the Salem service was held in the rustic theatre at Canobie Lake park at 10.30.

The new church is an attractive structure situated on the shore of the lake. A large bell for the church has been given by Joseph Jackson, of Lawrence. Several prominent clergymen are to assist the bishop in the dedicatory exercises and among them will be Rev. Fr. Thomas I. Gasson, president of Boston college.

SAFE AND SANE FOURTH

Local Police Instructed to Enforce the Law

Supt. Redmond Welch of the police department believes in a safe and sane Fourth of July and he will make an honest effort to further reduce danger attending the observance of Independence Day. Monday the members of the department will receive instructions from him relative to the use of fireworks by persons on the streets, rowdyism, etc.

In years gone by there has been considerable rowdyism in the vicinity of the centre of the city and the South common on the Fourth and also the "night before." But owing to the fact that it was taken for granted that the occasion was one for jollification the people were given considerable leeway, but this year the members of the department will be notified to stop the jubilant tactics of people who are out to celebrate.

Copies of laws relative to the keeping, storage, transportation, manufacture, sale and use of fireworks and firecrackers will be given the members of the department and it is the intention of Supt. Welch to have the law carried out to the letter.

The following chapter of the law relative to fireworks and firecrackers is self-explanatory.

Section 49.—Except on the fourth day of July and the seventeenth day of June, or the days celebrated as such, the use or discharge of fireworks or firecrackers without a permit from the Chief of the District Police, or the official designated by him to grant such permits, is hereby prohibited.

Section 50.—No rockets, bombs, aerial shells, Roman candles, Italian batteries or set pieces, except the small set pieces, shall be set off except under the charge of an experienced adult person.

Section 51.—No fireworks or firecrackers shall be sold within the limit of any hospital except by special permit.

Section 52. The use of what are technically known as fireworks shall consist of and the use of any mixture containing chlorate of potash and sulphur in theatres or public halls of entertainment are hereby prohibited.

Section 53. Mortars for discharging bombs shall not be used under any circumstance except in an enclosure prepared for a public display of fireworks, and then under the charge of an experienced pyrotechnist, and each mortar so used shall be placed not less than one-third of its length below the surface of the ground.

Section 54. In the display of fireworks great care shall be exercised by the management and those in authority present that the place which the bystanders occupy shall be beyond the danger area. By danger area is meant in this case such a distance from the point of display that no bystander's bodily safety will be endangered by the accidental discharge of the fireworks.

Section 55. No serpents, rockets, bombs or set pieces of fireworks shall be set off in a public street or public way.

Section 56. No illuminating fireworks for display shall be set off or fired except between the hours of 7 o'clock in the afternoon and 12 o'clock midnight.

Section 57. No smoking shall be allowed in any place where fireworks or firecrackers are handled in stock for sale or display.

No torpedo larger than three-fourths of an inch in diameter can be kept or sold and all torpedoes must be packed with sawdust. The law also provides that no sparklers with match or other sensitive heads be kept or sold.

MAN PROBABLY DROWNED

EAST PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 1.—Following the disappearance of James Carrigan, 28, from his home and the finding of his hat in an empty boat on Phillipsdale pond today, the police began this afternoon to drag the pond in the belief that he had been drowned. Carrigan did not report at his place of employment this morning and later the boat containing his hat and a bottle of whiskey was found on the pond.

CHIEF HOSMER RETURNS

Chief E. S. Hosmer of the fire department returned to Lowell today after a three weeks' vacation spent at Juniper Point, Salem. He contracted a severe cold a little over a month ago and that together with the strenuous work he had to do during the time of the grass fires decided to take his vacation earlier this year than has been his practice in the past. He is much improved in health and stated to a representative of The Sun that he had a very enjoyable time and instead of being bothered with the heat that the weather was rather cool. Mrs. Hosmer accompanied her husband.

GOING TO CANADA

FALL RIVER, July 1.—In consequence of the heavy curtailment in the production of cotton mills many operatives have left for Canada. The curtailment this week amounted to 175,000 pieces of print goods.

UNDER NESMITH WILL

FRANK E. DUNBAR,
One of the Trustees of the Nesmith Estate

Granite State Has Claims That May Amount to Nothing

A short time ago Governor Bass of New Hampshire visited Pollard avenue in this city to consider a proposition that it be closed. The governor represented the state of New Hampshire as beneficiary of the will of John Nesmith, giving the property to the state after the death of his children.

The proposition is still pending and is bothering the trustees of the Hildreth building which is being extended to Paige street.

The interest of the Granite State in the property is such that it may never amount to anything financially, but if held continuously over the property now owned by the Nesmith Heirs in conjunction with others, it will prove burdensome to the owners and a restriction upon the free use and development of the property. For this reason, it is understood, that negotiations are under way to have the state release its claim upon the property for a cash consideration. But no such agreement would be legal without the sanction of the court.

The representatives of the Nesmith estate are Frank E. Dunbar, George S. Motley and Joseph A. Nesmith. The report in business circles has been that if the proposition to the governor and council of New Hampshire is accepted there will be a large business block put up on the property.

Thanked by the Legislature.

Men who are well informed on the matter say that the New Hampshire legislature at the last session passed an act authorizing the governor and council to conduct negotiations with the Nesmith heirs. It is also reported that some time after the bequest to the state of New Hampshire became known, the legislature adopted resolutions thanking Mr. Nesmith.

There is no record in the probate court office in Cambridge that the state of New Hampshire accepted the conditions of the gift, but business men say that it is not unusual, as the state does not receive the gift until the last surviving child of Hon. John Nesmith is dead.

Mr. Nesmith died Oct. 15, 1869. In addition to his widow, the surviving children mentioned in the will were Eliza J., Harriet B., Mary, James E. and Joseph A. Nesmith.

Provisions of the Will

In the codicil to his will Mr. Nesmith said: "I further order and direct that my trustees shall not deliver, make over or convey to the state of New Hampshire the real estate situated at the corner of John and Merrimack streets, Lowell, Mass., described in my said will, nor the said reserved sum of $60,000, or what remains thereof at the decease of my last surviving child mentioned in said will, nor any part of the same, until said state shall have, by proper legislation, accepted the said real estate and said reserved sum for the use mentioned in my said will and upon the conditions following:

"First, that said state shall forever hold said real estate at the corner of John and Merrimack streets and shall neither sell nor dispose of the same nor any part thereof, nor shall lease the same nor any part thereof for a longer term than five years at one time nor shall in any way, directly or indirectly, make or permit any agreement or arrangement whereby said state shall part with the full control thereof without any restriction except so far as the same may be abridged by such a tenancy for a time no greater than five years."

Designed for the Blind

Provision is made in the second section of the will for keeping the buildings in repair and for rebuilding. The third section of the codicil was:

"That said state shall become bound, on receiving the said reserved sum of $60,000 or what remains thereof after the decease of my last surviving child, to pay and make good as the income thereof the amount of 6 per cent per annum thereof, which said income, together with the rents of said real estate, after defraying all necessary expenses thereon, including insurance if made, shall be set aside and constitute a fund to be known as the Nesmith fund, which fund shall be annually applied forever to the aid, support and education of the indigent blind of the state of New Hampshire."

This codicil was made April 28, 1869, and was witnessed by Geo. W. Coburn, Geo. W. Weymouth and Benjamin Goddard.

The Merchants bank property was mentioned in the will as forming a portion of the Nesmith property. The name of John P. Nesmith of New York city was also mentioned in the will as a trustee in common with John Nesmith in a strip of property.

Sold to an Italian Countess

John P. Nesmith of New York City is reported to have disposed of his share of the property to representatives of an Italian countess living in New York city, but the assessors' books of Lowell do not give anyone but the Nesmith heirs as owners of the property.

In the last report on file in the probate office relative to the Nesmith estate it was written that the amount on hand of the $60,000 mentioned in the codicil of Mr. Nesmith was $5,-951.52.

Four Surviving Children

There are four surviving children of Hon. John Nesmith, three of whom live in Lowell.

It has been reported that if the governor and council of New Hampshire consent to the proposition said to have been made to them by representatives of the Nesmith heirs a bill in equity will be filed in the Massachusetts supreme court to dismiss the trust under the will of Mr. Nesmith.

FIREMEN ARE BUSY

Property Owners Must Clear Rubbish

Members of the fire department are now on their annual tour of inspection of the territory in their respective districts and wherever rubbish has been found or places where fire might be caused by the careless use of firecrackers or fireworks the owners or tenants of the premises have been notified to have the rubbish removed and the place protected. This is done annually before the Fourth. Several men from each company who started out yesterday were also working today and it is expected that the inspection will be completed Monday.

All of the firemen will be on duty on the Fourth and also the night before and the call men have been notified not to go any great distance from their respective stations.

THE STATE SENATE

KILLED BILL TAXING TRANSFER OF STOCKS

BOSTON, July 1.—The bill providing for the taxation of the transfer of stocks was killed in the senate today. It may be reconsidered Wednesday when the senate reconvenes.

BLESSING OF GROTTO

HAS BEEN POSTPONED UNTIL LABOR DAY

Plans are now being formulated to change the date of the blessing of the grotto of Notre Dame de Lourdes erected on the grounds of the French American orphanage in Pawtucket street, from August 20th, as it was first planned, to September 4, Labor day. The reason for the shifting of dates is that the celebration can be held on a larger scale on the latter date than on the previous date which will be a Sunday.

For the purpose of making the change, a meeting of all the presidents of the French societies as well as the captains of the guards, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock at the C. M. A. C. hall. The meeting is called by the pastor of St. Joseph's parish, Rev. Fr. Watelle, O. M. I., and he hopes that all members of the committee in charge of the celebration will be present.

The women of the parish will hold a meeting tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock at the C. M. A. C. hall. The presidents of the following societies are invited to attend: Notre Dame de Bonsecours, Cercle d'Youville, Court Blanche de Castille, F. A. P., Notre Dame de Lourdes sodality and the Children of Mary sodality. The meeting will be presided over by Rev. Fr. Watelle, O. M. I., who will tell the women what is expected from their societies. It is probable that the latter will also make arrangements for floats for the parade.

PLOT AGAINST GOVERNMENT

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of Salvador, July 1.—An alleged plot against the government has been discovered here. Dr. Carlos Francisco Bardano, alleged to be allied with former President Prudencio Alfaro, was arrested at his home today. In the house were supplies of ammunition, press material for making bombs and other projectiles.

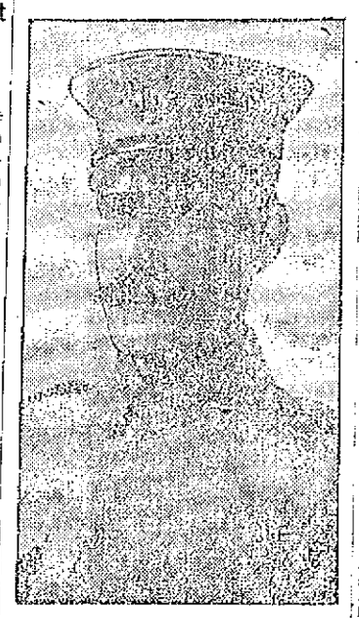

TO RECOGNIZE DOCKMEN'S UNION

LIVERPOOL, July 1.—It was officially announced this evening that the Cunard, the White Star and other "combine" lines and the Harrison Line had agreed to recognize the dockmen's union and attend a conference within a month for the settlement of the question of wages and the conditions of employment.

CO. K ENTERTAINED

But They Did Some Road Work First

The members of Company K, Sixth regiment, combined business with pleasure last evening when they hiked out to Billerica Centre, as if they were going to war and wound up at the hospitable residence of First Sergeant Harry Sheldon where they were used like coronation idols, otherwise, called kings. On the way out the company got in a little campaign work such as advance guard, patrol work and other stunts in the tactics that are all Greek to a layman. On arrival at Sergeant Sheldon's home, which was prettily decorated in honor of their visit, they discarded all military formality and sat down to a repast. Their celebrated orchestra was on hand and a number of delightful musical numbers were given. There were songs and stories and a general good time until the last car when the militiamen forgot their fondness for hiking and rode back to Lowell.

CAPT. JAMES N. GREIG,
Of Co. K

Planned by Dr. Waller and Frank McCool

Dr. S. R. Waller and Frank L. McCool are two well known citizens who are in for a safe and sane Fourth of July. Both being well known militiamen they probably got enough of strenuous patriotic work ordinarily without going out of their way on the glorious holiday. They left town this afternoon for the sequestered precincts of deciduous Lake Winnipesaukee, whence the fickle Merrimack river gets its start in life. Their canoes they sent ahead of them by freight and after a few days at the lake they intend to paddle back all the way to Lowell following the river from its source to the Pawtucket Falls.

DR. S. R. WALLER

DIED SUDDENLY AT WOLFBORO, N. H., TODAY

WOLFBORO, N. H., July 1.—Announcement was made today of the sudden death last night of Charles D. Berry, a former mayor of Portsmouth, N. H., and before that time a shoe manufacturer at Lynn, Mass. Mr. Berry, who was 89 years old, dropped dead in the stable at his summer home in this town. Heart disease was the cause of death.

After leaving Lynn, more than 20 years ago, Mr. Berry went to Portsmouth, where he engaged in shoe manufacturing and in 1883 and 1884 was mayor of the city. He is survived by a widow and a son.

ANNUAL OUTING

OF THE GORHAM STREET METHODIST CHURCH

Four car loads of parishioners of the Gorham street Methodist church and friends left the corner of Gorham and Ellsworth streets at 2 o'clock this afternoon and went to Milligan's grove where an outing was enjoyed. Many people who were unable to take the special cars left on the regular cars later in the afternoon.

Arriving on the grounds a fine program of sports was carried out and the affair proved to be a success in every particular. The Rev. Mr. Matthews was present and had general charge of the outing.

"A soldier of fortune is a vagabond who fights for anybody who asks him, and then puts up an awful scream for help from his own country when he gets into trouble."

EQUIPMENT.

"I'm going abroad. What ought I to have on the boat?"

"A motor car, a letter of credit, a thoroughbred dog, a bridge set, a sound stomach and patience."

THEN HE DID.

"Well, you can't very well kiss me after you go."

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

DOMINION DAY

JULY 1.—Today is a holiday in Canada because it is "Dominion Day." That is sufficient excuse for the native to "swell with pride" for the simple reason that with the growth of the country and the flirting that has taken place over "Reciprocity," little Miss Canada is feeling like the young lady with her first long dress. Preceding 1867 "Canada" was the region from Labrador to the watershed west of Lake Superior. Its neighbors were Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and that vast western territory known as the Hudson Bay company. Each section had its own ideas, laws and religion and it took some fine figuring to work out a plan that would weld and hold all together under one form of government. But it was finally accomplished, and on July 1, 1867 the "British North American act," was O. K.'d by the British parliament and the Dominion of Canada was launched with Sir John A. Macdonald at the teller of the ship of state. Oddly enough the plan adopted was first suggested by our old friend Ben Franklin.

BOARD OF TRADE KICKS

And Gets Assurance of an 8.59 Train Daily

Lowell will have a train to Boston at 8.59 every morning, for which the gods and the board of trade be praised.

The new train schedule recently in vogue caused the greatest kind of a complaint through the city and with the reputation that the board of trade has earned in the past year or more for doing things the complaints were sent in to the board, and that body appointed Secretary Murphy who is fast acquiring a reputation as a "fixer" to confer with the Boston and Maine officials relative to the matter.

Secretary Murphy did a little investigating before proceeding to the front and found that in five days since the new train started was 17 mins. late on the first day; three minutes, the second; nine minutes the third; three minutes the fourth and on time the fifth. But the train is made up at Plymouth, N. H., and by the time it gets to Lowell it is crowded to overflowing and is hot and dirty. He also found that the 8.48 train from Lowell is generally patronized from regular patrons who ride on monthly tickets and hence do not pay the company as much as transients which might have had something to do with the discontinuance of it.

Yesterday Secretary Murphy had a conference in Boston with C. M. Burt, general passenger agent; General Superintendent C. E. Lee, and Mr. Ferguson, private secretary to General Manager Barr, at which the matter was discussed at length.

The outcome of the conference was an important concession on the part of the Boston and Maine to the effect that if the Plymouth train is more than 10 minutes late on any morning a special will be made up to run express to Lowell, leaving the station at 8.59 and if the Plymouth train is less than 10 minutes late the Lowell public will be asked to wait for the regular. Thus Lowell people will not have more than 10 minutes to wait for the 8.55 train.

But Secretary Murphy was not quite satisfied with this concession inasmuch as Mr. Barr, the general manager, was not present personally and hence upon his return to his office he addressed the following letter to the general manager:

Lowell, Mass., June 30, 1911.
Frank Barr, Third Vice President and General Manager, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir—Many complaints have been received in regard to the discontinuance of the 8.48 train to Boston. The train was patronized by people who went to Boston every day, and the arrival in Boston was in season to accommodate business men and men obliged to go to court and the stock exchange.

At present the train leaving Lowell at 8.59, coming from the north, is usually late and crowded. The new schedule provides no accommodation between the hours of eight and nine, and if the 8.59 train is late there is no express train from 7.58 to 9.45.

The inconvenience to Lowell people is of such a nature as to cause many vigorous protests and complaints, and the matter is presented for your consideration, with the hope that you can effect a solution to the existing conditions.

Respectfully yours,
Lowell Board of Trade,
John H. Murphy, Secretary.

Mr. Murphy expects a reply within a few days.

SEATS AT FIREWORKS

Inspector Dow May Have to Hire Chairs

James Dow, inspector of buildings, is looking for chairs to accommodate the city council members while the fireworks are in session on the South common Tuesday night. It would be an easy matter for Mr. Dow to get the chairs if the old scheme of borrowing them from the school department was still in vogue, but that very neighborly practice has been done away with and the school committee refuses to allow their chairs to be taken from the schools.

It looks as if Mr. Dow would have to hire chairs for the occasion at about ten cents per copy and then there will be a scrap over the question as to whose appropriation should be touched for the seats. Of course the chairs will have to be provided. It would be a measly shame to oblige these noble statesmen to stand while rockets were making holes in the atmosphere above their heads. The public can stand if it wants to but the men who are reducing the tax rate every year must have seats. The police, however, will take the precaution to rope the enclosure where the city government members are seated and the members are requested to enter at a point opposite the jail, at the corner of Thorndike and Highland streets. No tickets have been issued.

All of Lowell's playgrounds will be thrown open to boys and girls, big and little, next week. The grounds on the South common, of course, will not open until Wednesday because of the Fourth of July "doings" there, but the North common and other playgrounds will open on Monday.

The amount of money derived from the sale of lots on the South common this year, it is stated, will be much smaller than in former years. It seems that some who purchased lots last year and the year before failed to do better than pay expenses and some of them didn't do even as well as that. There'll be attractions enough, however, to make the place interesting.

THE LOSS IS $40,000

Lumber Yard District at Burlington, Vt. Threatened by Fire

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 1.—Because there was a dead calm over Lake Champlain early this morning Burlington was saved from a fire disaster. Fire destroyed the Lake Champlain Yacht club house, tenanted by wealthy New York summer people, and would have swept through the big lumber yard district adjoining had there been even a slight breeze stirring.

The yacht club house occupied a private pier. The fire had burned through the roof when discovered and attempts to save the club's costly furnishings were abandoned. Aided by the calm the combined firefighting force of the city confined the blaze to the single structure. The loss is estimated at $40,000. Commodore Wetherbee announced that the club would rebuild immediately in preparation for the annual midsummer regatta of August 11.

AMERICAN AVIATOR

Travelled at Rate of 80 Miles an Hour

EASTCHURCH, England July 1.—In a practice spin over the course of today's competition for the international aviation cup, Charles Weymann, the American, did the circuit at a speed of 80 miles an hour.

The present event requires 25 trips around a circular course, making a total distance of 93.2 miles. The contest is on the Royal Aero Club's grounds on the isle of Sheppey, a course regarded as dangerous. One hundred members of the Royal engineers of Chatham patrolled the grounds.

Three nations—America, France and Great Britain—were represented. The sole American competitor was Weymann. France sent Edouard Nieuport and M. Chevalier; while Great Britain has three, Alec Ogilvie, Gustav Hamel and D. Grahame-Gilmour.

Grahame-White pleaded engagements as an excuse for not defending his title, won at Belmont Park, L. I. last year.

Hamel was the first to get away. He started in a strong wind and had not completed the first lap when his machine pitched violently and the aviator was thrown out, falling 50 feet. The airman was not much hurt. It was found that Hamel's mishap was due to his attempt at a too short a turn which caused his machine to overturn. The aeroplane was badly smashed. Hamel's face was cut and he received a few body bruises.

Soon after this accident Chevalier started. He negotiated several laps at tremendous speed but in the 12th lap, while turning, he got into difficulties and fell with his machine to the ground. The aviator was not hurt.

Weymann completed the full course of 93.2 miles in one hour and 11 minutes. It is almost certain that the American will be the winner of the cup.

JOSEPH NADEAU

FORMER ASSISTANT BANDMASTER GUEST OF HIS SISTER

Mr. Joseph Alphonse Nadeau, formerly assistant bandmaster aboard the U. S. North Dakota, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Lucien Daigle, of Lakeview avenue. Mr. Nadeau has severed his connection with the U. S. Marine corps after serving Uncle Sam for the past eight years. He received an honorable discharge a week ago yesterday, and he intends settling in this city.

Mr. Nadeau while in the service has visited about every country in the world and when he speaks about his different trips he is very interesting. In 1907 when the U. S. cruise made the trip around the world Mr. Nadeau was aboard the Missouri. The young man in the course of his voyages has learned several languages and has also made a very nice collection of antiques.

Heirs' Sale of Building Lots
AT PUBLIC AUCTION
Saturday, July 8th, 1911, at 2.30 o'clock P. M.

I will sell at absolute auction sale to the highest bidders, 10 exceedingly choice lots. They are situated on Bedford avenue, Lexington avenue, Melrose avenue, Shirley avenue, and Townsend avenue, and are all facing directly on the State boulevard. The lots vary in size, containing from 16,174 feet to 24,000 square feet of land, and will be sold in lots to suit purchasers. They have a large frontage on the boulevard and a proportionate depth, which makes them most attractive for the erection of a home and give an opportunity for a large garden. The location is excellent, within eight minutes' walk of the Varnum avenue line of electric cars, and on the Pawtucket boulevard, the most traveled street in the city, it being the direct line to Tyngsboro, Nashua and all points north. The lots are level and the soil is the very best that lies out doors. The avenues are 40 feet wide and are accepted by the city. This sale presents an excellent chance for anyone desirous of purchasing a building site in a first class locality where the surroundings are of the very best and the lots, inasmuch as they are of good size, containing from a quarter to half an acre of land, affords a splendid chance for anyone to raise all their own garden truck. When out for a walk or drive, go up the state boulevard, just above Dunbar avenue, and look these lots over as they will be sold on the day and hour advertised to whomsoever will bid the most for them.

Terms: $50 must be paid to the auctioneer on each lot as soon as struck off. CLARENCE G. COBURN, For the Heirs.

WOMAN TESTIFIED

Miss Frances Carroll Principal Witness at Lorimer Inquiry

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Miss Frances Carroll, telephone operator in the office of the Edward Hines Lumber Co., had the distinction today of being the first woman to take the witness stand in the present Lorimer inquiry. She testified regarding telephone conversations held by Edward Hines on May 26, the day Senator Lorimer was elected.

Miss Carroll declared that she overheard the conversation between Governor Deneen and Mr. Hines and detailed it practically as Mr. Hines had described it.

Fred Carney, of the Carney Lumber Co. of Mariner, Wis., testified in corroboration of Hines' description of how Funk approached him at the Union League club.

The committee decided to take a recess from this afternoon until July 13, when it will reconvene in Washington instead of Chicago as originally planned.

SCENES IN SQUARE

Musings of One Who Watched People

In Merrimack square, for instance—say,
Ain't it fun lookin' along the way
At pretty girls, at latest styles
In hats and neckties and grins and smiles;
At crowds and faces and dresses and shoes,
At sweet young couples by twos and twos Wanderin' on Merrimack street, and then
Back to the Square and away again.

Jewelry windows—now, they're the things,
With chains and watches and pins and rings;
And clothing emporiums—my, oh, my,
Such styles and patterns to catch the eye;
And then while you're looking first thing a face
Of childhood beauty and summertime grace
Shines through the crowd to soft and sweet—
Lookin' at things along the street.

One place looks candy and another looks eats—
Tomatoes and salmon and pies and meats—
And maybe a crowd is gatherin' round
Some wayoff kind of a hammerin' sound,
And you bend your head and you twist your neck
To look at a handful of men like a speck
On top of a temple of steel swing high
The red hot bolts as they sizzle and fly.
A new kind of dodge for publicity
there,

A man sellin' pencils from out of the chair
That he rolls with a big fat arm; or here
A dog actin' funny, a horse actin' queer,
An auto truck blowin' its way through the town.
And then an old street with its feet
dippin' down
To the river, to dabble and lave
Its heat in the cool of the would be wave.
Lookin' at things—it's the life of the day,

With people out walkin' the toilin'
way.
Er shoppin', or sportin', no tellin' what fun
Just lookin' brings into this life; such a sun
Of wonder and beauty, of music and art,
Of feeling and sympathy down in the heart
To mingle and mix with the sad and the sweet,
While lookin' at things along the street.

AVIATOR ATWOOD

Made Trip From New London to New York in Biplane

NEW YORK, July 1.—The most spectacular flight in the history of American aviation was ended at Governors Island this morning by Harry N. Atwood with a wonderful circle about the Singer tower, almost grazing the roofs of the craggy sky-scraper below. Nothing so daring has ever been attempted by an aviator before. In France the Eifel tower has been circled but the baffling cross-currents from the criss-cross of canyons and cliffs of lower Manhattan island had hitherto daunted all American aviators.

Atwood rose from New London at five minutes past seven this morning with the intention of flying down the Connecticut shore and crossing Long Island sound to the aviation field at Mineola. When he got into the air he found his motor humming so steadily and the air currents so favorable that his confidence grew and instead of crossing the sound he turned inland at Mount Vernon, lowered like a falcon to reconnoiter and headed for Hell gate and the mouth of the East river. Below him lay an uninterrupted stretch of rooftops, to touch any one of which would mean instant destruction. Before him stretched the narrow and tortuous course of the river, crowded with traffic and spanned by four lofty steel bridges.

Circled the Singer Tower

As if playing with his perils, Atwood crossed the river to Long Island City near the Williamsburg bridge, turned back to Manhattan island, crossing the river a second time, flew over the city proper at no great altitude to the lower end of the island, circled the Singer tower, deflected his course past Trinity church and eastward south of the Liberty tower and the new Bankers Trust building to Wall street and hovered in smooth spirals for a moment over the amazed curb brokers in Broad street below.

The demonstration was as complete as it lay in the power of human achievement to make it. Hitherto it has been a principle strictly held to by all aviators that whenever there was a dangerous spot to cross the higher one could rise the safer. It had been calculated that for every foot of drop a properly executed volplane could carry the aeroplane forward three feet. Thus, to glide safely out of danger to a proper landing place, it was only necessary to rise high enough. But Atwood, disregarding all the rules of prudence and experience, made his turn of the Singer tower at a height of 525 feet from the pavements, a little more than 80 feet below the pinnacle of the tower and barely above the jagged Gothic roof of the City Investment building, directly below and beside the tower.

The fluttering flag at the top of the tower showed there was a wind blowing of perhaps 15 or 20 miles an hour—not enough to bother Atwood in his steady-going Wright-Burgess biplane. Theatrical as was the feat in its accomplishment it was prefaced by no theatrical announcements. Only a few people in the city knew that Atwood was on his way and of these still fewer understood that he intended to cross and re-cross Manhattan island. Everybody believed that he would take a safer, more prosaic path across low lying, level Long Island.

So, although the flight was witnessed by hundreds of thousands from the streets, the rooftops were not black with spectators as they otherwise would have been. As one broker said, "He just got up and did it."

Atwood's flight today is really a continuation of his flight yesterday from Squantum field, Boston, to New London, where he cut fancy figures above the winning Harvard shell as it drew to the finish line in the eight-oared 'varsity race. His distance then was 135 miles, covered in two hours and ten minutes. The best previous record with a passenger was 106 miles, made by P. P. Parmalee, a Wright pupil with Lieut. Foulois, U. S. A., as passenger. Atwood carried his mechanician for a companion yesterday and repeated the feat today. His distance this morning, estimated from the map is 122 miles and his time was three hours and 20 minutes.

Rising from New London at 7.05 a. m. he passed over Bridgeport, Conn. at 8.28 a. m. At South Norwalk, which he reached at 8.50 he was well out over the Sound, flying at an even level. Between Bridgeport and New Haven a moving passenger train on the New Haven road tickled his fancy and, descending within easy sight of the amazed passengers, he followed it, headed it, crossed the tracks in front of the locomotive and, repeating his performance, made three complete circles of the train before he resumed his southward course. At Port Chester the aviator was still following the shore of the Sound at 9.03. Twelve minutes later he passed over Larchmont and it was here that his determination to dare the hazardous flights over Broadway was made.

To the finish of the run Atwood's flight was one continuous succession of perils spurned and mastered.

Atwood was stiff and cramped when he climbed out of the machine but cheerful and brisk.

"It's a pity I had to land," he said, "but I did. After crossing the Williamsburg bridge I ran out of gasoline and landed in Long Island City in a vacant lot behind the gas tanks of the Astoria works to take on two gallons. Very few people were there and I suppose most of the city thought I had made an uninterrupted flight. The fact that I didn't will have some effect on my chances for new records. I shall not know just where I stand until I have made more accurate computation. You tell me the people on the street think I circled the Singer tower. That's another mistake. I attempted it but a gust of wind caught me as I was rounding the corner and buffeted me backward so rudely that I did not care to continue the attempt. I caught my own time at rising from New London as 7:07 and at Governors Island at 10.10. My intention was to follow the shore and cross the Sound to Long Island but I was unable to get a steamer to follow me and, as I had no pontoons, I was afraid to risk the chance of falling into the water."

Atwood could not explain the psychology by which, to avoid the danger of drowning, he courted dangers ten times as imminent over the rooftops of Manhattan. Continuing the description of his flight, he said:

"It was good sailing all the way to New Haven but after that the air became more boisterous and tricky. Over the roof tops of the city and especially in the neighborhood of the skyscrapers it was, of course, worse than anywhere else and I had some rather steep plunges but I can't recall that I felt myself at any time frightened and I never was in danger of losing my control.

"You tell me that everybody in the city thought that I carried Fred Fleet, my mechanician. That is also wrong. I flew alone. My average speed I estimate roughly at 55 miles an hour."

Atwood will return to his home in Boston at 5 o'clock today. His machine will remain at Governors Island for at least two or three days. He said he did not know whether he should eventually attempt the return trip by aeroplane to Boston or not.

BRIEF MILL VACATIONS

The Holiday Will Bring a Needed Respite

Most of the mill operatives and other factory employes will enjoy a brief vacation next week and some of them will have all of next week to themselves. The celebration will start on the Night before with five big bon-fires and a band concert and there'll be something doing all the time afterward until the holiday has passed into history.

The Night Before

Of course the Midway will be going on the common but that goes for 18 hours. Then there will be the midway at Columbus Park.

At 10.30 a band concert for which the band stand was erected today will be held on Bunker Hill off Lakeview avenue, and at midnight Major Josiah Fiske's masterpiece, a gigantic bonfire will be set off. Simultaneously bonfires will be lighted by the O. M. I. Cadets in Stackpole street opposite the home of Daniel F. Sullivan, the well known coal dealer, not that there'll be any fine screened or bituminous among the ingredients. At the Fair Grounds where Alderman Flanagan is going to do the lighting; at Ayer city where a monster pile has been erected and at Perry street where the youngsters of the neighborhood will show their patriotism in a sheet of flame.

The regular city program for the Fourth of July, as arranged by the special committee on Fourth of July is as follows:

Ringing of school and mill bells and playing of St. Anne's and St. Patrick's chimes at sunrise, noon and sunset.

Ball game between Emmets and Dixwells, North common, 10 o'clock.

Marathon race, five miles, North common, 2 p. m.

Fireworks, South common, 8 p. m.

Band concert during fireworks display.

Band concert at French orphanage in Merrimack street between 7.30 and 9.30 p. m.

There will be two band concerts between 10 and 12 o'clock on the night before, one at the Fair grounds and the other at Bunker Hill, West Centralville.

But a host of other celebrations have been arranged. The Immaculate Conception parish preparatory to the O. M. I. bonfire is to have a night before celebration at Columbus park. The citizens of West Centralville are to have a fine display of fireworks independent of what the city is setting off. This display will be set off in front of St. Louis' church. At the French Orphanage a fine time is assured in connection with the band concert. At the city farm the Bachelor club will hold forth and there will be numerous smaller celebrations throughout the city.

Lowell will play Lynn at Spalding park at 3 o'clock.

YOUNG GIRL IS MISSING

Her Mother Thinks That She Has Eloped With Former Boarder

Mr. and Mrs. Onesime Dube of 42 Lee street have reported the disappearance of their 17-year-old daughter, Albina Dube, who left home a week ago last Monday, and who has not returned. The parents fear that the young girl eloped with a young man who formerly lived with the Dube family. The police have been notified of the disappearance of the couple and a description as well as photos of the young man and young woman were given them, but as yet no trace of either has been found.

ALBINA DUBE

Mrs. Dube is grieved over the disappearance of her daughter. When interviewed by a Sun reporter this morning, Mrs. Dube related the following story:

"About a year ago a man about 28 years came to live here. He was sort of a linguist for he could speak several languages, among them French and English. Shortly after his arrival I noticed that he was courting my daughter Albina, who was then about 16 years of age, and she seemed to take a liking to him. I did not want my daughter to keep company with this man, so the best way to do was to turn him out, and so I did. So far as I could learn, he then went to Italy and returned to this country a short time later. Then he began corresponding with my daughter, sending the letters to another woman who also lived here. I got hold of several of the letters and in all those I saw he would propose an elopement. A week ago last Sunday he arrived in this city and hired a room in Moody street, paying two weeks' rent in advance, but I did not see him around my home.

"A week ago last Monday my daughter came home to dinner and after partaking of a hearty meal left for her work. A few minutes later two young girls came to the house and told me that Albina and this man were seen boarding a Lawrence bound car. The police were notified and my husband immediately went to Lawrence, but no clew of the couple could be found. A few days later we heard that the two were seen in Lynn, and there again investigations were made, but the efforts were fruitless."

The young girl was employed in the spooling department of the Massachusetts mills where there is still a pay coming to her. When she left home she wore a short blue skirt and blue waist, a long fleecy blue coat, a white hat and black low shoes. She is about 5 feet tall and is a pretty brunette. Her hair is of a dark shade.

MIDWAY ATTRACTION

Big Affair to be Held in Columbus Park

The garden party to be held the "Night Before" in aid of the Immaculate Conception church, on the Columbus park grounds, promises to be a brilliant affair, for the various committees are working diligently on several novel features. There will be band concerts and dancing, while the "Midway" will rival the celebrated Coney Island. The grounds will be brilliantly illuminated, and in every particular the affair will be a conspicuous success.

From 5 to 7 o'clock the women in charge will serve a bean supper to which clerks in the stores are specially invited. At 3 o'clock the grounds will be thrown open to the children of the city. Tents have been raised, stages erected, incandescents and arc lights placed in position and the affair promises to be the biggest ever held in Lowell.

A BRILLIANT EVENT

Will be Held by Mystic Nobles Sunday

What promises to be a notable and at the same time brilliant affair will take place tomorrow afternoon in Boston, when the initiatory degree will be exemplified on about 300 candidates for admission into the Mystic Nobles of Granada, making the largest class since the inception of the order. The following cities will be represented at the degree, Lowell, Worcester, Fall River, Springfield, Portland, Me., Manchester, N. H., Providence, R. I., Pawtucket, R. I., New Haven, and Bridgeport, Conn. and Boston Caravan has made elaborate preparations for the entertainment of the gathering which altogether will number 1000 men. The Lowell men to the number of about 100 will leave here on the 2.28 train and on arriving in Boston a committee will be in waiting to escort the visitors to Granada hall. The doors will close at 4 p. m. at which time the ceremonies will open. Dinner will be served followed by speech-making and an entertainment. The arrangements in Lowell are in the hands of Dr. Wm. M. Collins, grand monarch of Lowell Caravan.

LETTER CARRIERS

WILL MAKE ONE DELIVERY OR MAIL ON THE FOURTH

Do not be angry if you do not get your mail in the afternoon on the Fourth, for the postoffice employes will only work in the forenoon on that day. The carriers will make but one delivery and that at 7.30 o'clock in the forenoon, while the other departments will be closed the rest of the day after this time.

DELEGATES CHOSEN

Messrs. Thomas Moss and Jeremiah McGlinchey have been chosen as delegates by Thomas Talbot conclave, Knights of Sherwood, F. of A., as delegates to the supreme conclave to be held at Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 17, and Messrs. William A. Kelley and William H. Stafford have been selected as alternates.

The conclave is also planning for its annual outing to be held at Whelton farm in the latter part of July, and the following committee has been appointed to look after arrangements: Al McDougall chairman, John Barrett, Walter Watkins, Matthew Whelton, James Ready and Thomas Moss. The day will be an event in the history of the conclave if everything turns out right, and the affair will be for the members of the conclave and their families.

STREET COMMITTEE

Considered a Number of Petitions Last Night

The committee on streets held a long drawn out meeting last night, gave hearings and passed upon many petitions. Because of a meeting of the sewer committee the committee on streets did not get together until after ten o'clock.

The first up was the proposition for the extension of Stronquist avenue. Mr. O'Neil, who owns land in the vicinity, objected to the extension of the avenue on a straight line because, he said, it would come in too close proximity to the back of his house. He refused to set a price on his land. It was finally voted that the extension be made and that $200 be awarded to Peter O'Neil, that Mary J. O'Neil be given two cents a foot, Charles O'Neil three cents a foot and Mary C. O'Neil six cents a foot.

The committee voted to recommend a loan of $20,000 for a reinforced concrete bridge in Market street over the Merrimack canal, and for the repair of bridges in East Merrimack, Newhall, Jefferson and Aiken streets.

The committee voted the recommendation that the asphalt for roads be furnished by the Pioneer, the Bermudes and the Gulf Refining companies.

On other petitions the committee took action as follows:

Petition of Deborah R. Hill and others, that Suffolk street be watered from Moody street to Dodge street. Granted.

Petition of Daniel F. Sullivan and others that Andrews street be watered from Lawrence street to Moore street. Granted.

Petition of Meyer Klain and others that Howard street be watered from the schoolhouse to Hale street. Voted.

Petition of M. Syderman that Liberty street be watered from Lane street to Smith street. Leave to withdraw.

Petition of Robert P. Wotton and others and Mrs. E. T. Rowell and others that Humphrey street be watered. Leave to withdraw.

Petition of H. A. Thompson and others that Westford street be watered from Sayles street to Gibson street. Granted.

Petition of Charles H. Howe and others that Varney street be watered from School street to Fletcher street. Voted.

Petition of Margaret Flynn to accept a portion of Blair street, not already accepted, and to lay sidewalks of edgestones and cinders on the westerly side. Voted.

Petition of James B. O'Malley that edgestones be laid in West Bowers street in front of premises numbered 24. Granted.

Petition of L. Kirk Sprague and others that Sprague avenue be laid out and accepted. Leave to withdraw.

Petition of Damase H. Laporte that curved portion of Circuit avenue east of Felton street be discontinued as a public street. Leave to withdraw.

Petition of John G. Tucker and others that Orleans street be laid out and accepted from Hildreth street to Lakeview avenue. Tabled.

Petition of H. H. Beard and others that Inland street be laid out and accepted. Referred to engineer.

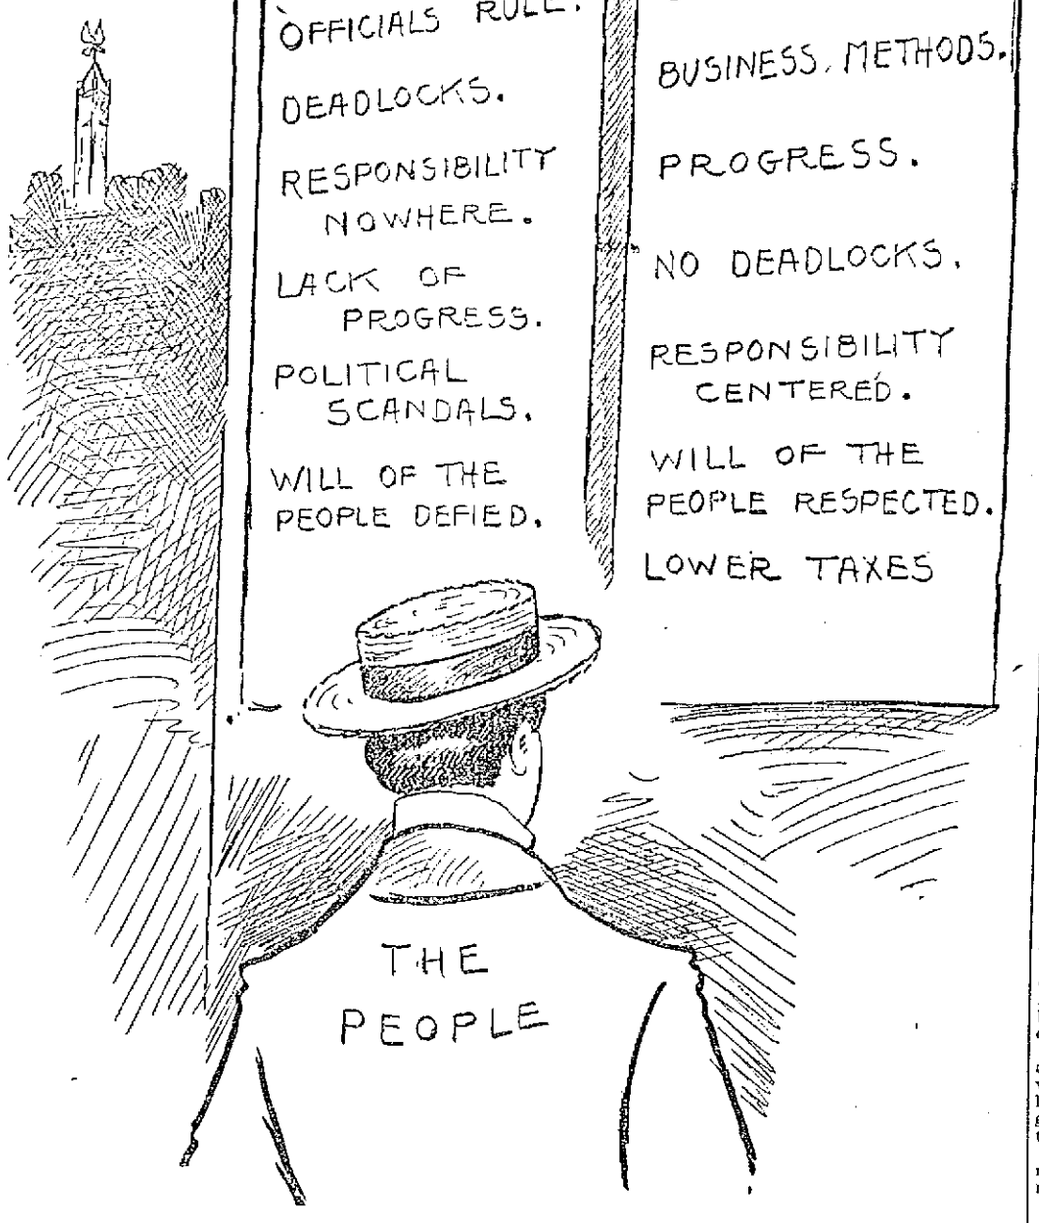

Petition of Adolph Delisle that the northerly line of Merrimack street be re-established from Aiken street to Spalding street. Referred to engineer.

Petition of Truman Parker and others that Eleventh street be extended and accepted from Merrill avenue to Aberdeen street. Voted on estimate.

Petition of Arthur Provost and others that a sidewalk of edgestones and cinders be laid on both sides of Beaver street. Edgestones and cinders granted.

Petition of Conners Brothers for permission to close to public travel for a period of two months that portion of Shattuck street beginning at the southerly line of Middle street and extending southerly, for building purposes. Leave to withdraw.

Petition of Saline Russell and others that a sidewalk of edgestones and cinders be laid on the northerly side of Riverside street from Moody street to Mt. Hope street, where not already laid. Granted.

CARDINAL GIBBONS

CELEBRATED MASS ON HIS 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF ORDINATION

BALTIMORE, July 1.—In a little chapel in a home where he is at present visiting and about 50 miles from Baltimore, Cardinal Gibbons yesterday morning offered up a mass of thanksgiving in honor of the most momentous event of his long career. Yesterday he completed 50 years of a successful priesthood and 25 years as cardinal and nominal head of the Catholic church in the United States.

On June 30, 1861, Fr. Gibbons was ordained at the cathedral here by Archbishop Kendrick. Just 25 years later, June 30, 1886, the red hat was conferred on him also at the cathedral.

Yesterday morning the cardinal arose at the usual hour, 6 o'clock, and with a single assistant celebrated a low mass without any musical program and with only the members of the household attending.

The religious celebration of the anniversary will be held at the cathedral next October.

ADRIFT IN A BOAT

Wealthy Young Man Escaped From Nurse at Cotuit

COTUIT, July 1.—A vain search of Vineyard sound was made yesterday for the small sailboat Water Witch, with its lone pilot, a wealthy young man, Kenneth Linn of Tampa, Fla., said to be out of his mind as a result of an accident on a southern baseball field recently.

A reward of $1000 is offered by his attendant for his return. He is described as 20 years old, weighing 137 pounds, dark hair, full face and two scars on his forehead.

Without food or water Linn left this harbor Thursday night and when the fact became generally known a search was made by the pleasure craft in this vicinity. Yesterday the waters of Vineyard sound were scanned for the little craft, but without success, except for the fact that the tender of the sailboat was found beached on the shore of the harbor here.

There was nothing to show that it had contained a human passenger, and it is believed that in some manner it broke away from the Water Witch some time during the night.

Struck by a Baseball

A short time ago Linn was said to have been struck by a baseball during a ball game near his Florida home. It is stated that the blow affected his mind, and under the care of R. L. Sawyer, a trained nurse, he was brought here to recuperate.

Linn, accompanied by the nurse, arrived in Cotuit last Monday. Last evening the young man escaped from the watchful eye of his attendant and boarded the Water Witch. Before he could be stopped he had disappeared down the harbor.

Whether he understands the navigation of a sailboat is not known here, but it is believed to be certain that the craft was not provisioned.

The fact that Linn had taken the sailboat out alone was not made known until yesterday, when Sawyer made the announcement and requested that if any trace of Linn were found to be notified at once. Then a search of the seaboard was instituted, but the day's hunt resulted only in the finding of the tender.

It is believed by some that Linn is suffering from some hallucination and took the boat in an attempt to sail to the home of his parents in Tampa, Fla. These persons believe that by this time Linn is somewhere in Long Island sound or near New York.

The most of the residents and summer people, however, strongly believe that he is tossing about in nearby waters, unless he has been picked up by some passing vessel or has fallen into the sea and lost his life.

NUMBER OF PETITIONS

Were Heard by the Committee on Sewers Last Night

The committee on sewers met last night and gave hearings on a number of petitions but did not take action. The committee voted to meet again on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Petitions considered included that of the American Hide and Leather company, and others, that a sewer be laid from Wigginville, from the crossing of the Lowell & Andover railroad in Lawrence street to a point opposite the premises of the American Hide and Leather company, thence across the Concord river and through private land to the sewer in Lawrence street, near Watson street.

Petition for a sewer in School street from the end of the present sewer southerly to Spring court, and in Payne street from School street easterly, a distance of about 170 feet. Milo D. Clay, Charles Houle and Joseph G. Wright appeared in opposition and no petitioner appeared.

Smith J. Adams and Mr. Kilmartin appeared in favor of a petition for a sewer in Burlington avenue.

Petition of Joseph H. Flynn and others, that a sewer be laid in Richardson street from Ida I. Boynton's land to land of the estate of J. H. Flynn, a distance of about 150 feet. Mr. Flynn appeared in favor.

Petition of Frank W. Vaughn and others, that a sewer be laid in Newell street. Mr. Vaughn and Fred Jenness appeared in favor of the sewer. No remonstrants.

Petition of Robert J. McKearn and others, that a sewer be laid in Lincoln street, 100 feet easterly of Main street. Mr. McKearn and G. F. Tilton appeared.

Petition to lay a sewer in Willard street, from the end of the present sewer northeasterly, a distance of about 152 feet. Petitioner did not appear. George W. Flint was a remonstrant.

On the petition for a sewer from Wigginville to the premises of the American Hide and Leather company, Stanley E. Qua appeared for the Stirling mills and in favor of the petition. He said that only a few high places in Wigginville were being drained at the present time and he thought that the question was a very important one. Others to speak in favor of the petition included C. P. Hall of the American Hide and Leather company, Thos. C. Wilde, William H. Hodgson and William Rutland. Mr. Kelly of 546 Lawrence street appeared as a remonstrant.

A PIANO RECITAL

GIVEN BY PUPILS OF MRS. ELLA M. WENTWORTH

A pretty piano recital was given last night by the pupils of Mrs. Ella Martel Wentworth. The affair was held at the French Baptist church in Bunell street and was largely attended.

The pupils were assisted by Mrs. Frances Johnson-Carter of Boston and Mr. John McKelvey of this city, and their singing added much to the enjoyment of the occasion. The pupils all showed the result of careful training and a sympathetic interpretation of their music, and many of them received beautiful bouquets from admiring friends.

Those who took part in the program were the Misses Alice E. Binette, Simmone Chapdelaine, Minnie W. Ramette, M. Louise Binette, Eva Binette, Phyliss Duckworth, Helen C. Dowling, Annie H. Ramette.

The ushers were Masters Joseph A. Dowling, Wilfred L. Binette, Edgar N. Chapdelaine, Fernando Chapdelaine, Rupert C. Martel.

WESTFORD ACADEMY

Annual Graduation Exercises Held Yesterday

The annual graduation exercises of Westford Academy took place yesterday in the Westford town hall and were largely attended. The hall was prettily decorated with hemlock and potted plants. The class colors, blue and white, were prominent in the decorations, and the class motto, "Upward and Onward," in white letters on a blue background, was most artistically arranged over the front of the stage. The year "1911" was conspicuous at one side of the stage. The following students were graduated: Seth W. Banister, Ruth M. Furbush, Clarence H. McMaster, Ruth A. Flagg, V. George Hanson, Ida M. Trask, J. Omer LeDuc, Anna H. Symmes, John Feeney, Jr., and Addie LeDay. The exercises opened with a prayer offered by Rev. Benjamin Bailey, followed by the salutatory by Seth W. Banister. An essay given by V. George Hanson showed scholarly effort, and the valedictory by Anna H. Symmes was most pleasing. The presentation of the class gift, a large picture of the "Coliseum," was by J. Omer LeDuc and accepted by Sadie McMaster. The music by the school under the able direction of Miss Mary Raynes deserves special mention for its excellence. Supt. Frank H. Hill presented the diplomas with a few helpful remarks, and Hon. Thomas J. Boynton of Boston gave a most able address on "Civic Government."

In the evening the alumni of Westford Academy held its annual reception and dance. There were many present who listened to a fine concert from 8 to 9 by Hibbard's orchestra of Lowell. Dancing followed until 1 o'clock. Seventy-five couples were present. The executive committee elected for the alumni was Mrs. H. V. Hildreth, Arthur G. Hildreth and Seth Banister.

JOHN ROSS ARRESTED

He is Accused of Murder Committed in Baltimore

YORK, July 1.—John Ross, charged with an alleged murder committed in Baltimore last fall, was arrested at York Beach late last night and taken to the county jail at Alfred. Ross is charged with fatally shooting a man whose name is not known here. He acknowledged his identity and made no resistance. He claimed the shooting was accidental.

The arrest was made by Deputy Sheriff Woodward assisted by Police Officer Grant. Ross was working in a summer hotel, where he has been employed for five seasons. Since the shooting the Baltimore officers have been searching for him and the York county authorities were notified to be on the watch for his reappearance here with the opening of the summer season, as it was thought he might return to his position at the hotel. Upon his return Sheriff Emery notified the Baltimore officials and was instructed to place him under arrest. Ross is about 28 years of age. His version of the shooting, about which he talked freely with the officers when arrested, was that both men were fooling and a revolver was discharged, his companion receiving a mortal wound. He did not remember whether it was in September or October. He was locked in the county jail, where he will remain until an officer arrives from Baltimore with the necessary papers to take him back to Maryland.

Aviator Ovington Had Quite an Experience

WALTHAM, July 1.—Earle L. Ovington gave a farewell flight at the local aviation field yesterday afternoon in return for a gift of a runabout automobile.

Ovington started at 5:25 and was gone 42 minutes. During that period he flew around aimlessly, as he was lost in the clouds for a time, unable to get his bearings.

The trouble was caused by the clouds, which hung very low. He was traveling at the rate of 70 miles an hour. He took with him about 1000 souvenir post-cards, which he scattered while circling over the state house.

When he returned to the field Ovington was presented the car by Mayor Walker. The aviator leaves Waltham today for New York.

GRANDCHILDREN LOSE

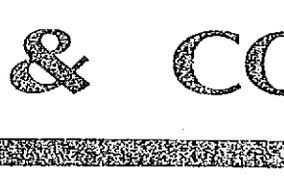

They Get $25 Instead of $25,000

MILWAUKEE, July 1.—Because Mrs. E. P. Allis, the widow of the founder of what is known as the Allis-Chalmers Co., forgot one cipher in writing her will, four grandchildren, whom she meant to give $25,000 each, are cut off with $25. This decision was rendered in the circuit court yesterday after an appeal from the probate court. The will gives each child $25:00. The court ruled that the period between the five and the ciphers could not be interpreted as a comma and a third cipher added.

THE TAFTS ARRIVE

To Spend Their Vacation at Beverly

BOSTON, July 1.—President Taft and his family, on their way from Washington to their new summer cottage at Beverly, arrived in Boston this morning an hour after scheduled time. The second section of the Washington express, to which the private car was attached, was delayed on the way up to New England by heavy traffic incidental to the boat races at New London. The president will stay at Beverly until Sunday.

In the president's party were Mrs. Taft, Charlie Taft, the president's aunt, Miss Della Torrey, Major Butte, the president's military aide, and two secret service men.

The special car in which the president traveled from Washington was stopped in front of the Montserat station of the Boston & Maine railroad, at Beverly, where a small crowd had gathered to welcome Mr. Taft to his summer city. Upon leaving the train the party entered automobiles and were driven to Paramatta.

THE MANHATTANS

ENTHUSIASTIC OVER NIGHT BEFORE CELEBRATION

The Manhattan club held a most enthusiastic meeting last evening and the principal topic of discussion was the "Night Before" celebration planned for the benefit of the residents of the upper Gorham street section. For several years the club has taken much interest in the celebration of the Fourth, and its members have always labored zealously so that a satisfactory program could be conducted, without the residents being compelled to come into the centre of the city. This year, through the urgent request of Charles L. Crowley, John Ward, John Frawley and other hustling members, the city council committee has assigned a band concert for the night before, and no matter where one goes in that section today, all agree that this new departure will please. A bonfire is also planned and Alderman Flanagan will apply the torch.

MAN SHOT WOMAN

Then He Attempted to End His Own Life

CHERRYFIELD, Me., July 1—In a fit of jealous rage yesterday William Hunter, 60 years old, fired two shots, it is alleged, at Mrs. Bert Davis, 32 years old, with whom he boarded. Then he attempted his own life by shooting and drowning.

Both bullets fired at Mrs. Davis took effect and she was taken to the Eastern Maine hospital at Bangor last night, where it is considered there is about an even chance for her recovery.

Hunter is locked up in the county jail at Machias. He is well known, a widower and has two grownup daughters.

He has been boarding in the Davis family for nearly a year and it is said becoms infatuated with Mrs. Davis, who rebuffed his attentions and they quarreled frequently.

About 10.30 yesterday forenoon Hunter and Mrs. Davis had a quarrel in the living room of the Davis house, which is in the village, nearly opposite the postoffice. The aged and feeble mother of Mrs. Davis and her two children, aged 10 and 6, were also in the room.

Suddenly, according to the story of Mrs. Davis' mother, Hunter pulled a revolver from his pocket and fired point-blank at Mrs. Davis, the bullet taking effect in her side. Mrs. Davis ran screaming from the house, and as she did so Hunter turned the revolver upon himself and fired, wounding himself. Seeing, apparently, that he had not killed Mrs. Davis, however, he pursued her to the house of Mrs. Haley, a neighbor, overtaking her on the doorstep and firing at her again, which shot took effect in the back of her neck.

Hunter then stepped outside and placing his revolver against his forehead, snapped it twice. It failed to explode and he made a dash across the village street, through a group of people who had been attracted by the shooting, and plunged into the Narraguagus river.

He was rescued by Edward Torrey after a desperate struggle in the water, as Hunter seemed to determined to drown, and was brought to land after a grappling hook had been firmly fixed in his clothing.

The Davis children ran screaming down the street on the way to the mill where their father was at work.

The shot that Hunter fired into his own body made a flesh wound not considered serious. He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Frank E. Patten and taken to Machias jail last night. Mrs. Davis was taken to the Bangor hospital last night on the late train.

Hunter is a well-to-do resident and has always borne a good reputation. He was employed in the lumber mills here, as was the husband of Mrs. Davis. Hunter's weapon was a 38-calibre revolver of cheap make and bulldog pattern. He threw it away as he dashed for the river.

JUMPED THE TRACK

Two Persons Injured in Electric Car Accident at Dedham

DEDHAM, July 1.—A big semi-convertible electric of the Old Colony street railway company under charge of William O. Curtis, motorman, and Edward Sprague, conductor, which left Dedham at 4.02 o'clock yesterday afternoon for Forest Hills, jumped the track at the bridge on Washington street over Mother brook, broke through the fence and stopped hanging nearly half over the brook.

By almost a miracle the car stopped just at the point of safety, for had it gone two feet farther it would have toppled over into the brook with probable loss of life. As it is there were no bones broken, and so far as could be learned only two received injuries necessitating much attention.

Mrs. Catherine Schroeder of 12 Norfolk street, Cambridge, suffered injuries of the right arm and leg. She was taken to the home of her sister, Mrs. Jane Hager, Eastern avenue, Dedham.

John Goodreau of 17 Grove street, West End, Boston, received injuries to his left knee. He was treated at the office of Dr. A. H. Hodgdon and went home in an automobile.

Others on the car received nervous shocks, but none of them was injured to any extent.

That there was no panic was due largely to the coolness of the car crew, who assured the passengers there was no danger, calming them so that some kept their seats while others were passing out of the car.

The car had about 35 passengers on leaving Dedham. Curtis, according to custom, on approaching the bridge over Mother brook, slowed up and went on the structure at a much reduced speed.

What caused the accident is not known. Just as the forward trucks took the rail on the bridge they swerved to the right, jumped the wooden guard, tore through the fence and stopped on the abutments, the front of the car directly over the brook, 15 feet below. The rear trucks kept the rail and prevented the car falling.

At this point the tracks run within two feet of the bridge fence.

As soon as he could Curtis turned his attention to the passengers and was able to keep any one form getting hysterical and rushing for the door. All were assisted to the ground by Curtis and Sprague.

THE ROYAL COACH CONTAINING ENGLAND'S KING AND QUEEN

LONDON, July 1.—The royal progress from Buckingham palace to Westminster abbey on coronation day, June 22, was participated in by hundreds of celebrated people from all sections of the globe. John Hays Hammond, the American representative, was a prominent figure in the procession. A picturesque touch was given the affair by the appearance of the native princes of India, who were attired in the gayly bedecked costumes of their native land. In the photo the royal coach containing King George and Queen Mary is seen as it appeared a minute or two before reaching Westminster abbey. In the background is seen the famous clock tower of the house of parliament.

They are cited to show why they should not be enjoined from paying the money to certain corporations indicted by the secretary of state.

The fund is an indemnity that Venezuela allowed the United States for concessions taken from gold and asphalt corporations. The Manoa company the Orinoco company, limited, and the Orinoco corporation are among the designated beneficiaries. Safford claims in his petition to be a judgment creditor of the Manoa company for $55,000.

Deposits received at The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank begin to draw interest Saturday, July 1st.

GUILTY OF ASSAULT

Two Men Ordered to Pay Fine of $10 Each

John Redding and Frank Cole were arraigned before Judge Fisher in police court this morning on a complaint charging them with assault and battery on Zalek Dowager. At the conclusion of the case the court found both men guilty and ordered each to pay a fine of $10.

The complainant testified that about 5.30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon he was driving through Charles street, near the corner of Gorham when three men approached his wagon, two of them being the defendants. He said one grabbed the bridle on the horse while another started to pull his bags of rags from the wagon. He said he told them to stop, but they paid little attention to him and when he jumped from the wagon he claims that they struck him, knocked him on the ground and then jumped on him. He denied striking them. He had several witnesses to testify in corroboration.

The defendants denied that they struck the man. They testified that as they were passing through the street the wagon approached and they had to wait to allow it to pass; that while the wagon was in front of them the complainant swung his whip and struck one of them on the side of the face inflicting a severe wound.

Charged With Larceny

Patrick Carney was charged with the larceny of ten pounds of lead, a toilet bowl and fittings, all of the value of $6, the property of Lizzie W. Ordway. He was found guilty and sentenced to two months in the house of correction at Cambridge.

Other Offenders

John Carney was charged with being drunk and admitted that he was guilty but pleaded for a chance. He said, "I am a sick man and have a sick wife and in the name of God give me a chance. I took two glasses of beer last night and it proved to be my undoing." His case was continued for a week.

John F. Cunningham of North Leominster also charged with drunkenness wanted a chance. He said he did not come to Lowell to get drunk but that he was led into temptation upon arriving here, and lost control of himself. The court assessed him $6.

Sumner L. Brown is on probation from the superior court and was arrested yesterday on a complaint charging him with being drunk. He will be turned over to Probation Officer Ramsay.

The case of Louis Wentworth was continued until Wednesday at the request of the police who want to investigate the case.

John P. Gallagher was fined $6.

A REWARD OF $500

For the Arrest of an Alleged Murderer

WARWICK, R. I., July 1.—A reward of $500 has been offered by the local police for information resulting in the arrest of Gierano Chilli, 22 years old, who is wanted in connection with the murder of Patrolman Walter McQuarrie in the village of Aponaug last Tuesday. McQuarrie was shot when he accosted a man carrying a bag of cloth which was later identified as having been stolen from the East Greenwich bleachery where Chilli was employed.

PROBABLY A SUICIDE

Lawrence Man Walked Into the River

LAWRENCE, July 1.—An apparent case of suicide took place in the Merrimack river, a few hundred feet west of the Canoe club wharf, yesterday. Alouise Desutter, a Franco-Belgian, aged 60, of 409 Canal street, walking into the river. His body was found by the police in the afternoon.

John Murphy, aged 14 years, of 12 Newton street and Edward Coughlin, aged 14, of 42 Crosby street saw the man walk into the water. They notified Patrolman Hart, who, with Arthur Hembrough of 217 Water street, later brought the body to the surface. It is said that the man returned to shore after entering the water once.

His suicidal purpose evidently prevailed, for he again walked into the water, threw up his hands and disappeared. A card in his pocket led to his identification. He was a mill operative.

MAY GET DOCKED

New Rule Starts for Pos Office Employes

July first marks the beginning of the fiscal year at the postoffice and then will be inaugurated a new scheme to promote promptness in reporting to work among the clerks and carriers of the department.

At the outset it should be stated that this new rule is general and is in no way a reflection upon the local office which is one of the best conducted in the whole wide domain of the postal department.

Beginning the first of July each employe is allowed five minutes leeway in reporting for work. There has been a time clock that they have rung in upon going to work for some time past, but now it has a different significance.

Each employe must ring in the clock when he goes to work and if he is over five minutes late he gets a demerit for every minute over five minutes. If he gets 500 demerits within a year he will receive a reduction of salary of $100. But if in the subsequent three months following his reduction he shows up on time his original salary will be restored and he will only lose $25. If he doesn't make good within the three months the reduction goes for all time according to report. The scheme is for the purpose of promoting promptness among the employes of Uncle Sam.

MILLS SHUT DOWN

HOLYOKE, July 1.—The Lyman cotton mills were shut down today until July 10. The plant employs 1100 operatives.

Then will follow the 5 a side football competition for which eight teams are entered; then bagpipe and dancing competitions. The events are confined to members, and at 2 o'clock the amateur events will be started. The day's sports will end with the 10 mile Marathon race. A special prize valued at $20 for the best time in this race will be given by the committee. There will be free dancing with music by the Industrial School band of Lawrence and the Scottish pipe band of the Merrimack valley. The musical part of the day's amusement will be well taken care of. Refreshments will be served on the grounds.

A comparative statement of contagious diseases and the number of deaths from contagious diseases for six months, January to July, 1910, and January to July, 1911, was obtained at the office of the board of health today, and the comparison shows that the number of contagious disease cases and the number of deaths were not nearly as great in 1911. The statement as taken from the board of health's records is as follows:

HIGHLAND CHURCH OUTING

The members of the Highland Methodist church are enjoying an outing at Mountain Rock grove today. The merrymakers left at 9 o'clock this morning and after enjoying a trolley ride to the grove carried out a program of sports. FIRST PHOTOS OF THE CORONATION OF KING GEORGE V. AND QUEEN MARY IN LONDON

LONDON, July 1.—The glittering procession of royalty and of English notables from the empire's varied possessions on the day following the coronation is said to have been one of the most impressive pageants of all time. The route through London was lined with enormous crowds. It was impossible to obtain a good seat from which to view the procession for less than £5 ($25). The accompanying photo shows the king and queen in the royal coach, drawn by the famous "creams," the favorite royal horses, passing through Ludgate circus.

MY FACE WAS ALL BROKEN OUT

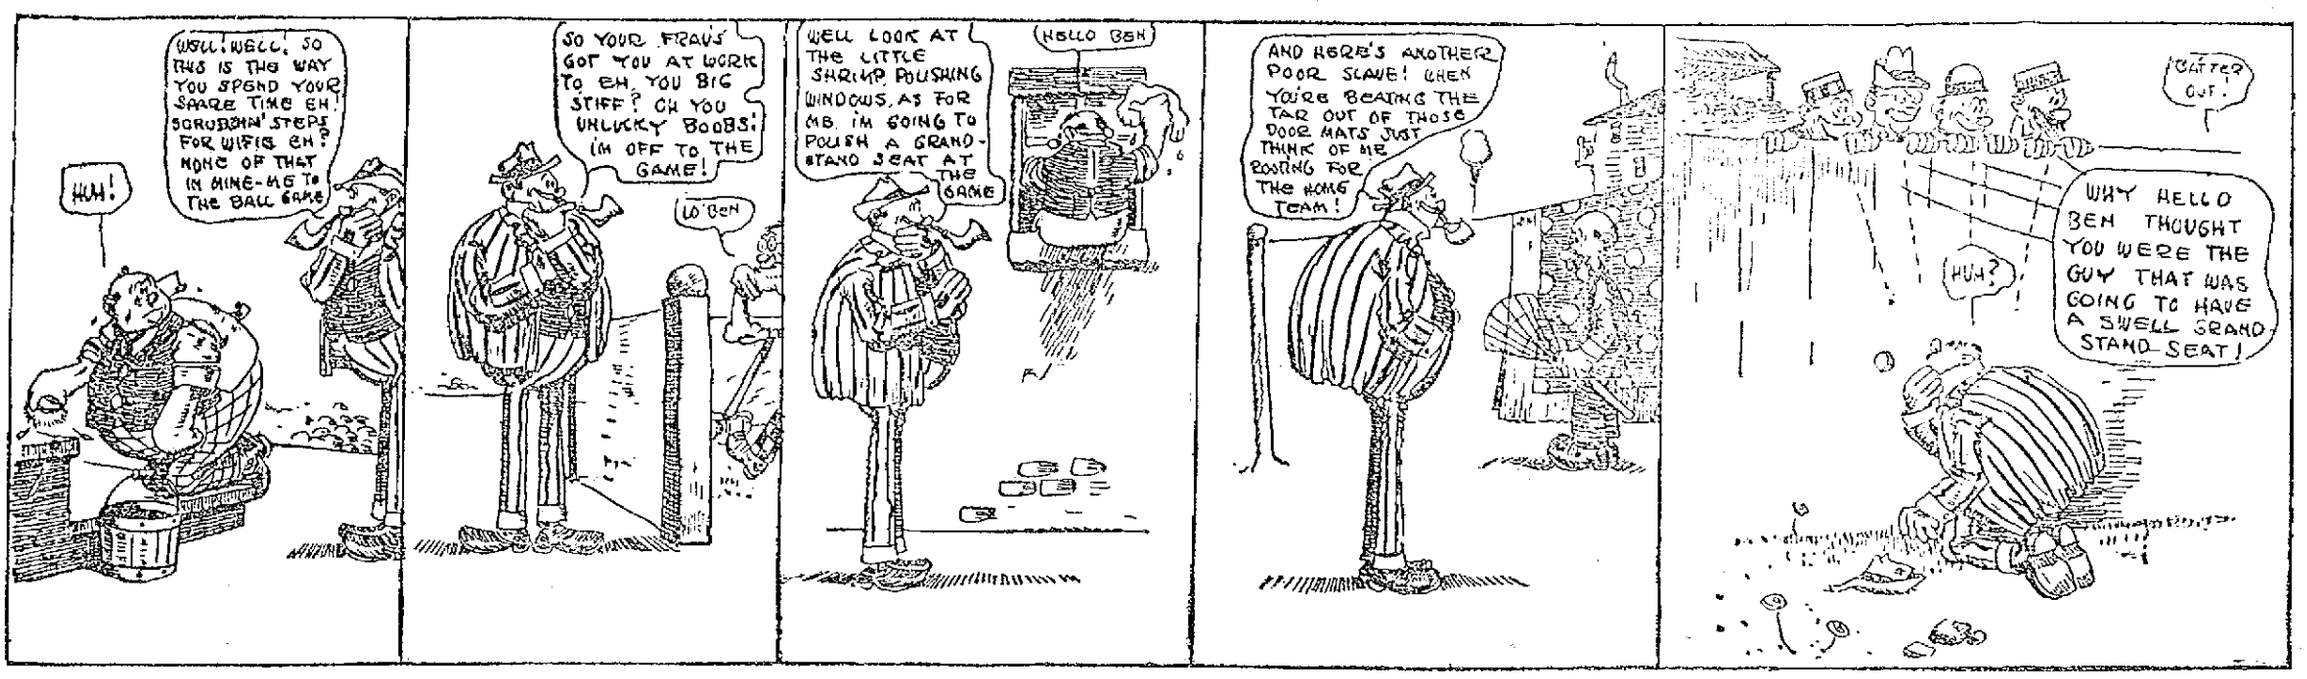

And So Disfiguring! Eruption Started with a Pimple. Came in Blotches, Causing Great Pain. Spread Rapidly. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment, Blotches Disappeared.

"My trouble started with a pimple on my nose, which I picked, and it rapidly spread all over my face, the eruption coming in blotches, and causing great pain and disfigurement. My face was all broken out, and oh! so disfiguring; being a business woman, it was dreadfully embarrassing. I was doctoring for six months without any relief. Then I saw the Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertised, so I thought I would try them, which I did. After using the Cuticura Soap and one box of the wonderful Cuticura Ointment, every one of my friends noticed the improvement. I am delighted to say the blotches have all disappeared, and I am completely cured through the use of the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I take great pleasure in recommending them to all my friends." (Signed) Miss Nellie Lonergan, 913 Ninth Ave., New York City, Jan. 29, 1911.

For more than a generation warm baths with Cuticura Soap and gentle applications of Cuticura Ointment have afforded the speediest and most economical treatment for torturing, disfiguring affections of the skin and scalp of infants, children and adults. A single cake of Cuticura Soap (25c.) and box of Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are often sufficient when all else has failed. Although sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with 32-p. book on care and treatment of the skin and scalp, will be sent free, on application to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 20A, Boston, Mass.

Little Jawn's Outfit Pulled Off the Victory

Little Jawn O'Brien, Panama, good cigar, grouch and all, was the attraction at Spalding park yesterday, accompanied by fighting Tommy Devine, Monkey-Shines Wormwood, who can play any of the nine positions, and the rest of the Fall River outfit looking for bother.

"You people are going along pretty well just at present," remarked Little Jawn, and then he shifted the cheroot to the other side, and continued, "but, you may get yours after a time, nevertheless."

Little Jawn still wore his "the world against her" expression that has stuck to his roseate countenance since the season opened, for things haven't been breaking just right for him though he is a natural born optimist and still claims that his team in all probability will cop the pennant.

There were about 600 present and the attraction prior to the starting of the game was the warming up of Wormwood, one of the slab artists for the visitors, who has discovered a new curve which is known as the Frank Merriwell curve, owing to the fact that it is of the dime novel style.

First Inning

The vistors started off in the first inning by scoring a run, but Lowell was unable to make a tally. Groh was the first man up for Fall River and he was retired on a foul fly to Huston. Kopf drew a base on balls. Hickman sent the ball into centre field for three bases, scoring Kopf. Devine foul flied to Boultes and Bowcock was third out on a fly to Fluharty.

In the latter half of the inning Moulton struck out and Barrows hit along the third base line and beat the ball to first. Cooney foul flied to Haight and Barrows went to second on the catch. Magee walked after being hit by a pitched ball. Fluharty hit to Walsh and was out at first, Reiger covering the bag.

Second Inning

Timely hitting and an error by Wright allowed Fall River to score three runs in the second. Moore opened with a single. Walsh bunted to Boultes and the latter threw good to first but Wright dropped the ball and Moore went to third on the play. Haight hit over Magee's head for a two bagger scoring Moore and Walsh. Reiger sacrificed sending Haight to third. Groh flied to Barrows and Haight scored on the play. Kopf hit to Moulton and was out at first.

Wright hit to Hickman and was out at first. Boultes fanned and Huston drew a base on balls. Warwick was third out on a fly to Groh.

Third Inning

Hickman opened the third with a single over second base but when he attempted to steal second he was thrown out a "mile" by Huston. Devine foul flied to Huston and Bowcock hit to Moulton and died at first.

In Lowell's half Moulton hit to Groh and was out at first. Barrows hit down the third base line and was called out on a very close decision. Cooney singled to left field and scored on Magee's three bagger to right garden. Fluharty flied to Hickman.

Fourth Inning

Moore flied to Barrows. Walsh and Haight struck out. Wright drew a base on balls and Boultes flied to Moore. Wright stole second and went to third when Huston hit to Groh and was throw nout at first. Warwick foul flied to Haight who made a pretty running catch.

Fifth Inning

Fall River scored another in the fifth inning. Reiger opened with a single to centre and went to second when Groh hit to Moulton nd was retired at first. Kopf hit to Boultes and was out at first, Reiger going to third. Hickman drew a base on balls. Devine hit to left field fence for two bases, scoring Reiger. Hickman tried to come home on the hit but was nailed at the plate.

Lowell scored three runs in the latter half of the fifth inning. Moulton opened with a single and Barrows was given his base on balls. At this point Reiger was taken out of the box and Wormwood put in. Cooney hit a Texas leaguer to short left field the ball dropping between Devine, Moore and Hickman, filling the bases. While the Fall River players were arguing over the ball Moulton stole home. Magee hit to Kopf who threw wild to first and Barrows and Cooney scored while Magee went to third. Fluharty foul flied to Kopf. Wright hit to Walsh and Magee was doubled up between third and home on the play Boultes hit to Groh and was out at first.

Sixth Inning

There was plenty of excitement in the sixth. Bowcock hit to Boultes and was retired at first. Moore singled Walsh sent the ball over the left field fence but it was just this side of the foul flag and when the umpire called it foul there was great kicking on the part of the Fall River players. Walsh then struck out. Moore tried to steal second but he was too slow and was thrown out.

Huston went to first on balls. Warwick hit to Kopf who threw to second getting Huston and the ball was sent to first for a double. Moulton singled but was caught while trying to steal second.

During the latter half of the inning "Jawn" O'Brien was informed by the umpire that he would have to leave the grounds if he did not conduct himself in a proper manner.

Seventh Inning

Haight hit to Warwick and was retired at first. Wormwood hit to the left field fence for two bases, but he died there, for Groh flied to Moulton and Kopf flied to Boultes.

Lowell scored three more runs in the latter half of the seventh. Barrows repeated his work of yesterday by making a home run inside the grounds. Cooney singled. Magee bunted down the first base line and beat it out for a single. At this point Bannon put Groh out of the game for kicking. Bowcock went to short stop, Moore from centre to left and Chief Williams, the Indian, was placed in centre. Fluharty sacrificed. Wright singled to right field scoring Cooney and Magee. Boultes flied to Hickman who threw to first for a double.

Eighth Inning

Hickman hit to Cooney and was out at first. Devine got hit by a pitched ball and walked. Bowcock sent the ball over the left field fence for a home run scoring Devine and himself. At this point Warwick was taken out and Yount substituted. Moore flied to Barrows. Walsh hit a red hot liner to Boultes but Jake held on to it.

Huston drew a base on balls. Yount bunted to Wormwood and Huston was thrown out at second. Moulton hit to Bowcock who threw to second, getting Yount and the ball was sent to first for a double play.

Ninth Inning

Haight got a single to left. Wormwood bunted to Yount who threw Haight out to second. Williams singled to centre field. Kopf hit to Boultes who tagged Wormwood running to third. Hickman got a single to centre scoring Williams. Hickman and Kopf tried to work a double steal and the latter was thrown out at the plate.

Barrows hit a grounder which Wormwood knocked down and Bowcock fielded it to first. Cooney foul flied to Kopf. Magee hit one too hot for Hickman to handle and he got on first. Fluharty flied to Kopf.

DIAMOND NOTES

Fall River again.

Dear Mr. Barrows: Please accept this slight token of our esteem, hoping that it will find you well, and that the national commission won't cop it.

Yours truly,
Mr. Bull Durham.

Poor Barrows has one consolation. They may take his coin away from him, but they can't deprive him of his smoking tobacco for he has earned 100 packages in two days, which is going some.

Groh grew fresh with Bannon, and Tommy grew indignant at Groh, and another Indian appeared on the horizon.

Didn't both managers make a slight mistake in pulling out their first pitchers?

Yesterday was the first time this season that Fred Reiger has not finished the game he has started.

Harry Huston is throwing perfectly these days.

And Brockton is in second place again! They do come back.

Hickman was right there with the stick; likewise the chin music.

TWO HARD HITTING LIGHTWEIGHTS WHO ARE TO BATTLE FOR WORLD'S TITLE IN SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—Ad Wolgast, holder of the lightweight title, and Owen Moran are ready for their 20-round bout to be held here July 4. The battle between the pair promises to be one of the best ever held in this section of the country. As to weight and size they are very evenly matched, both being about the same height and can scale at about 128 nicely if called upon to do so. The chances are that they will go into the ring about 130 pounds each. Moran is a past master at boxing, and he knows the game as well as any of them. As to hitting, there is little to choose between them, for boys who have met both of them say that Moran is the harder hitter of the two, although they admit Wolgast has the more dangerous swing. Moran depends more upon straight punches and a nasty shortarm uppercut that is liable to make trouble for any opponent. The pair met in New York some time ago, and Moran was awarded a newspaper decision over Wolgast. Since then the latter has improved wonderfully and is now considered by many ring experts to be one of the greatest lightweights that ever stepped into the ring, especially since he administered a severe trouncing to Frankie Burns. Wolgast is ruling favorite in the coming bout.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN

Lawrence Man Met With Serious Injury

PORTLAND, Me., July 1.—John Bowler of Lawrence, Mass., was struck by a Grand Trunk freight train last evening. He was on the track back of the Galt block on Commercial street and was apparently asleep. One leg was fractured and the other half was nearly cut off at the ankle and was amputated after he was taken to the Maine general hospital.

Bowler is 38 and for three weeks had been at work on the Portland & Lewiston electric line.

JUDGE LONG

SAYS HUSBAND IS LORD AND MASTER

SPRINGFIELD, July 1.—These precepts for the guidance of wives and husbands in cases of difference over household economy were laid down by Judge Charles L. Long yesterday in the separate support case brought by Mrs. Edith S. Marsh against Henry D. Marsh, assistant treasurer of the Five Cent Savings Bank:

To begin with the husband is absolute lord and master of the exchequer.

Under the law he is entitled to his meals at any hour he wants them.

He may select such food as he chooses. If he wants one food and his wife another, the husband's decision goes.

A servant girl to whom the husband objects must be discharged.

Finally, man, who pays the bills, and not the woman, is boss.

Judge Long advised the Marshes to patch up their differences. Mr. Marsh left the court room wreathed in smiles. Mrs. Marsh did not indorse the court's opinions, and said so.

INSTITUTE OF INSTRUCTION

PROVIDENCE, July 1.—With several departmental meetings and a general session in the forenoon the American Institute of Instruction closed its three days convention in this city today. Practically all phases of school life and the educational problems peculiar to New England were discussed at the meetings today by college professors, school superintendents and teachers from all the New England states.

The speakers at the closing meeting today were Charles Prosser, deputy commissioner of education for Massachusetts, whose topic was "Standards and problems in vocational education" and Dr. Winship, editor of the Journal of Education, who spoke on "New England's Future." Among the other speakers at today's sessions were Mrs. Charles Flagg, president of the Maine Federation of Women's clubs; Superintendent Arthur D. Call of Hartford, Conn.; H. C. Morrison, state superintendent of public instruction for New Hampshire; Superintendent Clark of Somerville, Mass., Superintendent Verplank of South Manchester, Conn., and Miss Mabel Robertson of Fall River.

IS TRAINING HARD

Jimmie Gardner Getting in Shape Right

Jimmie Gardner of Lowell is training as he never has before for his twelve round bout with Wild Bob Moha, which will be decided at the Armory A. A., Boston, Thursday evening, July 6th. Mike Twin Sullivan, who has boxed Moha, told Gardner that Moha is all that has been said about him, and then some more, and as Jimmy knows Mike to be a first class judge of boxers, he is going to be in tip top shape. Joe Thomas, the ex-welterweight champion, is boxing with him.

George Robinson, who has made some splendid contests as an amateur against heavier men, is to box Jack Cottman, of Philadelphia. They will appear in the semi-final bout of eight rounds.

Dave Powers of Malden will find a worthy opponent in Ted Thompson of Chicago. They will box six rounds.

The opening preliminary is between Billy Yerkes of Hot Springs and Joe Brown of Boston.

The Fourth of July won't be complete without ice cream. Order a White Mountain freezer of the Thompson Hardware Co., and enjoy your own ice cream.

HARVARD'S VICTORY

Yale Crew Badly Beaten in the Varsity Race

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 1.—Harvard administered to Yale the worst defeat that the Blue has received in rowing for many years yesterday afternoon, when Capt. Roger Cutler's giant eight led Capt. Frost's crew from start to finish over the four-mile course. Harvard won by 56 1-2 seconds or 14 boat lengths.

This means that the Crimson defeated the Blue by 882 feet in four miles. The times of both crews were slow and way below the record of the river, because the race was rowed against a stiff southwest wind, which blew directly against the crews, and as the breeze was also against the outgoing tide there was rough water in some spots, which made it impossible for Harvard's speedy crew to take a shy at the record of 20:10 that has stood since 1888.

Harvard's time was 22 minutes 41 seconds, and Yale's 23 minutes 10 1-2 seconds.

Of the three races in yesterday's regatta, the first one, for the freshman eights, which was rowed at 11 this morning, was the only real contest of the series. Yale was expected to win this race and it came out just as scheduled, although the Blue had a much harder time in defeating the Harvard youngsters than had been expected.

For a mile and a half the crews raced by side, Yale leading most of the time by a few feet, but never by more than a third of a boat length. But when the eights started their sprint for the finish line, Yale had the speed and pulled away from the Crimson shell, winning by one and a half boat lengths. The times were: Yale 11 minutes 54 seconds, Harvard 11 minutes 59 1-2 seconds.

Following the freshman race, the varsity four-oar crews took their turn. Harvard was booked to win this event and here again the result was just as predicted. For a mile it was a fairly close struggle, although Harvard led all the way from the first stroke.

In the second mile Yale tired and fell steadily to the rear, while Harvard's smoother and faster four was increasing its lead until when the line was reached announcing Harvard the victor, Yale was three and a half boat lengths behind. The times in this race were: Harvard 13 minutes 37 1-2 seconds, Yale 13 minutes 52 seconds.

Through a strange freak of nature all three races were rowed against a strong head-wind, although the two in the morning were rowed upstream, while the varsity race in the late afternoon was down the river. Until 12 o'clock a strong wind, carrying from east to west-of-north, blew down the river against the incoming tide. Then just at noon, the wind shifted clear around and came up fresh from the south, and so blew against the outgoing tide and against the varsity crews in their race. So in neither contest was it possible to do any fast rowing, so far as time goes.

While the oarsmen would have liked more favorable conditions for the satisfaction of finding out how fast they could row, there never was a more glorious race day on the Thames for the thousands who came to see the regatta than this has been. And never in this country has there been gathered any such fleet of steam, power and sailing craft as floated on this beautiful river when Harvard and Yale measured oars this evening.

There is always a good-sized fleet of yachts anchored along the course, forming a lane for the shells to pass through, but yesterday put all previous displays way in the shade. From the railroad bridge clear up and past the navy yard, a stretch of two miles on either side of the course, yachts and boats of all sizes, from the immense steamers that only the millionaires can enjoy, down to the most diminutive powerboat, the flotilla was massed; not in a single line on either side of the river, but packed in as closely as cable lengths would permit. College colors and every bit of bunting found in the locker was snapping in the breeze.

Anchored here and there in this brilliantly decorated fleet were big excursion boats packed with spectators. One carried the Harvard club of Boston, another swarmed with the celebrating alumni of the Harvard classes of 1896, 1896 and 1901. The steamer brought them around this morning from Watch Hill, where they had spent the night.

One of the most conspicuous yachts on the river was the Catania, owned by the Duke of Sutherland, which had just arrived from Gibraltar, bringing a party of distinguished guests across the ocean to see the race, although the yacht had been unable to make the trip.

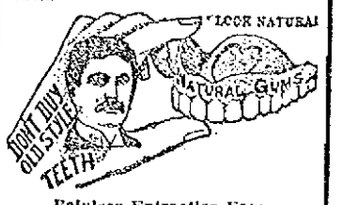

Four U. S. revenue cutters and the torpedo destroyer Seneca added to the brilliant spectacle, while their crews darted up and down the river in power launches and barges, keeping the course clear for the racing shells.

More people watched yesterday afternoon's race than have ever seen a meeting between Harvard and Yale on the Thames before. The two observation trains, running on either river-bank, much longer than ever before, were both filled to their capacity, while the highways that run along the hills rising from the shores had continuous processions of automobiles.

Of course Lowell friends of the new charter feel grateful to Norman White who championed the charter for Lowell on the floor of the house at a very critical stage in the progress of the bill.

The city of Fitchburg is threatened with another epidemic of diphtheria, four nurses and several patients at the Burbank hospital having contracted the disease. The board of health of Fitchburg should get busy. When a hospital has to close on account of the disease, the condition would appear to be serious. It is fortunate that the schools are not in session. There is general curiosity not only in Fitchburg but outside as to the cause of the disease.

JUDGE FALLON'S TREATMENT OF BOYS

Some of the Boston papers made a great hullabaloo the other day because Judge Fallon of the police court ordered a boy of thirteen years held in $200 for the juvenile court and in default sent him to the Charles street jail. There was a lot of sympathy for the boy's mother because she was poor, and Judge Fallon was severely criticized by papers that have heretofore had nothing but words of praise for him. But all this went well until the other side of the story was told.

Judge Fallon while in the police station overheard the boy say: "Oh, it's nothing to be locked in a cell. I'll soon be out again."

That statement combined with the fact that this boy had been in before on other charges convinced the judge that unusual severity was necessary. The boy was one of a party who entered an empty house, cut off the water pipes and sold them for junk.

"To turn him out with a mere reprimand," said Judge Fallon, "would be to encourage him to go on in his criminal course;" and so it would. If such juveniles are immune from punishment while they acquire criminal habits it will be useless to attempt to reform them afterwards. Where boys show precocity in criminal tendencies they should be treated with the degree of severity necessary to compel them obey the law.

Judge Fallon has always been recognized as a just judge, and in this case his course was perfectly proper. He would be unjust to the boy and to the community if he allowed the lad to boast of his immunity while committing a serious crime.

SUPPRESSING THE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

Editor Sun:

Dear Sir—In your editorial in Monday's paper you seemed to criticize the teachers of Lowell and to say that closer supervision is necessary in order to procure better results. I think you will find the teachers of Lowell equal to those of any other city and doing just as good work. No conscientious teacher will be helped by closer inspection. Yours truly, E. H. H.

We had no intention to criticize the teachers of Lowell. If they were not as a whole faithful and hard working teachers the results would not be as good as they are under the go-as-you-please system now in force.

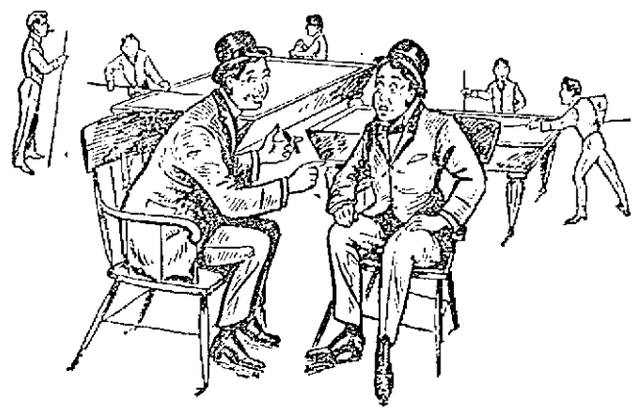

We hold that better results generally can be secured by more careful inspection or supervision which means that a man well trained in practical educational methods should go into every school room in the city, judge of the work done there not only as it appears in the class room, but in reference to lasting results, then criticize what is wrong or defective and have it remedied at once.

Were such a system of supervision in force all the teachers would do better work, and those who are now working in ruts or neglecting the essentials for the non-essentials would soon change. The whole question is one of getting the school board to allow the superintendent to do his duty by giving him the authority and holding him strictly responsible for results.

Supt. Whitcomb's statement at the meeting of the school board on Monday evening was illuminative of the methods at present in force in the school board. He said in effect he had always sought the cooperation of the grammar masters in running the schools but had not always been able to obtain it. The lack of this cooperation was an injury to the schools, he said. He had been criticized for not being able to command the loyalty of the grammar masters, but he allowed that "if he could not command he had shown at least that he could obey." That implies that instead of commanding the grammar masters he has been obeying them.

Dr. Lambert stood for the advisory board by saying that if twelve principals could come together and cooperate and the superintendent of schools could not secure their cooperation, the fault lies with the superintendent, not with the twelve. That is an absurd and an unjust statement. Had the superintendent of schools the power that he should have there would be no question of the cooperation of all the principals. If the board were doing its business in a business-like way it would promptly get rid of any principal who refused to cooperate with the superintendent for the benefit of the schools. Instead of doing so the board has organized the principals into an independent body to do some of the more important parts of the superintendent's work, a body that is so exclusive that it does not allow the superintendent to be present at its meetings. But having twelve members perhaps it has misgivings about the "unlucky thirteenth." We are not speaking here particularly for Supt. Whitcomb but for the system necessary to attain the best results. The superintendent, whoever he may be, should be superintendent and should have the authority to run the schools as he deems best. He should be held responsible for results, and if he cannot "make good" some other man should be employed in his place. But if the most distinguished educator in the United States or in the world were in Mr. Whitcomb's shoes today he could not do anything more to improve the schools, because he has not the authority. What the school board should do if it must have a board of supervisors and if at the same time it wants to be logical is, not to suppress the superintendent but to abolish the office altogether and let the truant officer call at the schools occasionally to see that the ventilation and sanitary conditions are all right. Why pay a man $3000 a year and then tie his hands so that he cannot earn his salary?

The fact is, the school board has adopted a very bungling system and one that will not work. The sooner it is dropped and the sooner the requirements of the new law are put in force the better for Lowell and for Lowell schools.

AT THE CLUB

"Well, how do you like your new machine, Harry?"

"I like it first rate, Andrew, and you can take my word that it is as good as I can buy."

"By the way, Harry, where did you get your car?"

"Why, you ought to know; I purchased it from the Moody Bridge garage."

"Honestly speaking, I knew where the machine came from, but I wanted to make sure, for I have a little story to tell you about one of the proprietors of the garage, Joseph Marin."

"Throw it out, I am patiently waiting for it."

"Of course I wouldn't want you to tell Joe about it, but it is this way. Some time ago Joe was driving up Moody street at a fair rate of speed. At a point between Aiken and Spalding streets a little boy accidentally ran into the path of the machine. Joe, who at all times has an eye out for such occurrences, quickly applied the brakes and in a very short space brought the auto to a full stop. But, alas! it was too late, the boy was knocked down and run over by the large touring car."

"Did he kill the lad?"

"Take your time, let me tell you the story. Well, Joe jumped out of the automobile and looked around for the chap, but the latter could not be seen. Then Joe got his jack and raised the auto and with fear scrutinized every part of the mechanism, thinking to find the mangled body twisted around the machinery. Such was not the case, however, for the remains of the chap could not be found. By this time a large crowd of people gathered around the machine, but the disappearance of the boy was a mystery. Part of his clothing was found twisted in the gearing. Somebody said that the boy who was killed was named Berger and that he lived on Ford street. Joe then went to the house to inquire if the Berger boy had been killed although he felt that a dead boy would not disappear so quickly unless ground to atoms. You can't imagine what our friend Joe saw when he reached the Berger home."

"The boy's ghost?"

"No, not his ghost, but his body all greased up from toes to head, and the chap was just telling his mother that he was lucky Mr. Marin did not catch him. The boy explained later that when the machine struck him he fell between the two wheels and was uninjured, and when the machine had passed over him, he hurriedly ran home so as not to give the automobile driver a chance to scold him for getting in the way."

"Well, that is the best I heard yet, Harry, but for the love of Mike don't let Joe hear that you are telling it around."

Harry's Horse Story

"By the way, Andrew, I heard of a local stablekeeper who lost a horse lately in a very strange manner.

"He had purchased a horse from a Tewksbury farmer and went out one evening in his automobile to get the animal, intending to lead it home with a hitch rope behind the auto."

"Did the horse run away?" asked Harry.

"Well, not exactly that. Farmers' horses, as a rule, do not run away but they sometimes walk away and that is probably what this horse did."

"It was getting dark as he set out for the city with the horse tied to the auto by a hitch rope. The horse trotted so beautifully after the auto for the first mile or so that the stableman thought he had a very intelligent animal, and so he had.

"When he struck Andover street, however, he looked back but found to his astonishment that the horse had disappeared although the rope was there.

"Was the horse ever found?" inquired Harry.

"Oh! yes, he was found in his stall next morning after feeding all night on new mown hay.

"When the stablekeeper called the next day to get the animal it was so badly swollen as a result of eating the green hay that it could not be taken out of the barn door."

PEOPLE OF NOTE

A writer says in the Liverpool Daily Post:

"Here is a perfectly true story which has never appeared in print but which is known to scores of people: A maiden lady was bicycling in the south of Scotland and caught in the handlebar of her machine the chain which supported her glasses snapping it into several pieces. So she went into the solitary shop of the village through which she was passing and asked for any sort of chain.

"The old woman said she had only a string of old glass beads which had been in her family for years, but as times were hard she would part with them. Thinking them rather pretty the lady paid the price asked which was fifteen shillings.

"About ten days later, on her return to London, she went to a jeweler to get her small gold chain mended, still wearing her glasses on the beads. The man noticed them and asked if he might show them to the head of the firm. The latter soon came forward and said he should be happy to offer £500 for the necklet.

"Without showing the least surprise the lady sagaciously answered that she would think the matter over. Then she went to a friend in one of the museums. After a little research among books he pronounced the beads to be the lost string of wonderful pearls Mary Queen of Scots had worn on the scaffold, and several experts agreed. Finally the beads were privately sold for £15,000 and out of part of the proceeds the lady took care that the old saleswoman should be made more than comfortable for the rest of her life."

The only person to receive the degree of doctor of divinity at Brown was William B. Parshley of the class of 1886, missionary in Yokohama. Only one man was similarly honored at Yale, George W. Knox, professor at Union Theological seminary, who won his spurs as a missionary to Japan and there laid the foundation of his large contribution to the study of comparative religions.

An old lady who used to know Scott has just died in Edinburgh at the age of ninety-seven. Mrs. Jean Burke was a Macgregor whose ancestors came from the Braes of Balquhidder, and in whose family there runs a tradition that they were direct descendants of Rob Roy. Mrs. Burke, in her young days, along with her two sisters, resided next door to Sir Walter Scott, and saw him regularly every morning leaving his house for his duties in parliament house. The three young Macgregors, consistent with the tradition of their family, were in the habit of wearing cloaks of Rob Roy tartan, and the old lady recalled how Sir Walter Scott used to greet them, as they started for school, with the words, "Rob Roy Macgregor."

LAKEVIEW PARK

The next one of the big, free, out-of-door attractions at Lakeview park will be seen Monday and every afternoon and evening during next week. Rollo, the Limit, will be the attraction.

Rollo has an act that justifies him in going under the appellation of "The Limit," as it is the limit in daring and pure reckless nerve. The act is fast and sensational. While it does not take long to perform it is so intensely thrilling that it seems to the excited spectator as almost an age.

It is the only turn of its kind in America although there are many of a similar nature, none, however, which go to the extent of sensation reached by Rollo. Everybody is familiar with the loop-the-loop acts of a few years ago, which were done in automobiles, or bicycles and in various ways. Each of these however, had an extension of the incline in the form of a loop to guide the looped.

Rollo introduces the novelty of doing away with the loop entirely. He dashes down a steep incline on roller skates and at the bottom flies off into space, turning a swift, complete somersault before alighting on another incline which eases off his descent to the ground.—Adv.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE

Today's two performances of "Raffles the Cracksman" will close a most successful week at this theatre.

Commencing Monday, July 3d, a dramatic event of unusual interest will be presented "Salomy Jane" the play in which Miss Eleanor Robson scored her biggest success. The Lakeview Theatre Stock company will give this fine western story a careful presentation, with new scenic effects and all the detail for which this company is becoming known. "Salomy Jane" was written by Paul Armstrong and it's scenes are laid in the fertile dramatic fields of California.

Miss Marie Horton will be seen as "Salomy Jane" and she may be depended on to give it an artistic portrayal. Mr. Arthur Behrens will have the role of the man who has demonstrated his ability to portray almost any kind of a role satisfactorily. Wm. A. Williams will play the "Gambler" and the stage coach driver will be Mr. J. J. Owens. Bartley McCullum will play Col. Starbottle the comedy role of the play and Paul Armstrong the author has made of this part a feature for comedy.

The love story told in this play between Salomy Jane and "The Man" is of the true, rugged west, and Salomy's kiss in the first act is one of the treats of the drama, for all she knows about "The Man" whom she kisses is that he has killed "Baldwin" the man who has insulted her. From that time on the love interest is strong and is without doubt the success of the play. There will be a matinee every day excepting Monday afternoon.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

"Two Thousand Dollars Reward" is the title of a pretty comedy drama which is to be given at the Merrimack Square theatre next week by that popular actor, Mortimer Snow, and his assistants. Miss Lillian Lee Anderson, O. E. Covert and Dan McCabe. The latter is the well known Lowell boy who has appeared with the Rathaway theatre stock company in seasons past and also with other favorably known organizations. The playlet in which the above are to appear is one of the very best of the numerous western pieces, and contains an evenly balanced and cleverly told story of life among the plains. It concerns the escape of a bandit who succeeds in eluding the officers of the law and for whose capture a reward of $2000 is offered. The whereabouts of the man becomes known to the young girl on the ranch, but she in knowing the true story of the affair in which it is alleged he is directly implicated, assists in shielding him from the officers and eventually helps not a little in establishing his innocence. Mr. Snow, as the escaped bandit, is sure to continue in the approval of his audiences for such a character is just to his liking, while Miss Anderson, as the ranch girl, will again be seen in a congenial part. The staging of the piece will be given the same care and attention of the past.

Ash and Carr, travesty artists, will be seen in an amusing series of burlesque of famous and well known stage folk, and Miss Margaret McDonough, who recently appeared in the Mortimer Snow Co., will be heard in songs. Will Carpenter, the Lowell boy known as "The Roller Skating Wizard" will be a unique exhibition on the rollers and is sure of meeting with the success which has characterized his work in the past. The photo-plays will be among the very best ever shown here, and are the kind that not only entertain and amuse, but instruct as well. They are all approved by the state.

For the sacred concerts Sunday afternoon and evening the Four Manning Sisters in a refined act, Dodd and Campbell, Miss May E. Whiteley, Morgan and West in a new act, and others. The pictures will be new and novel. Remember that the temperature of this playhouse averages about 20 degrees cooler than is found on the outside. Baseball results nightly.—Adv.

THEATRE VOYONS

Commencing Monday the Theatre Voyons will show "Fighting Blood," a Biograph Western Indian picture in which 200 horses and 300 actors appear. This picture is unquestionably the best and most thrilling western reel ever made and its showing will win unlimited approval. The story of the pioneer families attacked by hundreds of Indians and their stirring defence and the exciting rescue by a troop of cavalry is well told and the outdoor fight was staged amid surroundings unequalled in impressiveness. On Thursday the Theatre Voyons will present as an added attraction the first motion pictures of the coronation of King George V in London.—Adv.

CLOSING EXERCISES

Of the Lowell Commercial College Held Last Night

Associate hall was the scene of a brilliant affair last night, when the graduation exercises of the Lowell Commercial college were held. The attendance was very large and after the presentation of the diplomas and a well rendered literary program, dancing was enjoyed till a late hour.

Altogether 71 young men and women received their papers and the beauty of this graduating class is that nearly every one is immediately going into a position that has awaited his or her completion of the course of study and practice.

Judge Frederick A. Fisher presided and also presented the diplomas, while the address to the graduates was by Cyrus A. Durgin, principal of the state normal school.

In his opening address Judge Fisher complimented the 71 graduates as well as the masters and brought out the fact that out of the class, 13 came from neighboring towns, eight from four other New England states, outside of Massachusetts, and three from Canada, thus showing the outside reputation of the college.

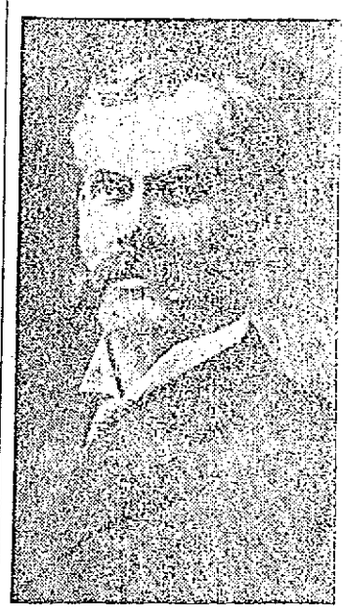

"I have no doubt," he said, "that there are larger colleges in the state, but I doubt if there are better ones; and I have taken pains to attend a recitation, and to study the curriculum. This institution seems to have anticipated, by a good many years, what is now a well recognized need,—and that is, for vocational training.

"I am glad to see that the class has adopted as its motto, the word 'concentration,' which is consistent with the motto of the college itself, as the school that has made good. Efficiency is what we are looking for today. I noticed that the curriculum includes a 'model office.' I hope the graduates will be charitable to us, when they go into our offices; for I doubt if they will find any other model office in the city."

Mr. Cyrus A. Durgin said in part: "These graduations from the different schools and colleges at this season of the year mean a great deal more than merely coming together and receiving diplomas. They mean the entrance into the world's competitions of new blood and new vitality.

"When we think of the colleges of Massachusetts, when we think of the small army of young men and young women who have been leaving those colleges this week and last week to take up the world's work; when we think of the nearly 300 high schools in Massachusetts and the hosts of young men and young women that attend them—nearly 75,000 strong; and when we think of the host of children attending the elementary schools,—more than half a million in number, requiring more than 13,000 teachers, when we think of the vast sums of money expended for the erection of buildings,—more than 13 millions,—and more than 19 millions and a quarter annually for the maintenance of those buildings; and in contrast with that, think of the size of Massachusetts as it looks on the map; we are obliged to come to the conclusion that education in this state is a very serious thing.

"In the old days, a boy was sent to college after he had graduated from the high school or the academy. There he took up the study of Greek, higher mathematics, and eventually some of the sciences; and when he emerged he was an educated man. Later on, I am glad that we did the same for the girls. I believe in that kind of education; it does a great deal for those who take it.

LEDOIT E. KIMBALL

But conditions are changing in the commercial and industrial life of the nation, and our education has changed. In these days it is not looked upon as absolutely essential for everybody to study Latin, or for everybody to know the rudiments of chemistry. We look upon education in a two-fold way—the so-called 'cultural' education and the other, which we may call 'vocational.' I am at the head of a vocational school and am talking to the graduates of another vocational school.

"Vocational training is divided into five parts: First, the professional side, dealing with the training of ministers, physicians, lawyers and teachers. It is now proposed to have agricultural schools. Then we have what we may call the industrial type of education. Then the commercial form, of which the Lowell Commercial college is a type. Last and most important of all, is the department of vocational education which has to do with the training of young women for the household arts.

"We frequently hear people speak of 'Vocational education versus cultural education.' There is no sense in that, and never has been. Anything that is 'cultural' is brought about in the last analysis by cultivation. It is a fact that if a man can speak well, we look upon him as being educated, more than if he can do something with his hands, and that is incorrect. Culture comes from doing well what you have to do; it makes no difference whether you are learning book-keeping or getting a few paragraphs in Caesar.

"There is no conflict between the cultural, or the general side of education, and that which has to do with earning one's living. I am positive that there is just as much culture in a young lady learning the ways of children and how to teach them well, as there is in learning the best verse that has ever been written."

The speaker then congratulated the pupils as well as the president of the college, LeDoit E. Kimball, for the success obtained during the year.

Uses of Salicylic Acid

Salicylic Acid is one of the best-known antiseptics and germicides. It is so highly esteemed that practically all food products are preserved by it.

One of its chief virtues is that it removes disagreeable odors, particularly in the hair and scalp.

Salicylic acid, in correct proportion, is used in Birt's Head Wash, so that the scalp and hair are left in a perfectly clean condition after a shampoo with it, and any parasites or vermin that may have been present are effectively removed.

This feature makes Birt's Head Wash almost indispensable in the nursery.

Children using it frequently could hardly get ringworm or vermin. Birt's Head Wash also contains cocoanut oil, glycerin and whites of eggs, which are recognized by all schools as being of peculiar benefit in hair and scalp disorders, particularly dandruff, itching scalp and faded, falling, lifeless hair. In hygienic tubes 25c., at all druggists.

CRUSHED BY AN AUTO

Lawrence Youth Killed at Derry, N. H.

DERRY, N. H., July 1.—Stephen Murphy, 15, step-son of Noah Hamel of Lawrence, Mass., was almost instantly killed a few miles north of Derry yesterday afternoon, being run over and crushed by a heavy automobile truck. Hamel was returning from Suncook whither he had taken a load of furniture. After making a brief stop near Londonderry, the boy went to the front to crank the automobile, which was started. The boy was standing on the step and in some unaccountable manner slipped so that he was thrown around beneath the wheels, the rear one passing over his body. A physician was called, but the unfortunate lad was dead before aid could be rendered him.

BIG ATHLETIC MEET

Senior Events Will be Held at Pittsburg

PITTSBURG, July 1.—With four records in junior events smashed yesterday at the first day of the A. A. U. meet here, today, the second day, was looked to for the greater events, those of the seniors in which athletes of national and international reputation are entered. Thirty-two cities and 37 of the most prominent athletic clubs of the country are represented and these athletes besides competing for national titles also have an eye to places on the team that will represent America in the quadrennial Olympic games in Stockholm next year.

The fine weather of yesterday continued today and from all indications early in the day there would be nothing weatherwise to interfere with the program, which is scheduled to start at 2 p. m.

GIVEN FIVE YEARS

BABY FARMER WAS SENT TO FEDERAL PRISON

WILMINGTON, Del., July 1.—Mrs. Elizabeth Ashmead, 60 years old, the notorious baby farmer, convicted in the federal court of using the mails for improper purposes, was yesterday sentenced by Judge Bradford to five years' imprisonment in the government prison at Leavenworth, Kan.

She was also sentenced to pay $1000 fine and costs of prosecution. The woman was trapped by Postoffice Inspector Plummer by means of decoy letters. The accused served three years' imprisonment in Philadelphia for operating a baby farm and subsequently served nine months also in Philadelphia for violation of postal laws.

Mrs. Ashmead will start Sunday in the custody of Deputy United States Marshal John Mitchell.

BABY KNEW THE DIFFERENCE

One mother has learned by experience that baby powders are not alike. Mrs. N. T. Hartshorn of Sandisfield, Mass., used Comfort Powder for her first baby and its skin was always healthy and perfect. For the second baby she used borated talcum, and the baby was chafed for six weeks. Then she went back to Comfort Powder and in two days the chafing had disappeared and the baby was happy. Its skin knew the difference between an irritating, highly-perfumed talcum and soothing, healing Comfort Powder. E. S. Sykes' name is on the genuine.

SCHOOL DISTRICT

THE TOWN OF WILMINGTON ADMITTED TO IT

Wilmington has been added to the school district which comprised Tyngsboro, Tewksbury, Dracut and North Reading. The town was admitted into the district at a meeting of the district school committee held at the Y. M. C. A. building in this city.

Mr. Julius E. Warren was present at the meeting as the representative of the state board of education and he explained the reason for the annexation of Wilmington to the district as outlined by the state board. Mr. Warren was questioned by the different members of the committee and after giving answers which were satisfactory to the committee it was voted to admit the town.

The change by the addition of Wilmington will add to the duties already incumbent upon Supt. of Schools S. Howard Chace and the committee in considering this phase of the situation unanimously agreed to an increase of $500 per year in the superintendent's salary, thus making his yearly compensation $2400.

Dracut as part of the former school district paid something like $1000 as the proportional share of the superintendent's salary and under the change, which will include Wilmington in the new apportionment, this town's share toward the salary will be decreased according to its fractional proportion of the new district.

THE IROQUOIS CLUB

Annual Party Was Held Last Night

The annual summer party and dance of the Iroquois Canoe club was held last night at Willow Dale, and over 500 friends of the members spent the evening in a delightful manner. The clubhouse, on the shore of Lake Massapoag, was decorated and illuminated in an artistic and attractive manner, and the members of the club did everything in their power to entertain their friends.

The water front of the clubhouse was strung with Japanese lanterns, while the interior was decorated in an appropriate manner. Dancing was enjoyed at Breezy Point which was also decorated, canoes with attractive streamers being placed around the hall.

At intermission all repaired to the clubhouse, where refreshments were served and a musical program carried out. The musical program was informal, several members taking part. Mr. John Marren sang several selections, and there were also duets by the Misses Margaret and Rose McDonough. Mr. Adelarde Lamereux was the accompanist. Dancing followed and continued until after midnight.

Mr. George Barris is commodore of the club, and the officers of last night's dance were as follows: General managers, David Dwyer and Joseph Maguire; floor director, James Grant; assistant floor director, Herve Cote; chief aid, George Boucher; aids, Colin McKenzie, Arthur Bolton, Walter Jewett, George Watson, Chester Guild, Fred Hall, John Farrell, John Sutherland, Cecil Hosmer, Albert Willis, John Grant, William Grant, C. D. Asquith, George Nelson, Arthur Provencher, John Marren and Charles Driscoll.

MRS. GETCHELL'S WILL

Time Limit on Bequests Has Expired

The time limit placed on the distribution of her estate by the late Lorinda M. Getchell has expired and several Lowell charities will soon receive substantial bequests through her will. Mrs. Getchell died in 1905 leaving many bequests to relatives, friends and the parish house of St. John's church and the residue to the executor of her will, in trust for five years pending the return of a son, from whom she had not heard for several years. If in five years time no trace of the son had been found then $500 was bequeathed to the Day Nursery of which the Rev. Dr. L. C. Manchester is president; $500 to the Eliot church, of which the Rev. John M. Greene is pastor and $500 to the Old Ladies' home of this city. The time of the trust has expired, and the son not having been heard from, the executor, Mr. Marcella Greenwood, will soon forward to the above institutions their bequests.

SUMMER FROCKS FOR OUTDOOR WOMEN

IT'S away for the seashore or country at last by the contingent that has remained in town until the present. The weather has been so delightful that the town stayers have found this to be no special infliction, and those who are now departing have the comfortable consciousness they are taking with them what are really the latest and smartest garments.

One thing that is making this season a notable one is the popularity of the sensible outing garment. While afternoon and evening gowns are wild and even the tailor made is freakish, the costume designed for the outdoor woman is really more charming than it has ever been before.

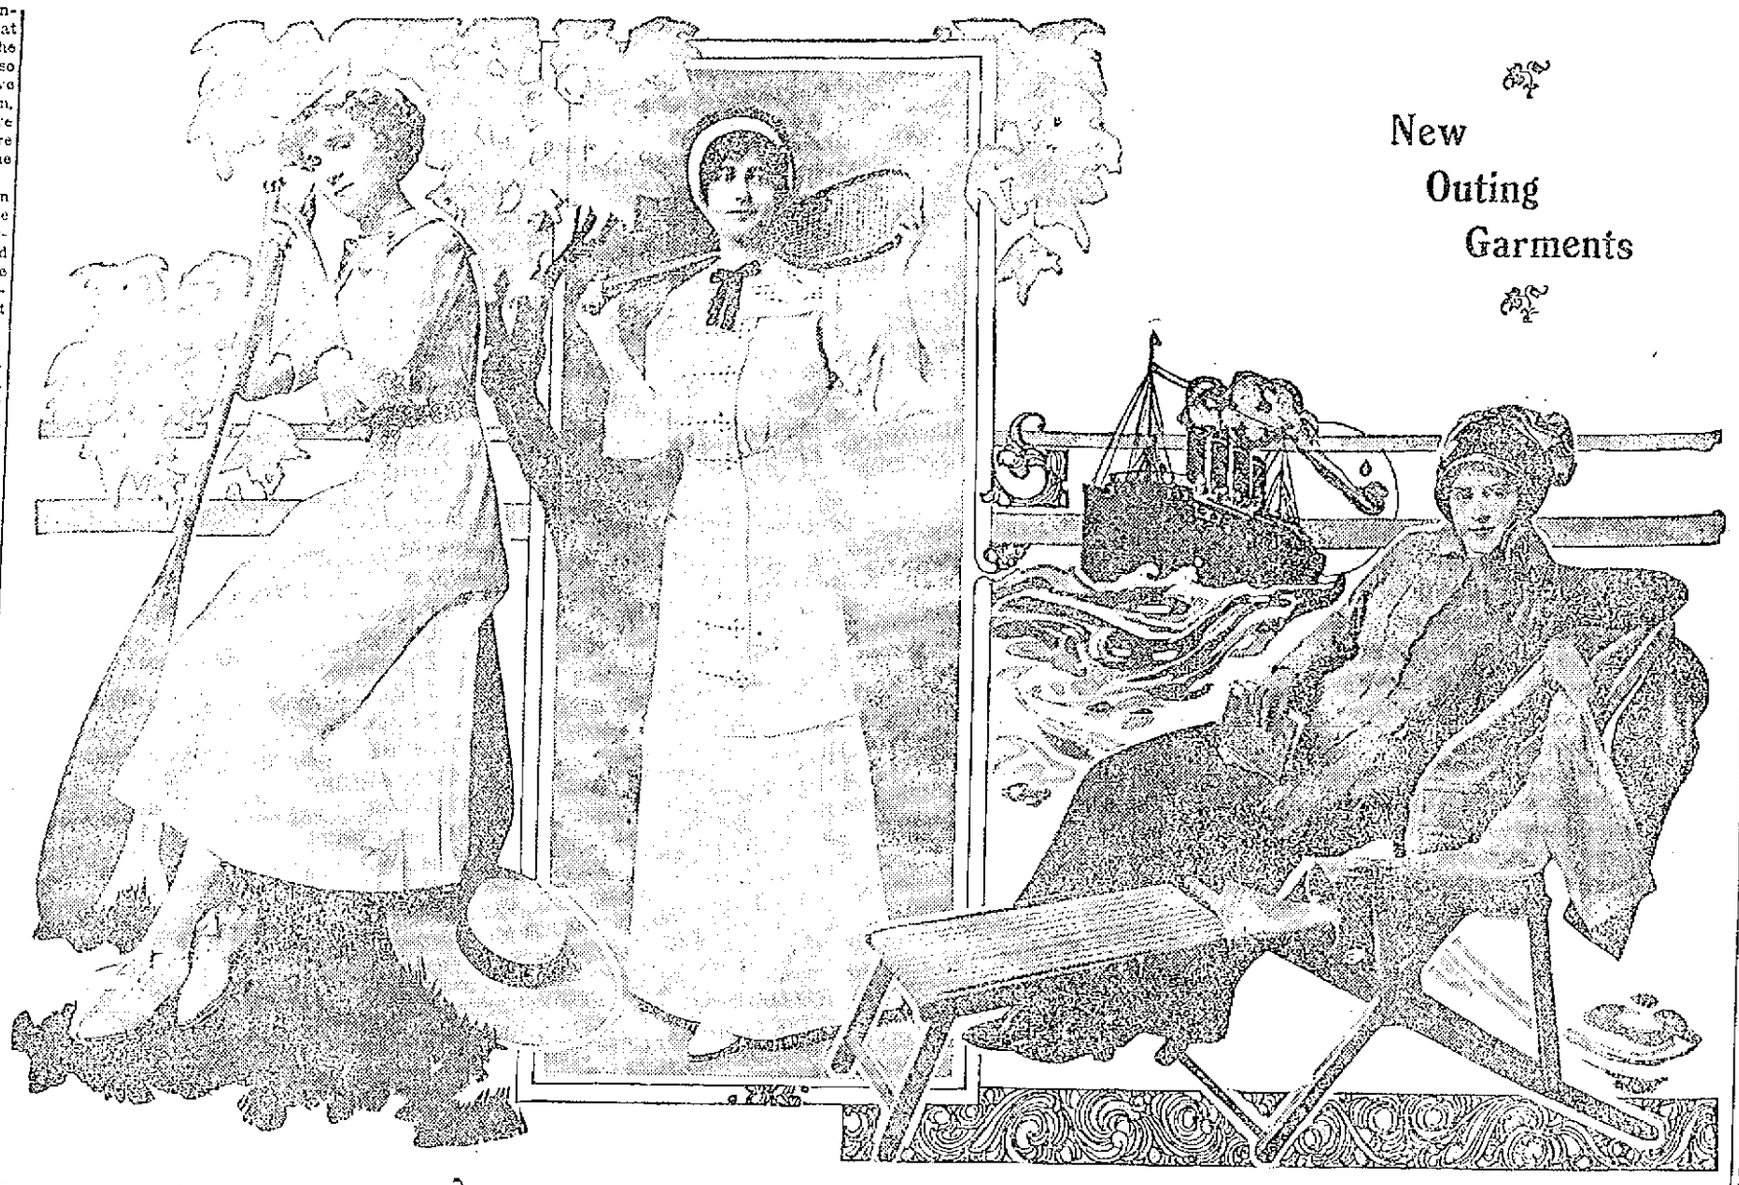

Take the modish tennis costume.

It is made of any fetching material—linen, pique, chambray or lawn. One may wear any color that suits the taste, and it is considered quite smart to combine two shades, as blue and red, the coronation colors, or contrast any color you choose with plain white.

Embroideries also are allowable on gowns for sports. The tennis gown illustrated here is quite pleasingly adorned with a simple embroidery in white and green. The skirt has a deep hem, above which a fold of the material is adjusted to give the appearance of a tunic. The garment is a one piece affair, closing at the left, where handsome ornaments are embroidered to give the appearance of frogs. The square sailor collar is covered with braiding and embroidery and is finished with a pretty tie made of green velvet ribbon. The band of ribbon over the hair is wide enough to keep stray ringlets in place during a lively game. A soft finished, rather coarse linen is the fabric selected for this frock. For tennis, croquet, yachting, boating or a quiet morning on the hotel veranda one could scarcely hope to find a more attractive costume. With the embroidery all in white it would be possible to vary the collars and ties to give the appearance of a new frock each day.

Light blue chambray with a band trimming of interlaced circles and fleur-de-lis was adopted for the making of the other little outdoor gown pictured here. With its brief skirt it is suitable for canoeing or a morning on the links. These band trimmings may be purchased separately and are available in every shade.

For the girl who does not care to invest in an entire suit various combinations may be achieved by combining the mannish shirt waist now in the shops with a plain linen or serge skirt. Some of these waists are so severely masculine that I know of one girl who is wearing a fetching summer silk shirt which her brother bought with the intention of appearing in it himself.

New Outing Garments

The sweater is still with us in spite of the modifications of the weather. It is useful to the girl who is invited for a week on a yacht or who is contemplating a sea voyage of any particular length. Pictured here is a clinging sweater of Angora wool in the Norfolk jacket shape. On mild mornings on shipboard the sweater is quite warm enough without the heavy steamer coat of tweed or blanket cloth. The little toque of satin and velvet is suitable for the deck of the smart liner, yet is built snugly enough for a motoring journey.

The new silk jersey has low neck and short sleeves and is waterproofed for wear in the surf. The smartest bathing costumes this year are made with divided skirts, but they are plaited so that the division is not obvious.

Riding togs are also divided. The sailor hat and various modifications of the sailor are popular with the equestrienne. CATHERINE TALBOT.

TENNIS COSTUME

DEVOTEES of the tennis court have some extremely pretty styles to choose from this season. The smart tennis gown illustrated here is just as suitable for walking or golf as for tennis. Linen, chambray and even dimity are used for the construction of the modish outing gown. Any color that is liked may be chosen—pale blue, pink and a shade of sage green, which is considered very smart, are popular. The tennis gowns are very simple, the bodices seamless and attached to a straight rather narrow skirt under a wide girdle. White pearl or white crochet buttons are sometimes used to fasten the waists, and the collars are invariably low cut, generally on the sailor style, with a neat tie as a finish. The sleeves are usually short, with turned back cuffs of contrasting material. A hat of soft panama garnished with a loose scarf of oriental pattern is generally worn with the outing dress. Never before have what comes under the head of "washing gowns" been so substantial looking and so durable. Cotton voiles and marquisettes are leading ideas, and stripes of different width distinguish many fabrics, which prove useful when the classic idea in dress asserts itself. The horizontal lines and the wide stripes, together with polka dots, all figure in the new washing stuffs. Some of the colorings recall old fashioned dimities. The white voiles show format sprays and latticework effects. Plain linens have been brought out in beautiful colorings.

Nature's Suggestions

WHEN we reflect how brief is the time which has elapsed since the period of grained woodwork and horsehair upholstery, when we recall its accompanying wall papers and carpets, with their patterns which haunted the eye like a mathematical nightmare, it seems almost incredible that so short a time has sufficed for a change so great in taste. Ugliness and stupidity were in possession in the horsehair age. Furniture was just tables and chairs. Carpets were flung down haphazard, curtains were heavy and dark. We were entirely at the mercy of the builder, who produced his rolls of paper, in which bilious drabs and hot pinks were the predominating tones. They were undoubtedly bad for the nerves and altogether unrestful, but in this strenuous age, when we have become almost hypercritical, some of the atrocities of decoration which were then tolerated would conduce to madness.

We have left behind the stiff, uncompromising horsehair suits, the glass shades, the stuffed birds, the waxen flowers and are no longer to be deluded into accepting "birdseye maple" or "satinwood" which is created by three layers of paint.

Now we think in styles, in schemes, in epochs. We can have our walls, our floors and our curtains just as simple as we like or as rich as we please. The modern builder, while he gives us colonial or empire fixtures or Jacobean moldings, does not attempt to influence us in the selection of color schemes. We are in no way coerced into accepting unsuitable wall paper. We have helpful suggestions in plenty in the artistic fabrics and paperings which are available. We can see specimen rooms where this or that complete scheme is successfully carried out, but all this only stimulates our own desire to create some individual scheme of decoration which shall be in complete harmony with our taste. People today who can see harmony are becoming as common as people who could only hear it a few years ago.

Nature is full of the kindest and most helpful hints—the warm drab and sharp green of a dish of broad beans is a classical example, and the suggestion inherent in the stalk and leaf of many plants needs only following intelligently to get the most subtle and perfect harmonies. The winter countryside, with its abundance of drabs and buffs, of grays and purples, ought to educate us to a fineness of color perception akin to that of the Japanese.

In adapting nature tints to interior decorative schemes it must be remembered that wall and curtain and furnishing are, after all, not complete decoration in themselves, but the background and scenery for the dramatis personæ and need breadth and repose to keep their place in the scheme of things. Rooms should have their suggestion of purpose and association of wise ideas. A white dining room, for instance, would strike us as cold and cheerless. Even the rather heavy and dull red of the Victorian epoch is more appropriate. A dining room ought to have a certain warmth of color, though the colors themselves may be light in tone. Buffs and golden browns for paper and hangings, with old oak furniture and a carpet in a deeper shade of brown would be a very pleasing room. Perhaps the brown toned dining room is the most delightful of any, although there are many people who cling to red as the only possible dining-room color. There are many possibilities in soft green tones adaptable to dining room decoration, but blue is desirable only in its darker tones or intermingled with the red of oriental style.

Styles Favorable For Plump, Not Fat, Women

Styles were never more favorable to the plump woman than at present. The straight, trim looking skirts, the simple peasant blouse and the fashionable coat of the season are all unusually becoming to those of average height. But as to the stout short woman, heaven defend her! And she moans, "Why can't fashion editors devote several pages to women as they really are?" Dear madam, if the fashion pages were filled with pictures of women as they really look there wouldn't be a pattern or a magazine sold. Women are illustrated as they want to look, not as they are. Their vanity has to be appealed to, for women as a whole can't stand the truth. It would be interesting to know if the stout ladies one sees gowned in the height of the style think that they are replicas of their tall willowy sisters illustrated in the fashion books.

CHILDREN'S ROOMS.

For children's rooms and night nurseries pale pink and white is a delightful combination, and while striving to have everything as dainty as possible one must avoid unnecessary fluffiness, remembering that all draperies, etc., will be paying frequent visits to the laundry.

WALL DECORATIONS

Many Dainty Floral Designs and Japanese Effects

Colored effects predominate in the scheme of wall decoration this season. Bold chintz patterns on delicate backgrounds are some of the most beautiful among the selections to be seen in the best shops. With these decorative papers it is hardly necessary to hang pictures. One of the most delightful examples of Japanese art is in delicate tones of pink on a creamy brown striped frieze, which are most effective, with the deeper colored dado headed by a narrow fanciful border, which border is also placed at the top of the frieze. This particular design can be adapted to various treatments. It is a copy of an old Japanese dress. The rose crown decoration on white striped paper is one of the most beautiful of the hand printed patterns suitable for high pitched rooms. The sweet pea is a novel design for a frieze on white moire paper. Another new idea for high walls is square paneling, obtained by floral borders on white or cream grounds. The aster border is one of the prettiest of this kind. The Sevres crown decoration and the laburnum with diaper filling are other notable examples of this form of wall treatment, especially suited to a drawing room or boudoir.

LET THE LITTLE ONES FIDGET.

Children of the present day will not "be seen and not heard." They have learned that a wise doctor has said that the more a child is heard the finer will become its lungs, the deeper its breath and the more lasting its health. Every child must be allowed to fidget. It is not only nice for the child, but an absolute necessity to insure normal development. The modern child has advantages over its parents.

Acknowledging Invitations

An invitation should always be answered as quickly as possible and in the same form that it is given. For instance, if you receive a card which says, "Mrs. Jones requests the pleasure of Miss Brown's company on Wednesday, June 12," you reply, "Miss Brown has much pleasure in accepting Mrs. Jones' kind invitation for Wednesday, June 12." If, on the other hand, Mrs. Jones writes, "Dear Miss Brown, I shall be so glad if you will come to tea with me on Wednesday, June 12," you answer, "Dear Mrs. Jones, I shall be delighted to have tea with you on Wednesday, June 12." This rule of answering invitations holds good in every case. If you send a refusal it is polite to give a reason and not merely to say that you are sorry you cannot go. After being present at a dinner, dance, wedding, "at home" or large tea party it is usual to call upon the hostess within a week.

HATS FOR GIRLS.

A pretty hat for a young girl is made in black fancy straw with a high crown and trimmed on both sides of the brim with old world rose patterned ribbon. This hat is also adorned with clusters of tiny pink roses and green leaves.

A very pretty hat in black straw, intended for quite a tiny wearer, is lined under the brim with frills of ivory lace and trimmed round the crown with wreaths of pink roses and knots of ribbon, while another hat, which is entirely new, is covered smoothly with black satin and arranged with a trimming of flowers and ribbon and a lining of shot silk chosen in pale colorings.

The Summer Girl's Hair

IF hair is never given special attention at any other time it should be considered in the summer. The no hat fad makes this imperative, and the no hat fad is one that has come to stay—it is so comfortable and convenient. Now that the "hat must match the gown" ruling is so strict the dispensing with a hat when the occasion will allow it affords a neat way of getting around this requirement. At the fashionable summer resort one sees people hatless as often as with hats. The coiffures, however, are works of art.

The girl who cannot employ a fashionable hairdresser can do much to improve the condition of her own hair. It should always be clean. The doctrine that hair should only be washed or shampooed at frequent intervals is nonsense. Hair should be given a good shampoo or wash at least once a month, and if the hair is dry a little glycerin added to the water will neutralize the effect of the soap and water so far as the depletion of oil in the hair is concerned.

At this time some formulas for improving the condition of the hair may be useful.

To make the hair look glossy comb it with a comb on which a few drops of hair oil have been dropped. Oil of rosemary used alone will serve. This will prevent the hair from becoming limp and unmanageable. It is best combed thus at night when retiring.

To restore hair which has faded from its natural color apply this lotion:

Tincture of jaborandi, 4 drams; lanolin, 2 drams; glycerin, 2 drams; soft soap, 1 dram.

Mix thoroughly and rub into the roots of the hair every night.

Gray hair is generally hopeless. A loss of sulphur in the blood or iron in the blood is sometimes a cause of early grayness. Sometimes use of these tonics will help the hair. It at least ought to prevent the grayness from spreading. Dandruff sometimes is a cause of grayness. The cure is treatment for the removal of dandruff. A nervous shock or a fever may bring about a change in the color of the hair. Rock salt dissolved in brandy is a hair tonic recommended by some. An unguent made by melting beef marrow to measure a gill, adding a tablespoonful of olive oil and a few drops of violet for perfume sometimes restores gray hair.

To remove dandruff from the hair take tincture of cantharides, 1 ounce; rectified spirits of wine, 1 ounce; essence of rosemary, 10 drops; essence of verbena, 10 drops; bay rum, 1 ounce; orange flower water, 3 ounces. Mix and rub into the roots of the hair every night.

The Pretty Mannequin

THE life of a Parisian dressmaker's model, or mannequin, as she is called in France, is outwardly luxurious and easy. She dresses in silk attire, she walks upon carpets rich and rare, she has a maid to dress her, a hairdresser to do her hair in the very latest style, her hands are carefully manicured, and for at least five hours a day she parades before an admiring audience in dresses so beautiful that even the heart of a millionairess is sometimes reduced to envy.

She puts on disdainful little airs with her employers, she orders her dresser about with the haughty ways of a stage duchess, she stands or glides before the highest ladies in the land with the detached indifference of the most regal of sovereigns, and the idea of associating her with anything sordid or poor or hardworking seems preposterous.

But there is a very different side to the picture.

Where does she live, this beautiful mannequin? What wages does she earn? What position does she hold in the eyes of her fellow workers? And what becomes of her when her beauty and grace have gone?

A beautiful American girl in Paris was in desperate straits for money and even for food. She was too good looking to have any success as a governess, a nurse or anything domestic, so she thought she would become a mannequin.

So she, with this idea in view, went to see a big dressmaker, and after receiving her none too politely he offered her nine hours' work a day and $20 a month, no food included.

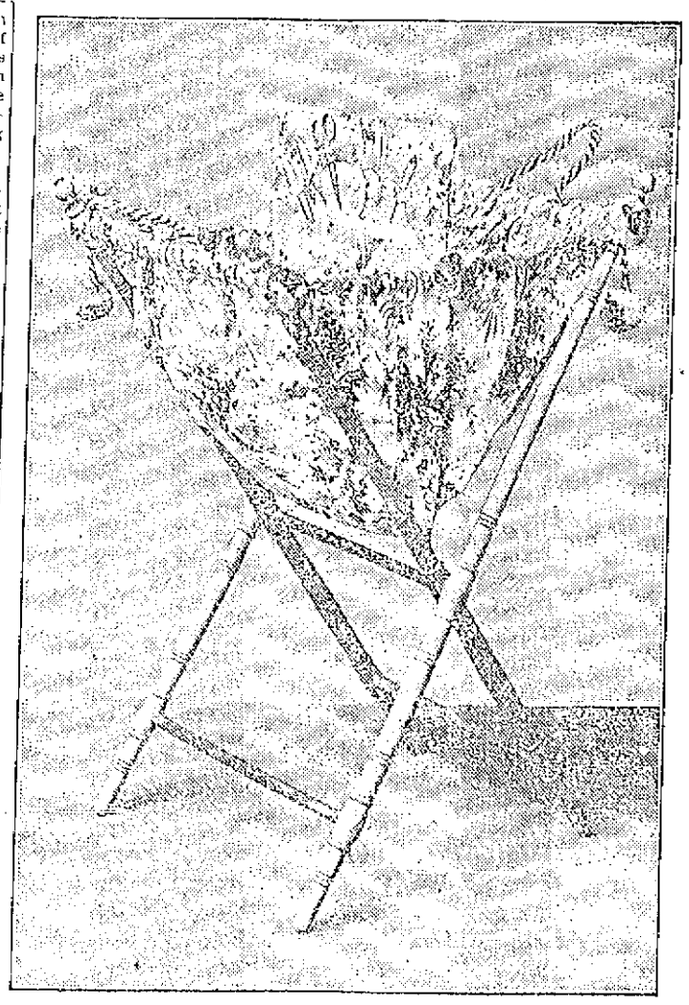

She told him it was impossible for her to live in Paris on that and still keep her good looks.

"No one asks you to," he answered, and when she angrily told him that she was an honest woman he merely shrugged his shoulders and told her she could please herself whether she took his offer or not.

In defense of the man's apparent callousness let it be said that the majority of French mannequins accept these conditions with philosophy. They probably do not like them, but they are essentially cynical and fatalistic, and possibly they come to the conclusion that "such is life," so why make a fuss about it? Thus the dressmaker grows used to their indifference and finds any objection to his accepted conditions merely tiresome.

There are exceptions to these cynical philosophers, of course, and some mannequins are quite virtuous bourgeoise, with husbands and babies at home whom they cherish and love honestly and simply, but the greater number revel in fictitious wealth and ease so long as their beauty lasts.

PORCH SEWING STAND

THIS cretonne covered sewing stand is just the thing for use with the smart willow porch furniture with its cretonne cushions. Such stands cost quite a penny in the fashionable shops, but ingenious women can easily duplicate them or invent something similar just as good. The framework of the stand folds together like a camp chair, and on the cretonne bag are handles by which it may be picked up and carried about. Inside the bag, which consists of cretonne, the sewing utensils are slipped on a flat cretonne covered extension of cardboard, which may be raised or lowered as needed. The spools of thread are arranged on the case beneath the scissors, etc., and a set of needles, including all kinds and sizes, is included. The dividing partition has a semicircular compartment of elastic pockets, in which sewing conveniences may be slipped.

Though capacious enough to accommodate any amount of needlework, mending and darning, the stand is so light and convenient that it may be picked up and carried anywhere.

Grand Union Lodge, I. O. O. F.—Its History and Present Officers

The order of Odd Fellows in this country dates from April 26, 1819, when Thomas Wildey founded Washington lodge, No. 1, in Baltimore, Md., but prior to this, and running even to 1823, lodges were "self-instituted" in this country, said lodges, each and all, believing themselves to be the only Odd Fellows' lodge existing in the United States at that time. It was then the custom, where five brothers could be got together, to self-institute and operate a lodge. Records were not considered necessary, so no definite knowledge as to their work has been treasured.

Grand Union lodge, No. 7, of this

FRANK B. WRIGHT,
Secretary of Grand Union Lodge

city sprung from the seventh oldest lodge in the country, Merrimack lodge, which was instituted in Lowell on July 18, 1829. Later came Mechanics lodge, instituted Oct. 26, 1842; Lowell lodge was instituted Oct. 9, 1845. The latter surrendered its charter on Dec. 26, 1850, and was reinstituted Feb. 26, 1874. Lincoln lodge was instituted on March 4, 1870.

On April 4, 1905, the four latter lodges consolidated and formed what is now known as Grand Union lodge, No. 7, the first board of officers being as follows:

N. G.—C. C. Thompson.
V. G.—A. B. Hilliard.

After the consolidation the lodge first met at Odd Fellows hall, corner of Market and Central streets, which is now known as the rajahbean headquarters. In the 70's, the Carlton building in Merrimack street near Shattuck street, was purchased and remodeled, and the meetings were held there until the Odd Fellows temple in Middlesex street was erected. The meetings are now being held at the latter place every Thursday evening.

There are now 434 names on the membership roll and the lodge is in very good financial condition. Under the efficient care of the present noble grand, Fred I. Vinal, the lodge is very prosperous and its funds as well as its members are increasing rapidly.

Those in charge of the lodge at the present time are the following:

N. G.—F. I. Vinal

STOCK MARKET

SOME ADVANCES IN THE EARLY BUYING MOVEMENT

Later There was a Downward Tendency—Atchison and Southern Pacific Went Half a Point Below Yesterday's Closing—The Remainder of the List Was Steady

NEW YORK, July 1.—Strength in the Erie issues which were influenced by the report that the road was to be affiliated with the Canadian Pacific was the feature of the stock market at the opening today. Erie first and second preferred gained a point each and the common a substantial fraction. Canadian Pacific remained virtually stationary. A heavy buying movement in Western Maryland advanced that stock 2 1-2. U. S. Steel was not affected by the government report and the stock gained a small fraction. A few of the less active issues were weak.

The general market made only a feeble response to the rise in U. S. Steel to 79 1-4 and prices shaded off afterwards with Atchison and Southern Pacific leading the decline. The attendance of traders on the floor was small.

The slight advances effected in the early buying movement were lost when the list adopted a more definite downward tendency. Atchison and Southern Pacific were especially heavy and were forced to about half a point below yesterday's closing. The remainder of the list steadied around last night's level.

Erie Railroad Situation

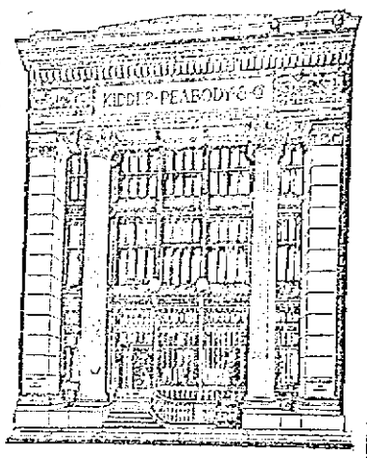

NEW YORK, July 1.—Notwithstanding the sharp rise of Erie railroad stock, which yesterday made a high record for the year, there was no confirmation here today of the report that the controlling interest in the Erie had passed to the Canadian Pacific. It is known, however, that a number of Canadian capitalists have been buying Erie stocks, and yesterday's rise is attributed to this action.

It was learned that while no general traffic arrangements have yet been made between the Erie and the Canadian Pacific, the matter has been discussed informally. Such an arrangement would give the Canadian system entrance into New York via Chicago and Buffalo and afford additional means whereby the Canadian Pacific could meet the competition of the Grand Trunk, which recently acquired a connection between its New England lines and Providence, R. I.

LINN FOUND ALIVE

Wealthy Chicago Man Disappeared on Yacht Water Witch

COTUIT, July 1.—Kenneth Linn, the wealthy Chicago young man who on Thursday night disappeared on board the yacht Water Witch from this place, was found alive on Popponsett point, seven miles from here, on the shore of Nantucket sound today.

Linn was located this forenoon near a summer residence on Popponsett point, according to word received here by Dr. J. J. Higgins, but nothing was said about his physical condition. It is believed, however, that he must be in a starving condition, as there was no food on board the sloop Water Witch, on which he left this place Thursday night. The sloop was found off West Chop today.

Naked and insane, Linn, who is well to do, boarded the Water Witch on Thursday night after eluding his widowed mother and a man nurse and sailed out of the harbor. His disappearance was made known yesterday and since that time searching parties had searched the Sound and its shores for Linn.

Linn was injured in a baseball game in Tampa, Fla., recently, and the injury affected his mind. To recuperate he was brought here last Monday.

Horace Nickerson of this place and three other young men who had been searching the surrounding country found Linn in the hunting lodge owned by Fred W. Lowell of Cambridge.

Nickerson stated that Linn talked rationally at times and seemed to regret the way he had left Cotuit. To all appearances young Linn was none the worse for his experience. Linn said that he sailed only a few miles in the Water Witch, then put in at the cove. He saw that the Lowell house was vacant so went in there to spend the night.

As soon as they discovered the young man the searchers notified N. R. Sawyer, the nurse from whom Linn escaped, and Linn was taken back to Cotuit.

CATHOLIC CHURCH

AT CANOBIE LAKE TO BE OPENED SOON

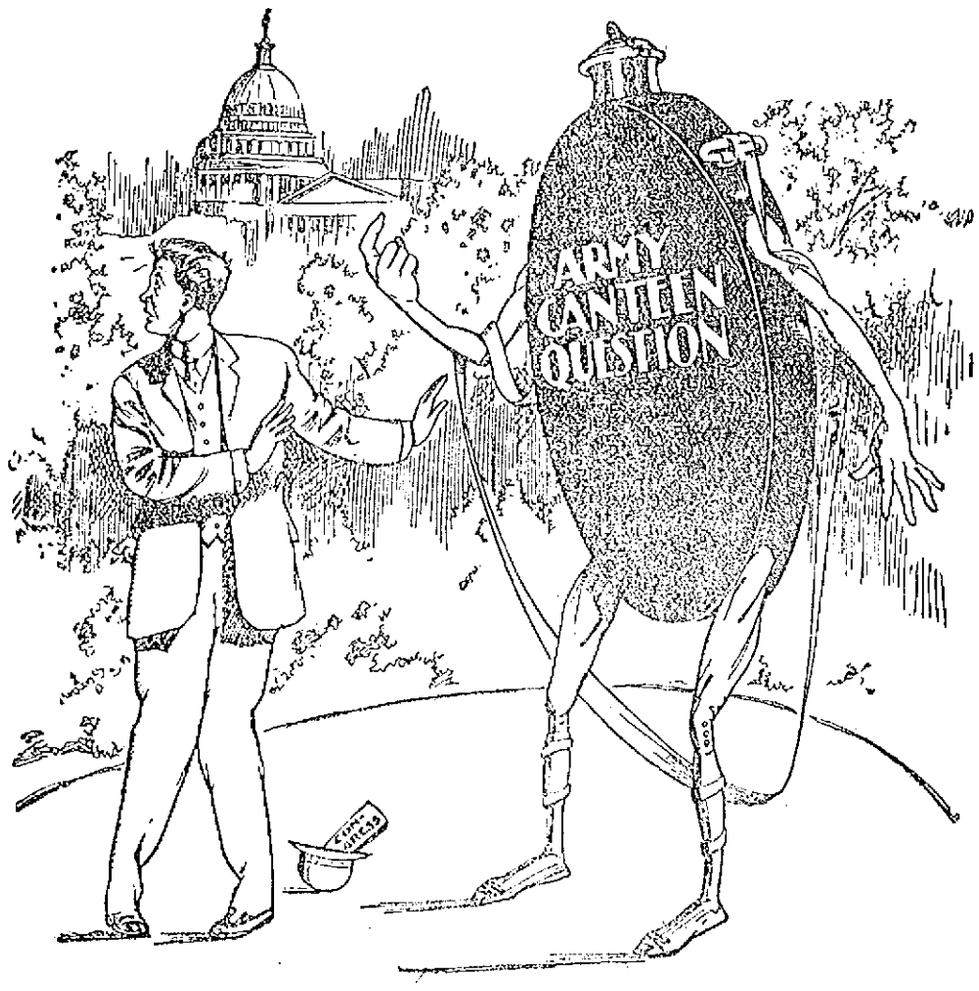

The new Catholic church at Canobie lake will be formally opened in about a fortnight. It will be called the Church of the Immaculate Conception. For several years past the cottage occupants at the lake were obliged to attend services in the neighboring cities. A petition from the vacationists as to the need of a church at the lake was tendered the Bishop at Manchester. The parish was then established and Rev. Fr. John J. McNamara appointed pastor.

Fr. McNamara has recently purchased the Ida Allen place at Salem Depot for a parochial residence, and there the services are held during the winter season. He has had charge of the local parish for two years, celebrating mass at Salem at 8.15 and at Pelham at 9.30. In the summer the service at Pelham was held at the usual time, but the Salem service was held in the rustic theatre at Canobie Lake park at 10.30.

The new church is an attractive structure situated on the shore of the lake. A large bell for the church has been given by Joseph Jackson, of Lawrence. Several prominent clergymen are to assist the bishop in the dedicatory exercises and among them will be Rev. Fr. Thomas I. Gasson, president of Boston college.

VACATION FOR OPERATIVES

PALMER, July 1.—The cotton mill operatives of Palmer, Thorndike, Three Rivers and Ware were given a vacation today until July 10, orders having been received from Boston to suspend work. The mills are controlled by Bliss, Fabyan & Co.

"Yes, I know how it is, but I'm afraid I can't open up. Think how it would look at home."

BEAUTIFUL PAGEANT

Great Celebration Was Opened in Taunton Today

TAUNTON, July 1.—Depleting this city from the time of the Indians to the present day one of the most beautiful pageants ever seen in New England was opened here today. The pageant will continue three days. Two hundred persons participated in the exercises. The pageant was presented this afternoon before enthusiastic crowds. Indians at the time of the landing of the Pilgrims first attracted the eyes of the spectators. Then on the attractively decorated shore of the lake was shown the landing of Columbus. In connection with this scene winsome girls dressed as Spanish maidens danced. The next episode dealt with local surroundings, showing the landing here of Pilgrims from Taunton, England, and the founding of this city. An attack by Indians and the burial of an Indian chief concluded this scene. Then was shown King George III. in his court and Taunton Green on the eve of the Revolution.

But what stirred the hearts of the spectators the most was the scene depicting Robert Treat Paine leaving Taunton to attach his signature to the Declaration of Independence and again his return to Taunton.

The pageant closed with folk dances.

STEAMER ON FIRE

LIVERPOOL, July 1.—The officials of the White Star line announced this afternoon that in view of the fires which have been discovered on the steamer Arabic and supposed to be of incendiary origin, they were compelled to postpone the sailing of the steamer until tomorrow. Another small blaze was discovered this morning. The passengers will be accommodated at the hotels.

The crews of the tugboats struck this morning, and unless a settlement is promptly arranged 23 big steamers, including the Lusitania, will be affected.

MADE WORLD'S RECORD

OFFICI ALINSPECTION

NEWPORT, R. I., July 1.—A unique welcome was given Secretary of the Navy George Von L. Meyer when he arrived here today for an official inspection of the Narragansett Bay naval establishment. In addition to the customary salute of 19 guns from the flagship Connecticut, the secretary was given a salute of 19 guns from a miniature cannon on a 45 foot replica of the flagship built by the bluejackers of the Connecticut. The diminutive Connecticut is equipped with motive power.

SIGNED BY MAYOR

The following orders and resolutions were signed by Mayor Meehan today: Order for $10,000 for the continuance of work at Shedd park; order of $1697.50 for the payment of claims against the city, and resolutions for sewers in Pine street and Cumberland road.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY

WOMAN WAS HELD UP IN NORTH ANDOVER.

LAWRENCE, July 1.—A daring daylight robbery and brutal assault occurred in North Andover Friday afternoon, the victim being Mrs. Fred Rabs, wife of Officer Rabs, whose home is at 675 Forest street in that town.

Mrs. Rabs was going from Berry's corner to her home and while walking along Ash street toward Ingalls crossing an unknown man jumped from behind a tree and grabbed her. He knocked her down several times, tearing her clothes and inflicting numerous painful injuries. He snatched her pocketbook which contained considerable money, and ran away. Chief Leighton was notified and the police are making an effort to find the bold robber.

SAFE AND SANE FOURTH

Local Police Instructed to Enforce the Law

Supt. Redmond Welch of the police department believes in a safe and sane Fourth of July and he will make an honest effort to further reduce danger attending the observance of Independence Day. Monday the members of the department will receive instructions from him relative to the use of fireworks by persons on the streets, rowdyism, etc.

In years gone by there has been considerable rowdyism in the vicinity of the centre of the city and the South common on the Fourth and also the "night before," but owing to the fact that it was taken for granted that the occasion was one for jollification the people were given considerable leeway, but this year the members of the department will be notified to stop the jubilant tactics of people who are out to celebrate.

Copies of laws relative to the keeping, storage, transportation, manufacture, sale and use of fireworks and firecrackers will be given the members of the department and it is the intention of Supt. Welch to have the law carried out to the letter.

The following chapter of the law relative to fireworks and firecrackers is self-explanatory.

Section 49.—Except on the fourth day of July and the seventeenth day of June, or the days celebrated as such, the use or discharge of fireworks or firecrackers without a permit from the Chief of the District Police, or the official designated by him to grant such permits, is hereby prohibited.

Section 50.—No rockets, bombs, aerial shells, Roman candles, Italian batteries or set pieces, except the small set pieces, shall be set off except under the charge of an experienced adult person.

Section 51.—No fireworks or firecrackers shall be set off within 300 feet of any hospital except by special permit.

Section 52. The use of what are technically known as fireworks showers and the use of any mixture containing chlorate of potash and sulphur in theatres or public halls of entertainment are hereby prohibited.

Section 53.—Mortars for discharging bombs shall not be used under any circumstances except in an enclosure prepared for a public display of fireworks, and then under the charge of an experienced pyrotechnist, and each mortar so used shall be placed not less than one-third of its length below the surface of the ground.

Section 54. In the display of fireworks great care shall be exercised by the management and those in authority present that the place which the bystanders occupy shall be beyond the danger area. By danger area is meant in this case such a distance from the point of display that no bystander's bodily safety will be endangered by the accidental discharge of the fireworks.

Section 55. No serpents, rockets, bombs or set pieces of fireworks shall be set off in a public street or public way.

Section 56. No illuminating fireworks for display shall be set off or fired except between the hours of 7 o'clock in the afternoon and 12 o'clock midnight.

Section 57. No smoking shall be allowed in any place where fireworks or firecrackers are handled in stock for sale or display.

No torpedo larger than three-fourths of an inch in diameter can be kept or sold and all torpedoes must be packed with sawdust. The law also provides that no sparklers with match or other sensitive heads be kept or sold.

MAN PROBABLY DROWNED

EAST PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 1.—Following the disappearance of James Carrigan, 28, from his home and the finding of his hat in an empty boat on Phillipsdale pond today, the police began this afternoon to drag the pond in the belief that he had been drowned. Carrigan did not report at his place of employment this morning and later the boat containing his hat and a bottle of whiskey was found on the pond.

CHIEF HOSMER RETURNS

Chief E. S. Hosmer of the fire department returned to Lowell today after a three weeks' vacation spent at Juniper Point, Salem. He contracted a severe cold a little over a month ago and that together with the strenuous work he had to do during the time of the grass fires decided to take his vacation earlier this year than has been his practice in the past. He is much improved in health and stated to a representative of The Sun that he had a very enjoyable time and instead of being bothered with the heat that the weather was rather cool. Mrs. Hosmer accompanied her husband.

UNDER NESMITH WILL

FRANK E. DUNBAR,
One of the Trustees of the Nesmith Estate

Granite State Has Claims That May Amount to Nothing

A short time ago Governor Bass of New Hampshire visited Pollard avenue in this city to consider a proposition that it be closed. The governor represented the state of New Hampshire as beneficiary of the will of John Nesmith, giving the property to the state after the death of his children.

The proposition is still pending and is bothering the trustees of the Hildreth building which is being extended to Paige street.

The interest of the Granite State in the property is such that it may never amount to anything financially, but if held continuously over the property now owned by the Nesmith Heirs in conjunction with others, it will prove burdensome to the owners and a restriction upon the free use and development of the property. For this reason, it is understood, that negotiations are under way to have the state release its claim upon the property for a cash consideration. But no such agreement would be legal without the sanction of the court.

The representatives of the Nesmith estate are Frank E. Dunbar, George S. Motley and Joseph A. Nesmith. The report in business circles has been that if the proposition to the governor and council of New Hampshire is accepted there will be a large business block put up on the property.

Thanked by the Legislature.

Men who are well informed on the matter say that the New Hampshire legislature at the last session passed an act authorizing the governor and council to conduct negotiations with the Nesmith heirs. It is also reported that some time after the bequest to the state of New Hampshire became known, the legislature adopted resolutions thanking Mr. Nesmith.

There is no record in the probate court office in Cambridge that the state of New Hampshire accepted the conditions of the gift, but business men say that it is not unusual, as the state does not receive the gift until the last surviving child of Hon. John Nesmith is dead.

Mr. Nesmith died Oct. 15, 1869. In addition to his widow, the surviving children mentioned in the will were Eliza J., Harriet B., Mary, James E. and Joseph A. Nesmith.

Provisions of the Will

In the codicil to his will Mr. Nesmith said: "I further order and direct that my trustees shall not deliver, make over or convey to the state of New Hampshire the real estate situated at the corner of John and Merrimack streets, Lowell, Mass., described in my said will, nor the said reserved sum of $60,000, or what remains thereof at the decease of my last surviving child mentioned in said will, nor any part of the same, until said state shall have, by proper legislation, accepted the said real estate and said reserved sum for the use mentioned in my said will and upon the conditions following:

"First, that said state shall forever hold said real estate at the corner of John and Merrimack streets and shall neither sell nor dispose of the same nor any part thereof, nor shall lease the same nor any part thereof for a longer term than five years at one time nor shall in any way, directly or indirectly, make or permit any agreement or arrangement whereby said state shall part with the full control thereof without any restriction except so far as the same may be abridged by such a tenancy for a time no greater than five years."

Provision is made in the second section of the will for keeping the buildings in repair and for rebuilding. The third section of the codicil was:

"That said state shall become bound, on receiving the said reserved sum of $60,000 or what remains thereof after the decease of my last surviving child, to pay and make good as the income thereof the amount of 6 per cent per annum thereof, which said income, together with the rents of said real estate, after defraying all necessary expenses thereon, including insurance if made, shall be set aside and constitute a fund to be known as the Nesmith fund, which fund shall be annually applied forever to the aid, support and education of the indigent blind of the state of New Hampshire."

This codicil was made April 28, 1869, and was witnessed by Geo. W. Coburn, Geo. W. Weymouth and Benjamin Goddard.

The Merchants bank property was mentioned in the will as forming a portion of the Nesmith property. The name of John P. Nesmith of New York city was also mentioned in the will as a tenant in common with John Nesmith in a strip of property.

Sold to an Italian Countess

John P. Nesmith of New York City is reported to have disposed of his share of the property to representatives of an Italian countess living in New York city, but the assessors' books of Lowell do not give anyone but the Nesmith heirs as owners of the property.

In the last report on file in the probate office relative to the Nesmith estate it was written that the amount on hand of the $60,000 mentioned in the codicil of Mr. Nesmith was $50,951.52.

Four Surviving Children

There are four surviving children of Hon. John Nesmith, three of whom live in Lowell.

It has been reported that if the governor and council of New Hampshire consent to the proposition said to have been made to them by representatives of the Nesmith heirs a bill in equity will be filed in the Massachusetts supreme court to dismiss the trust under the will of Mr. Nesmith.

FIREMEN ARE BUSY

Property Owners Must Clear Rubbish

Members of the fire department are now on their annual tour of inspection of the territory in their respective districts and wherever rubbish has been found or places where fire might be caused by the careless use of firecrackers or fireworks the owners or tenants of the premises have been notified to have the rubbish removed and the place protected. This is done annually before the Fourth. Several men from each company who started out yesterday were also working today and it is expected that the inspection will be completed Monday.

All of the firemen will be on duty on the Fourth and also the night before and the call men have been notified not to go any great distance from their respective stations.

THE STATE SENATE

KILLED BILL TAXING TRANSFER OF STOCKS

BOSTON, July 1.—The bill providing for the taxation of the transfer of stocks was killed in the senate today. It may be reconsidered Wednesday when the senate reconvenes.

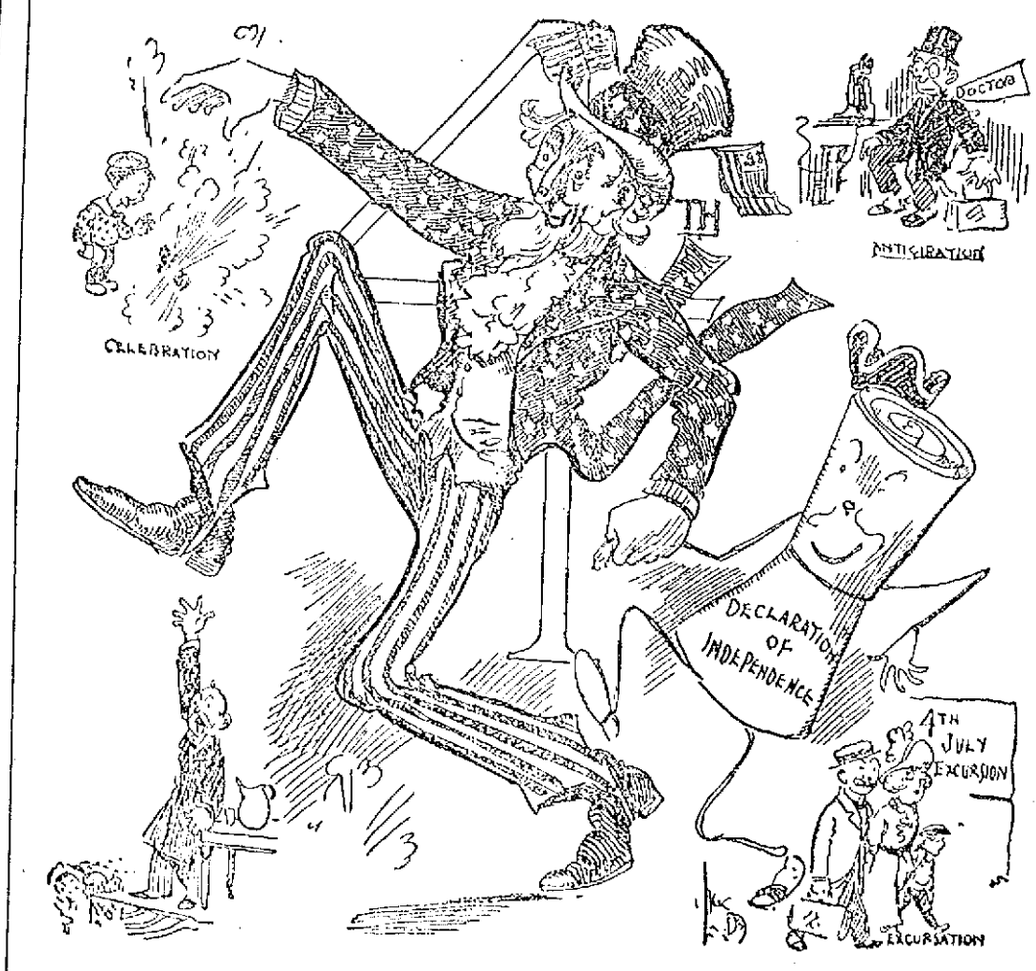

BLESSING OF GROTTO

HAS BEEN POSTPONED UNTIL LABOR DAY

Plans are now being formulated to change the date of the blessing of the grotto of Notre Dame de Lourdes erected on the grounds of the French American orphanage in Pawtucket street, from August 20th, as it was first planned, to September 4, Labor day. The reason for the shifting of dates is that the celebration can be held on a larger scale on the latter date than on the previous date which will be a Sunday.

For the purpose of making the change, a meeting of all the presidents of the French societies as well as the captains of the guards, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock at the C. M. A. C. hall. The meeting is called by the pastor of St. Joseph's parish, Rev. Fr. Wateile, O. M. I., and he hopes that all members of the committee in charge of the celebration will be present.

The women of the parish will hold a meeting tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock at the C. M. A. C. hall. The presidents of the following societies are invited to attend: Notre Dame de Bonsecours, Cercle d'Youville, Court Blanche de Castille, F. A. F., Notre Dame de Lourdes sodality and the Children of Mary sodality. The meeting will be presided over by Rev. Fr. Watelle, O. M. I., who will tell the women what is expected from their societies. It is probable that the latter will also make arrangements for floats for the parade.

ONCE AGAIN—CELEBRATION

PLOT AGAINST GOVERNMENT

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of Salvador, July 1.—An alleged plot against the government has been discovered here. Dr. Carlos Francisco Dardano, alleged to be allied with former President Prudencio Alfaro, was arrested at his home today. In the house were supplies of ammunition, arms, material for making bombs and other projectiles.

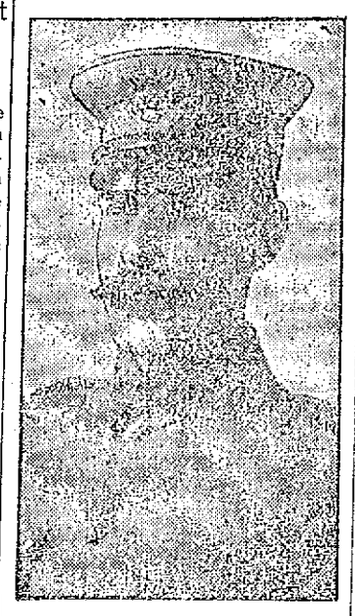

TO RECOGNIZE DOCKMEN'S UNION

LIVERPOOL, July 1.—It was officially announced this evening that the Cunard, the White Star and other "combine" lines and the Harrison line had agreed to recognize the dockmen's union and attend a conference within a month for the settlement of the question of wages and the conditions of employment.

CO. K ENTERTAINED

But They Did Some Road Work First

The members of Company K, Sixth regiment, combined business with pleasure last evening when they hiked out to Billerica Centre, as if they were going to war and wound up at the hospitable residence of First Sergeant Harry Sheldon where they were used like coronation idols, otherwise called kings. On the way out the company got in a little campaign work such as advance guard, patrol work and other stunts in the tactics that are all Greek to a layman. On arrival at Sergeant Sheldon's home, which was prettily decorated in honor of their visit, they discarded all military formality and sat down to a repast. Their celebrated orchestra was on hand and a number of delightful musical numbers were given. There were songs and stories and a general good time until the last car when the militiamen forget their fondness for hiking and rode back to Lowell.

CAPT. JAMES N. GREIG,
Of Co. K

LONG CANOE TRIP

Planned by Dr. Waller and Frank McCool

Dr. S. R. Waller and Frank L. McCool are two well known citizens who are in for a safet and sane Fourth of July. Both being well known militiamen they probably get enough of strenuous patriotic work ordinarily without going out of their way on the glorious holiday. They left town this afternoon for the sequestered precincts of delightful Lake Winnipesaukee, whence the lordly Merrimack river gets its start in life. Their canoes they sent ahead of them by freight and after a few days at the lake they intend to paddle back all the way to Lowell following the river from its source to the Pawtucket Falls.

EX-MAYOR BERRY

DIED SUDDENLY AT WOLFBORO, N. H., TODAY

WOLFBORO, N. H., July 1.—Announcement was made today of the sudden death last night of Charles P. Berry, a former mayor of Portsmouth, N. H., and before that time a shoe manufacturer at Lynn, Mass. Mr. Berry, who was 69 years old, dropped dead in the stable at his summer home in this town. Heart disease was the cause of death.

After leaving Lynn, more than 20 years ago, Mr. Berry went to Portsmouth, where he engaged in shoe manufacturing and in 1893 and 1894 was mayor of the city. He is survived by a widow and a son.

ANNUAL OUTING

OF THE GORHAM STREET METHODIST CHURCH

Four car loads of parishioners of the Gorham street Methodist church and friends left the corner of Gorham and Ellsworth streets at 2 o'clock this afternoon and went to Milligan's grove where an outing was enjoyed. Many people who were unable to take the special cars left on the regular cars later in the afternoon.

Arriving on the grounds a fine program of sports was carried out and the affair proved to be a success in every particular. The Rev. Mr. Matthews was present and had general charge of the outing.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

DOMINION DAY

JULY 1.—Today is a holiday in Canada because it is "Dominion Day." That is sufficient excuse for the native to "swell with pride" for the simple reason that with the growth of the country and the birthing that has taken place over "Reciprocity," little Miss Canada is feeling like the young lady with her first long dress. Preceding 1867 "Canada" was the region from Labrador to the watershed west of Lake Superior. Its neighbors were Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and that vast western territory known as the Hudson Bay company. Each section had its own ideas, laws and religion and it took some fine figuring to work out a plan that would weld and hold all together under one form of government. But it was finally accomplished, and on July 1, 1867 the "British North American act," was O. K'd by the British parliament and the Dominion of Canada was launched with Sir John A. Macdonald at the teller of the ship of state. Oddly enough the plan adopted was first suggested by our old friend Ben Franklin.

EXCUSE ME!

BOARD OF TRADE KICKS

And Gets Assurance of an 8.59 Train Daily

Lowell will have a train to Boston at 8.59 every morning, for which the gods and the board of trade be praised.

The new train schedule recently in vogue caused the greatest kind of a complaint through the city and with the reputation that the board of trade has earned in the past year or more for doing things the complaints were sent in to the board, and that body appointed Secretary Murphy who is fast acquiring a reputation as a "fixer," to confer with the Boston and Maine officials relative to the matter.

Secretary Murphy did a little investigating before proceeding to the front and found that in five days since the new train started was 17 mins. late on the first day; three minutes the second; nine minutes the third; three minutes the fourth and on time the fifth. But the train is made up at Plymouth, N. H., and by the time it gets to Lowell it is crowded to overflowing and is hot and dirty. He also found that the 8.48 train from Lowell is generally patronized from regular patrons who ride on monthly tickets and hence do not pay the company as much as transients which might have had something to do with the discontinuance of it.

Yesterday Secretary Murphy had a conference in Boston with C. M. Burt, general passenger agent; General Superintendent C. E. Lee, and Mr. Ferguson, private secretary to General Manager Barr, at which the matter was discussed at length.

The outcome of the conference was an important concession on the part of the Boston and Maine to the effect that if the Plymouth train is more than 10 minutes late on any morning a special will be made up to run express to Lowell, leaving the station at 8.59 and if the Plymouth train is less than 10 minutes late the Lowell public will be asked to wait for the regular. Thus Lowell people will not have more than 10 minutes to wait for the 8.59 train.

But Secretary Murphy was not quite satisfied with this concession inasmuch as Mr. Barr, the general manager, was not present personally and hence upon his return to his office he addressed the following letter to the general manager:

Lowell, Mass., June 30, 1911.

Frank Barr, Third Vice President and General Manager, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir—Many complaints have been received in regard to the discontinuance of the 8.48 train to Boston. The train was patronized by people who went to Boston every day, and the arrival in Boston was in season to accommodate business men and men obliged to go to court and the stock exchange.

At present the train leaving Lowell at 8.59, coming from the north, is usually late and crowded. The new schedule provides no accommodation between the hours of eight and nine, and if the 8.59 train is late there is no express train from 7.58 to 9.45.

The inconvenience to Lowell people is of such a nature as to cause many vigorous protests and complaints, and the matter is presented for your consideration, with the hope that you can effect a solution to the existing conditions.

Respectfully yours,
Lowell Board of Trade.
John H. Murphy, Secretary.

Mr. Murphy expects a reply within a few days.

"TEXAS" RAMSDELL

Made Fine Showing in the London Games

LONDON, July 1.—The Amateur Athletic Association championships at Stamford Bridge this afternoon attracted a big crowd. The number of entries constituted a record and included many of the great athletes of America, Canada, Australia and practically the whole of Europe.

The first event completed was the hammer throw, which was won by George Putnam of Ottawa, Kansas, a Rhodes scholar at Oxford, with 147 feet, 7½ inches.

"Texas" Ramsdell of the University of Pennsylvania, holder of the 100 yards cup, won the final of the 500 yards dash by a few inches. His time was 10 2-5 seconds.

The mile run was won by P. E. Nichol of the Polytechnic Harriers in 4.22 1-5.

M. Halbiaus of Toronto, Ontario, won the quarter mile run in 50 1-5 seconds.

R. Paesman of Berlin won the pole vault, making 12 feet flat.

In the final of the 220 yards dash Ramsdell, University of Pennsylvania, won in a close finish.

The half mile run was won by H. Braun of Munich. Time—1.59 4-5.

SEATS AT FIREWORKS

Inspector Dow May Have to Hire Chairs

James Dow, inspector of buildings, is looking for chairs to accommodate the city council members while the fireworks are in session on the South common Tuesday night. It would be an easy matter for Mr. Dow to get the chairs if the old scheme of borrowing them from the school department was still in vogue, but that very neighborly practice has been done away with and the school committee refuses to allow their chairs to be taken from the schools.

It looks as if Mr. Dow would have to hire chairs for the occasion at about ten cents per copy and then there will be a scrap over the question as to whose appropriation should be touched for the seats. Of course the chairs will have to be provided. It would be a measly shame to oblige these noble statesmen to stand while rockets were making holes in the atmosphere above their heads. The public can stand if it wants to but the men who are reducing the tax rate every year must have seats. The police, however, will take the precaution to rope the enclosure where the city government members are seated and the members are requested to enter at a point opposite the jail, at the corner of Thorndike and Highland streets. No tickets have been issued.

All of Lowell's playgrounds will be thrown open to boys and girls, big and little, next week. The grounds on the South common, of course, will not open until Wednesday because of the Fourth of July "doings" there, but the North common and other playgrounds will open on Monday.

The amount of money derived from the sale of lots on the South common this year, it is stated, will be much smaller than in former years. It seems that some who purchased lots last year and the year before failed to do better than pay expenses and some of them didn't do even as well as that. There'll be attractions enough, however, to make the place interesting.

THE LOSS IS $40,000

Lumber Yard District at Burlington, Vt. Threatened by Fire

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 1.—Because there was a dead calm over Lake Champlain early this morning Burlington was saved from a fire disaster. Fire destroyed the Lake Champlain Yacht club house, tenanted by wealthy New York summer people, and would have swept through the big lumber yard district adjoining had there been even a slight breeze stirring.

The yacht club house occupied a private pier. The fire had burned through the roof when discovered and attempts to save the club's costly furnishings were abandoned. Aided by the calm the combined firefighting force of the city confined the blaze to the single structure. The loss is estimated at $40,000. Commodore Wetherbee announced that the club would rebuild immediately in preparation for the annual midsummer regatta of August 11.

AMERICAN AVIATOR

Travelled at Rate of 80 Miles an Hour

EASTCHURCH, England July 1.—In a practice spin over the course of today's competition for the international aviation cup, Charles Weymann, the American, did the circuit at a speed of 80 miles an hour.

The present event requires 25 trips around a circular course, making a total distance of 93.2 miles. The contest is on the Royal Aero Club's grounds on the isle of Sheppey, a course regarded as dangerous. One hundred members of the Royal engineers of Chatham patrolled the grounds.

Three nations—America, France and Great Britain—were represented. The sole American competitor was Weymann. France sent Edouard Nieuport and M. Chevalier; while Great Britain has three, Alec Oglivie, Gustav Hamel and D. Grahame-Gilmour.

Grahame-White pleaded engagements as an excuse for not defending his title, won at Belmont Park, L. I., last year.

Hamel was the first to get away. He started in a strong wind and had not completed the first lap when his machine pitched violently and the aviator was thrown out, falling 50 feet. The airman was not much hurt. It was found that Hamel's mishap was due to his attempt at a too short a turn which caused his machine to overturn. The aeroplane was badly smashed. Hamel's face was cut and he received a few body bruises.

Soon after this accident Chevalier started. He negotiated several laps at tremendous speed but in the 12th lap, while turning, he got into difficulties and fell with his machine to the ground. The aviator was not hurt.

Weymann completed the full course of 93.2 miles in one hour and 11 minutes. It is almost certain that the American will be the winner of the cup.

JOSEPH NADEAU

FORMER ASSISTANT BANDMASTER GUEST OF HIS SISTER

Mr. Joseph Alphonse Nadeau, formerly assistant bandmaster aboard the U. S. North Dakota, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Lucien Daigle, of Lakeview avenue. Mr. Nadeau has severed his connection with the U. S. Marine corps after serving Uncle Sam for the past eight years. He received an honorable discharge a week ago yesterday, and he intends settling in this city.

Mr. Nadeau while in the service has visited about every country in the world and when he speaks about his different trips he is very interesting. In 1907 when the U. S. cruise made the trip around the world Mr. Nadeau was aboard the Missouri. The young man in the course of his voyages has learned several languages and has also made a very nice collection of antiques.

Heirs' Sale of Building Lots

AT PUBLIC AUCTION

Saturday, July 8th, 1911, at 2.30 o'clock P. M.

I will sell at absolute auction sale to the highest bidders, 10 exceedingly choice lots. They are situated on Bedford avenue, Lexington avenue, Melrose avenue, Shirley avenue, and Townsend avenue, and are all facing directly on the State boulevard. The lots vary in size, containing from 16,174 feet to 24,060 square feet of land, and will be sold in lots to suit purchasers. They have a large frontage on the boulevard and a proportionate depth, which makes them most attractive for the erection of a home and give an opportunity for a large garden. The location is excellent, within eight minutes' walk of the Varnum avenue line of electric cars, and on the Pawtucket boulevard, the most traveled street in the city, it being the direct line to Tyngsboro, Nashua and all points north. The lots are level and the soil is the very best that lies out doors. The avenues are 40 feet wide and are accepted by the city. This sale presents an excellent chance for anyone desirous of purchasing a building site in a first class locality where the surroundings are of the very best and the lots, inasmuch as they are of good size, containing from a quarter to half an acre of land, affords a splendid chance for anyone to raise all their own garden truck. When out for a walk or drive, go up the state boulevard, just above Dunbar avenue, and look these lots over as they will be sold on the day and hour advertised to whomsoever will bid the most for them.

Terms: $50 must be paid to the auctioneer on each lot as soon as struck off.

CLARENCE G. COBURN, For the Heirs.

Don't Be Deceived

If you have tried other papers of doubtful circulation and failed to get results, that is no reason why you should condemn all newspapers. There are some honest newspapers with actual bona fide circulations. THE SUN, for instance, now prints over 16,000 copies daily. Is it any wonder SUN advertisers get quick results?

LOWELL 2 - FALL RIVER 7

INNINGS—1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11	Runs	Hits	Errors
Lowell - - 1 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0	2	9	5
Fall River - 1 1 0 1 2 2 0 0 0	7	11	1

Over 4000 enthusiastic baseball fans who went to Spalding park this afternoon to witness the game between Lowell and Fall River were compelled to wait after the usual time of starting the game because of the fact that the sporting writer of The Sun was at Calderwood & Robbins in Merrimack street using his eloquence trying to secure the check for $50 which was to be presented to Capt. Barrows by the Bull Durham Co. as a result of the local captain hitting the bull yesterday.

It was the intention of the Bull Durham people and the management of the Lowell team to present the check to Capt. Barrows as he stepped to the bat in the first inning, but Mr. Robbins refused to take the check out of the window until the "boy" got back from dinner and for that reason the game was delayed and Capt. Barrows did not receive the check until some time after the time scheduled.

Yount was on the mound for Lowell and Lavigne on the receiving end of the battery. Blum was in the points for the visitors and Haight was behind the bat.

Umpire Bannon was the decision maker and when he called the game the batting order of the teams was as follows:

LOWELL	FALL RIVER
Moulton, 2b	ss, Groh
Barrows, cf	3b, Kopf
Cooney, ss	2b, Hickman
Magee, lf	rf, Devine
Fluharty, rf	lf, Bowcock
Wright, 1b	cf, Moore
Boultes, 3b	1b, Walsh
Lavigne, c	c, Haight
Yount, p	p, Blum

First Inning

Each side scored one run in the first inning. Groh singled to right field and went to second on Kopf's sacrifice. Hickman singled to right field and Groh scored. Devine hit to Moulton who fumbled and he got on. Hickman going to second on the play. Bowcock struck out and when Hickman tried to make third on Bowcock's third strike he was thrown out.

In the latter half of the inning Moulton flied to Hickman and Barrows followed with a single. Cooney also got a single. Magee singled to right field scoring Barrows. Fluharty hit to Hickman who threw Magee out at second. Flu then stole second. Wright drew a base on balls, filling the bases, but Boultes went out on a fly to Groh.

Second Inning

Moore opened the second with a single to right and Walsh followed with a single to left. Both men were advanced on Haight's sacrifice. Blum singled to right field scoring Moore. Groh hit to Yount who threw to the plate getting Walsh. Kopf got hit by a pitched ball and walked. Hickman hit to Moulton and was out at first.

Lavigne flied to Bowcock and Yount and Moulton were retired on strikes.

Third Inning

Devine struck out and Bowcock flied to Barrows. Moore hit to Cooney who fumbled. Yount made a balk and Moore went to second. Walsh was retired on strikes.

As Capt. Barrows went to bat in the latter half of the third inning the check for $50 from the Bull Durham people arrived and Umpire Bannon after making a neat speech presented the check while the crowd arose and cheered.

After Barrows had been presented the check he slammed the ball to left field for a two bagger. Cooney flied to Groh and Magee flied to Moore. Barrows, going to third on the put out. He died there, however, for Fluharty flied to Kopf.

Fourth Inning

Another for Fall River in the fourth. Haight flied to Magee and Blum hit to Moulton and died at first. Groh hit to left field for two bases. Kopf singled to left field scoring Groh. Kopf was caught out at second but Cooney dropped the ball. Hickman then hit to Cooney and was retired at first.

Hickman pulled off a remarkable double play in the latter half of the inning. Wright opened with a single. Boultes bunted to Blum who threw the ball to second to get Wright but both men were safe. Blum then threw to first to get Boultes off the base forcing the latter and Jake was run down between first and second. Lavigne hit to Blum who turned and threw Wright out between second and third. When the ball was thrown to third Wright started back for second and the ball was thrown to Hickman. Hickman after receiving it tagged Wright and then turning around tagged Lavigne who was approaching second base, making the plays simultaneously.

Fifth Inning

Two more runs for Fall River in the fifth. Devine started off with a strike out and Bowcock followed with a two bagger to right. Moore hit to Yount who threw to third to get Bowcock but both men were safe. Moore then stole second. Walsh hit to Boultes who fumbled and Bowcock scored. Walsh stole second. Haight hit to Moulton and was out at first Moore scoring on the play. Blum hit in front of the plate and was the third out.

Lowell added another run in the fifth Yount struck out and Moulton flied to Hickman. Barrows made his third hit, a single to left field. Cooney followed with another single to left and Barrows went to third. Magee hit one too hot for Hickman to handle and Barrows scored. Fluharty hit to Hickman forcing Magee at second.

Sixth Inning

The visitors got two more runs in the sixth inning. Groh drew a base on balls and Kopf sent him to third with a single. Yount made a wild pitch and Groh scored. Kopf went to third base and started for home. Lavigne threw the ball to Yount who was covering the home plate and Kopf started back. The ball was then thrown to third but it was thrown wild and went into left field and Kopf scored. When Magee recovered the ball in left field he threw to third intending to get Kopf, but the ball struck Walsh who was on the coach line and rendered him unconscious. He was attended by Dr. Collins, and after a few minutes was able to return to the game. At this point Yount was taken out and Cooney went in to pitch while Wolfgang went to shortstop. Hickman hit to Moulton and was retired at first. Devine flied to Boultes. Bowcock flied to Magee who dropped the ball. Walsh was third out on a fly to Moulton.

Wright flied to Bowcock. Boultes flied to Moore and Magee hit to Groh and was out at first.

Seventh Inning

Haight hit to Wright and died at first, Blum struck out and Groh hit to Wolfgang and was out at first.

Wolfgang and Moulton sent grounders to Groh and were out at first. Barrows struck out.

Eighth Inning

Kopf hit to Wolfgang and was out at first. Hickman hit to Moulton and failed to reach first. Devine hit to Wright and was third out at first.

Cooney flied to Bowcock. Magee followed with a single to left. Fluharty struck out. Wright hit to Hickman forcing Magee at second.

Ninth Inning

Bowcock hit to Moulton and failed to reach first. Moore got a single to centre. Moore was caught while trying to steal second. Wormwood went to bat for Walsh and struck out.

Boultes struck out. Huston went to bat for Lavigne. He flied to Bowcock. Wolfgang flied to Bowcock.

SCENES IN SQUARE

Musings of One Who Watched People

In Merrimack square, for instance—say,
Ain't it fun lookin' along the way
At pretty girls, at latest styles
In hats and neckties and grins and smiles;
At crowds and faces and dresses and shoes,
At sweet young couples by twos and twos
Wanderin' on Merrimack street, and then
Back to the Square and away again.

Jewelry windows—now, they're the things,
With chains and watches and pins and rings;
And clothing emporiums—my, oh, my,
Such styles and patterns to catch the eye;
And then while you're looking first thing a face
Of childhood beauty and summertime grace
Shines through the crowd to soft and sweet—
Lookin' at things along the street.

One place leaks candy and another looks eats—
Tomatoes and salmon and pies and meats—
And maybe a crowd is gatherin' round
Some wayoff kind of a hammerin' sound,
And you bend your head and you twist your neck
To look at a handful of men like a speck
On top of a temple of steel swing high
The red hot bolts as they sizzle and fly.
A new kind of dodge for publicity there,
A man sellin' pencils from out of the chair
That he rolls with a big fat arm; or here
A dog actin' funny, a horse actin' queer,
An auto truck blowin' its way through the town,
And then an old street with its feet dippin' down
To the river, to dabble and lave
Its heat in the cool of the would be wave,
Lookin' at things—it's the life of the day,

With people out walkin' the tollin' way,
Er shoppin', or sportin', no tellin' what fun
Just lookin' brings into this life; such a sum
Of wonder and beauty, of music and art,
Of feeling and sympathy down in the heart
To mingle and mix with the sad and the sweet,
While lookin' at things along the street.

AVIATOR ATWOOD

Made Trip From New London to New York in Biplane

NEW YORK, July 1.—The most spectacular flight in the history of American aviation was ended at Governors Island this morning by Harry N. Atwood with a wonderful circle about the Singer tower, almost grazing the roofs of the craggy sky-scraper below. Nothing so daring has ever been attempted by an aviator before. In France the Eifel tower has been circled but the baffling cross-currents from the criss-cross of canyons and cliffs of lower Manhattan island had hitherto daunted all American aviators.

Atwood rose from New London at five minutes past seven this morning with the intention of flying down the Connecticut shore and crossing Long Island sound to the aviation field at Mineola. When he got into the air he found his motor humming so steadily and the air currents so favorable that his confidence grew and instead of crossing the sound he turned inland at Mount Vernon, lowered like a falcon to reconnoiter and headed for Hell gate and the mouth of the East river. Below him lay an uninterrupted stretch of rooftops, to touch any one of which would mean instant destruction. Before him stretched the narrow and tortuous course of the river, crowded with traffic and spanned by four lofty steel bridges.

Circled the Singer Tower

As if playing with his perils, Atwood crossed the river to Long Island City near the Williamsburg bridge, turned back to Manhattan island, crossing the river a second time, flew over the city proper at no great altitude to the lower end of the island, circled the Singer tower, deflected his course past Trinity church and eastward south of the Liberty tower and the new Bankers Trust building to Wall street and hovered in smooth spirals for a moment over the amazed curb brokers in Broad street below.

The demonstration was as complete as it lay in the power of human achievement to make it. Hitherto it has been a principle strictly held to by all aviators that whenever there was a dangerous spot to cross the higher one could rise the safer. It had been calculated that for every foot of drop a properly executed volplane could carry the aeroplane forward three feet. Thus, to glide safely out of danger to a proper landing place, it was only necessary to rise high enough. But Atwood, disregarding all the rules of prudence and experience, made his turn of the Singer tower at a height of 525 feet from the pavements, a little more than 80 feet below the pinnacle of the tower and barely above the jagged Gothic roof of the City Investment building, directly below and beside the tower.

The fluttering flag at the top of the tower showed there was a wind blowing of perhaps 15 or 20 miles an hour—not enough to bother Atwood in his steady-going Wright-Burgess biplane. Theatrical as was the feat in its accomplishment it was prefaced by no theatrical announcements. Only a few people in the city knew that Atwood was on his way and of these still fewer understood that he intended to cross and re-cross Manhattan island. Everybody believed that he would take a safer, more prosaic path across low lying, level Long Island.

So, although the flight was witnessed by hundreds of thousands from the streets, the rooftops were not black with spectators as they otherwise would have been. As one broker said, "He just got up and did it."

Atwood's flight today is really a continuation of his flight yesterday from Squantum field, Boston, to New London, where he cut fancy figures above the winning Harvard shell as it drew to the finish line in the eight-oared 'varsity race. His distance then was 135 miles, covered in two hours and ten minutes. The best previous record with a passenger was 106 miles, made by P. P. Parmalee, a Wright pupil with Lieut. Foulois, U. S. A., as a passenger. Atwood carried his mechanician for a companion yesterday and repeated the feat today. His distance this morning, estimated from the map is 122 miles and his time was three hours and 20 minutes.

Rising from New London at 7.05 a. m. he passed over Bridgeport, Conn. at 8.28 a. m. At South Norwalk, which he reached at 8.50 he was well out over the Sound, flying at an even level. Between Bridgeport and New Haven a moving passenger train on the New Haven road tickled his fancy and, descending within easy sight of the amazed passengers, he followed it, headed it, crossed the tracks in front of the locomotive and, repeating his performance, made three complete circles of the train before he resumed his southward course. At Port Chester the aviator was still following the shore of the Sound at 9.03. Twelve minutes later he passed over Larchmont and it was here that his determination to dare the hazardous flights over Broadway was made.

To the finish of the run Atwood's flight was one continuous succession of perils spurned and mastered.

Atwood was stiff and cramped when he climbed out of the machine but cheerful and brisk.

"It's a pity I had to land," he said, "but I did. After crossing the Williamsburg bridge I ran out of gasoline and landed in Long Island City in a vacant lot behind the gas tanks of the Astoria works to take on two gallons. Very few people were there and I suppose most of the city thought I had made an uninterrupted flight. The fact that I didn't will have some effect on my chances for new records. I shall not know just where I stand until I have made more accurate computation. You tell me the people on the street think I circled the Singer tower. That's another mistake. I attempted it but a gust of wind caught me as I was rounding the corner and buffeted me backward so rudely that I did not care to continue the attempt. I caught my own time at rising from New London as 7:07 and at Governors Island at 10.10. My intention was to follow the shore and cross the Sound to Long Island but I was unable to get a steamer to follow me and, as I had no pontoons, I was afraid to risk the chance of falling into the water."

Atwood could not explain the psychology by which, to avoid the danger of drowning, he courted dangers ten times as imminent over the rooftops of Manhattan. Continuing the description of his flight, he said:

"It was good sailing all the way to New Haven but after that the air became more boisterous and tricky. Over the roof tops of the city and especially in the neighborhood of the skyscrapers it was, of course, worse than anywhere else and I had some rather steep plunges but I can't recall that I felt myself at any time frightened and I never was in danger of losing my control.

"You tell me that everybody in the city thought that I carried Fred Fleet, my mechanician. That is also wrong. I flew alone. My average speed I estimate roughly at 55 miles an hour."

Atwood will return to his home in Boston at 5 o'clock today. His machine will remain at Governors Island for at least two or three days. He said he did not know whether he should eventually attempt the return trip by aeroplane to Boston or not.

The Lawrence will remain closed until Wednesday morning.

The Mohair Plush company will remain idle during all of next week.

The Bay State mills will work every day but Tuesday.

The Whitall Manufacturing Co. and other smaller industries, or a majority of them, will have two holidays, Monday and Tuesday.

WOMAN TESTIFIED

Miss Frances Carroll Principal Witness at Lorimer Inquiry

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Miss Frances Carroll, telephone operator in the office of the Edward Hines Lumber Co., had the distinction today of being the first woman to take the witness stand in the present Lorimer inquiry. She testified regarding telephone conversations held by Edward Hines on May 26, the day Senator Lorimer was elected.

Miss Carroll declared that she overhead the conversation between Governor Deneen and Mr. Hines and detailed it practically as Mr. Hines had described it.

Fred Carney, of the Carney Lumber Co. of Marinet, Wis., testified in corroboration of Hines' description of how Funk approached him at the Union League club.

The committee decided to take a recess from this afternoon until July 13, when it will reconvene in Washington instead of Chicago as originally planned.

DAN O'LEARY

WALKED 72 MILES ON HIS BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

Dan O'Leary, well known in this city as long distance walker, writes to this office about his doings at Mackinac Island, Michigan. The old gentleman who observed the 67th anniversary of his birth on June 29, says that on that day he made his usual walk, and that was to travel around the island eight times covering a distance of 72 miles in 15 hours.

Dan says he is in the best of health and condition and that he could duplicate this feat tomorrow. He has been on the island for nearly two weeks, and enjoys the weather first rate, for it is a fine summer resort.

ON GLORIOUS FOURTH

What Will be Doing Throughout the City

Lowell is going to have a bang-up celebration on the Fourth of July and everyone should remain at home, and enjoy it.

The celebration will start on the Night before with five big bon-fires and a band concert and there'll be something doing all the time afterward until the holiday has passed into history.

The Night Before

Of course the Midway will be going on the common but that goes for 48 hours. Then there will be the midway at Columbus Park.

At 10.30 a band concert for which the band stand was erected today will be held on Bunker Hill off Lakeview avenue, and at midnight Major Josiah Fiske's masterpiece, a gigantic bonfire will be set off. Simultaneously bonfires will be lighted by the O. M. I. Cadets in Stackpole street opposite the home of Daniel F. Sullivan, the well known coal dealer, not that there'll be any fine screened or bituminous among the ingredients. At the Fair Grounds where Alderman Flanagan is going to do the lighting; at Ayer city where a monster pile has been erected and at Perry street where the youngsters of the neighborhood will show their patriotism in a sheet of flame.

The regular city program for the Fourth of July, as arranged by the special committee on Fourth of July is as follows:

Ringing of school and mill bells and playing of St. Anne's and St. Patrick's chimes at sunrise, noon and sunset.

Ball game between Emmets and Dixwells, North common, 10 o'clock.

Marathon race, five miles, North common, 2 p. m.

Fireworks, South common, 8 p. m.

Band concert during fireworks display.

Band concert at French orphanage in Pawtucket street between 7.30 and 9.30 p. m.

There will be two band concerts between 10 and 12 o'clock on the night before one at the Fair grounds and the other at Bunker Hill, West Centralville.

But a host of other celebrations have been arranged. The Immaculate Conception parish preparatory to the O. M. I. bonfire is to have a night before celebration at Columbus park. The citizens of West Centralville are to have a fine display of fireworks independent of what the city is setting forth. This display will be set of in front of St. Louis' church. At the French Orphanage a fine time is assured in connection with the band concert. At the city farm the Bachelor club will hold forth and there will be numerous smaller celebrations throughout the city.

Lowell will play Lynn at Spalding park at 3 o'clock.

STREET COMMITTEE

Considered a Number of Petitions Last Night

The committee on streets held a long drawn out meeting last night, gave hearings and passed upon many petitions. Because of a meeting of the sewer committee the committee on streets did not get together until after ten o'clock.

The first up was the proposition for the extension of Stronquist avenue. Mr. O'Neil, who owns land in the vicinity, objected to the extension of the avenue on a straight line because, he said, it would come in too close proximity to the back of his house. He refused to set a price on his land. It was finally voted that the extension be made and that $200 be awarded to Peter O'Neil, that Mary J. O'Neil be given two cents a foot, Charles O'Neil three cents a foot and Mary C. O'Neil six cents a foot.

The committee voted to recommend a loan of $20,000 for a reinforced concrete bridge in Market street over the Merrimack canal, and for the repair of bridges in East Merrimack, Newhall, Jefferson and Aiken streets.

The committee voted the recommendation that the asphalt for roads be furnished by the Pioneer, the Bermudes and the Gulf Refining companies.

On other petitions the committee took action as follows:

Petition of Deborah R. Hill and others, that Suffolk street be watered from Moody street to Dodge street. Granted.

Petition of Daniel F. Sullivan and others that Andrews street be watered from Lawrence street to Moore street. Granted.

Petition of Meyer Klain and others that Howard street be watered from the schoolhouse to Hale street. Voted.

Petition of M. Syderman that Liberty street be watered from Lane street to Smith street. Leave to withdraw.

Petition of Robert P. Wotton and others and Mrs. E. T. Rowell and others that Humphrey street be watered. Leave to withdraw.

Petition of H. A. Thomoson and others that Westford street be watered from Sayles street to Gibson street. Granted.

Petition of Charles E. Howe and others that Varney street be watered from School street to Fletcher street. Voted.

Petition of Margaret Flynn to accept a portion of State street, not already accepted, and to lay sidewalks of edgestones and cinders on the westerly side. Voted.

Petition of James B. O'Malley that edgestones be laid in West Bowers street in front of premises numbered 24. Granted.

Petition of L. Kirk Sprague and others that Sprague avenue be laid out and accepted. Leave to withdraw.

Petition of Damase H. Laporte that curved portion of Circuit avenue east of Felton street be discontinued as a public street. Leave to withdraw.

Petition of Truman Parker and others that Eleventh street be extended and accepted from Merrill avenue to Aberdeen street. Voted on estimate.

Petition of Arthur Provost and others that a sidewalk of edgestones and cinders be laid on both sides of Beaver street. Edgestones and cinders granted.

Petition of Conners Brothers for permission to close to public travel for a period of two months that portion of Shattuck street beginning at the southerly line of Middle street and extending southerly, for building purposes. Leave to withdraw.

CARDINAL GIBBONS

CELEBRATED MASS ON HIS 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF ORDINATION

BALTIMORE, July 1.—In a little chapel in a home where he is at present visiting and about 50 miles from Baltimore, Cardinal Gibbons yesterday morning offered up a mass of thanksgiving in honor of the most momentous event of his long career. Yesterday he completed 50 years of a successful priesthood and 25 years as cardinal and nominal head of the Catholic church in the United States.

On June 30, 1861, Fr. Gibbons was ordained at the cathedral here by Archbishop Kendrick. Just 25 years later, June 30, 1886, the red hat was conferred on him also at the cathedral.

Yesterday morning the cardinal arose at the usual hour, 6 o'clock, and with a single assistant celebrated a low mass without any musical program and with only the members of the household attending.

The religious celebration of the anniversary will be held at the cathedral next October.

She has been kept alive by feeding through a tube, here eyes remaining open all the time despite her unconsciousness.

When her husband entered her room yesterday she closed her eyes for a moment and then said: "Hello."

At present she is conscious and has apparently recovered, but Dr. E. L. Davis, who has attended her, says that he doubts if she will live.

Mrs. Trudeau has been married three years and has no children.

ADRIFT IN A BOAT

Wealthy Young Man Escaped From Nurse at Cotuit

COTUIT, July 1.—A vain search of Vineyard sound was made yesterday for the small sailboat Water Witch, with its lone pilot, a wealthy young man, Kenneth Linn of Tampa, Fla., said to be out of his mind as a result of an accident on a southern baseball field recently.

A reward of $1000 is offered by his attendant for his return. He is described as 20 years old, weighing 137 pounds, dark hair, full face and two scars on his forehead.

Without food or water Linn left this harbor Thursday night and when the fact became generally known a search was made by the pleasure craft in this vicinity. Yesterday the waters of Vineyard sound were scanned for the little craft, but without success, except for the fact that the tender of the sailboat was found beached on the shore of the harbor here.

There was nothing to show that it had contained a human passenger, and it is believed that in some manner it broke away from the Water Witch some time during the night.

Struck by a Baseball

A short time ago Linn was said to have been struck by a baseball during a ball game near his Florida home. It is stated that the blow affected his mind, and under the care of R. L. Sawyer, a trained nurse, he was brought here to recuperate.

Linn, accompanied by the nurse, arrived in Cotuit last Monday. Last evening the young man escaped from the watchful eye of his attendant and boarded the Water Witch. Before he could be stopped he had disappeared down the harbor.

Whether he understands the navigation of a sailboat is not known here, but it is believed to be certain that the craft was not provisioned.

The fact that Linn had taken the sailboat out alone was not made known until yesterday, when Sawyer made the announcement and requested that if any trace of Linn were found to be notified at once. Then a search of the seaboard was instituted, but the day's hunt resulted only in the finding of the tender.

It is believed by some that Linn is suffering from some hallucination and took the boat in an attempt to sail to the home of his parents in Tampa, Fla. These persons believe that by this time Linn is somewhere in Long Island sound or near New York.

The most of the residents and summer people, however, strongly believe that he is tossing about in nearby waters, unless he has been picked up by some passing vessel or has fallen into the sea and lost his life.

NUMBER OF PETITIONS

Were Heard by the Committee on Sewers Last Night

The committee on sewers met last night and gave hearings on a number of petitions but did not take action. The committee voted to meet again on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Petitions considered included that of the American Hide and Leather company, and others, that a sewer be laid from Wigginville, from the crossing of the Lowell & Andover railroad in Lawrence street to a point opposite the premises of the American Hide and Leather company, thence across the Concord river and through private land to the sewer in Lawrence street, near Watson street.

Petition for a sewer in School street from the end of the present sewer southerly to Spring court, and in Payne street from School street easterly, a distance of about 170 feet. Milo D. Clay, Charles Houle and Joseph G. Wright appeared in opposition and no petitioner appeared.

Smith J. Adams and Mr. Kilmartin appeared in favor of a petition for a sewer in Burlington avenue.

Petition of Joseph H. Flynn and others, that a sewer be laid in Richardson street from Ida I. Boynton's land to land of the estate of J. H. Flynn, a distance of about 150 feet. Mr. Flynn appeared in favor.

Petition of Frank W. Vaughn and others, that a sewer be laid in Newell street. Mr. Vaughn and Fred Jenness appeared in favor of the sewer. No remonstrants.

Petition of Robert J. McKearn and others, that a sewer be laid in Lincoln street, 190 feet easterly of Main street. Mr. McKearn and G. F. Tilton appeared.

Petition to lay a sewer in Willard street, from the end of the present sewer northeasterly, a distance of about 152 feet. Petitioner did not appear. George W. Flint was a remonstrant.

On the petition for a sewer from Wigginville to the premises of the American Hide and Leather company, Stanley E. Qua appeared for the Stirling mills and in favor of the petition. He said that only a few high places in Wigginville were being drained at the present time and he thought that the question was a very important one. Others to speak in favor of the petition included C. P. Hall of the American Hide and Leather company, Thos. C. Wilde, William H. Hodgson and William Rurland. Mr. Kelly of 549 Lawrence street appeared as a remonstrant.

A PIANO RECITAL

GIVEN BY PUPILS OF MRS. ELLA M. WENTWORTH

A pretty piano recital was given last night by the pupils of Mrs. Ella Martel Wentworth. The affair was held at the French Baptist church in Ennell street and was largely attended.

The pupils were assisted by Mrs. Frances Johnson-Carter of Boston and Mr. John McKelvey of this city, and their singing added much to the enjoyment of the occasion. The pupils all showed the result of careful training and a sympathetic interpretation of their music, and many of them received beautiful bouquets from admiring friends.

Those who took part in the program were the Misses Alice E. Binette, Simmone Chapdelaine, Minnie W. Ramette, M. Louise Binette, Eva Binette, Phyliss Duckworth, Helen C. Dowling, Annie H. Ramette.

The ushers were Masters Joseph A. Dowling, Wilfred L. Binette, Edgar N. Chapdelaine, Fernando Chapdelaine, Rupert C. Martel.

WESTFORD ACADEMY

Annual Graduation Exercises Held Yesterday

The annual graduation exercises of Westford Academy took place yesterday in the Westford town hall and were largely attended. The hall was prettily decorated with hemlock and potted plants. The class colors, blue and white, were prominent in the decorations, and the class motto, "Upward and Onward," in white letters on a blue background, was most artistically arranged over the front of the stage. The year "1911" was conspicuous at one side of the stage. The following students were graduated: Seth W. Banister, Ruth M. Furbush, Clarence H. McMaster, Ruth A. Flagg, V. George Hanson, Ida M. Trask, J. Omer LeDuc, Anna H. Symmes, John Feeney, Jr., and Addie Kelley. The exercises opened with a prayer offered by Rev. Benjamin Bailey, followed by the salutatory by Seth W. Banister. An essay given by V. George Hanson showed scholarly effort, and the valedictory by Anna H. Symmes was most pleasing. The presentation of the class gift, a large picture of the "Coliseum," was by J. Omer LeDuc and accepted by Sadie McMaster. The music by the school under the able direction of Miss Mary Raynes deserves special mention for its excellence. Supt. Frank H. Hill presented the diplomas with a few helpful remarks, and Hon. Thomas J. Boynton of Boston gave a most able address on "Civic Government."

In the evening the alumni of Westford Academy held its annual reception and dance. There were many present who listened to a fine concert from 8 to 9 by Hibbard's orchestra of Lowell. Dancing followed until 1 o'clock. Seventy-five couples were present. The executive committee elected for the alumni was Mrs. H. V. Hildreth, Arthur G. Hildreth and Seth Banister.

JOHN ROSS ARRESTED

He is Accused of Murder Committed in Baltimore

YORK, July 1.—John Ross, charged with an alleged murder committed in Baltimore last fall, was arrested at York Beach late last night and taken to the county jail at Alfred. Ross is charged with fatally shooting a man whose name is not known here. He acknowledged his identity and made no resistance. He claimed the shooting was accidental.

The arrest was made by Deputy Sheriff Woodward assisted by Police Officer Grant. Ross was working in a summer hotel, where he has been employed for five seasons. Since the shooting the Baltimore officers have been searching for him and the York county authorities were notified to be on the watch for his reappearance here with the opening of the summer season, as it was thought he might return to his position at the hotel. Upon his return Sheriff Emery notified the Baltimore officials and was instructed to place him under arrest. Ross is about 28 years of age. His version of the shooting, about which he talked freely with the officers when arrested, was that both men were fooling and a revolver was discharged, his companion receiving a mortal wound. He did not remember whether it was in September or October. He was locked in the county jail, where he will remain until an officer arrives from Baltimore with the necessary papers to take him back to Maryland.

THE ENGINE STOPPED

Aviator Ovington Had Quite an Experience

WALTHAM, July 1.—Earle L. Ovington gave a farewell flight at the local aviation field yesterday afternoon in return for a gift or a runabout automobile.

Ovington started at 5.25 and was gone 43 minutes. During that period he flew around aimlessly, as he was lost in the clouds for a time, unable to get his bearings.

The trouble was caused by the clouds, which hung very low. He was traveling at the rate of 70 miles an hour. He took with him about 1000 souvenir post-cards, which he scattered while circling over the state house.

When he returned to the field Ovington was presented the car by Mayor Walker. The aviator leaves Waltham today for New York.

OF THE CONFEDERATION OF PROVINCES OBSERVED

HALIFAX, N. S., July 1.—Today, the anniversary of the confederation of the provinces of Canada, was observed everywhere throughout the Dominion as a holiday. Business was suspended and lengthy programs of sports, parades, picnics, fireworks, etc., were arranged in all the cities and large towns.

In Halifax the usual Dominion day salutes were fired and shipping was dressed.

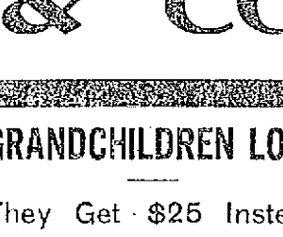

GRANDCHILDREN LOSE

They Get $25 Instead of $25,000

MILWAUKEE, July 1.—Because Mrs. E. P. Allis, the widow of the founder of what is known as the Allis-Chalmers Co., forgot one cipher in writing her will, four grandchildren, whom she meant to give $25,000 each, are cut off with $25. This decision was rendered in the circuit court yesterday after an appeal from the probate court. The will gives each child $25.00. The court ruled that the period between the five and the ciphers could not be interpreted as a comma and a third cipher added.

THE TAFTS ARRIVE

To Spend Their Vacation at Beverly

BOSTON, July 1.—President Taft and his family, on their way from Washington to their new summer cottage at Beverly, arrived in Boston this morning an hour after scheduled time. The second section of the Washington express, to which the private car was attached, was delayed on the way up to New England by heavy traffic incidental to the boat races at New London. The president will stay at Beverly until Sunday.

In the president's party were Mrs. Taft, Charlie Taft, the president's aunt, Miss Delia Torrey, Major Butte, the president's military aide, and two secret service men.

The special car in which the president traveled from Washington was stopped in front of the Montserat station of the Boston & Maine railroad, at Beverly, where a small crowd had gathered to welcome Mr. Taft to his summer city. Upon leaving the train the party entered automobiles and were driven to Paramatta.

THE MANHATTANS

ENTHUSIASTIC OVER NIGHT BEFORE CELEBRATION

The Manhattan club held a most enthusiastic meeting last evening and the principal topic of discussion was the "Night Before" celebration planned for the benefit of the residents of the upper Gorham street section. For several years the club has taken much interest in the celebration of the Fourth, and its members have always labored zealously so that a satisfactory program could be conducted, without the residents being compelled to come into the centre of the city. This year, through the urgent request of Charles L. Crowley, John Ward, John Frawley and other hustling members, the city council committee has assigned a band concert for the night before, and no matter where one goes in that section today, all agree that this new departure will please. A bonfire is also planned and Alderman Flanagan will apply the torch.

MAN SHOT WOMAN

Then He Attempted to End His Own Life

CHERRYFIELD, Me., July 1.—In a fit of jealous rage yesterday William Hunter, 60 years old, fired two shots, it is alleged, at Mrs. Bert Davis, 31 years old, with whom he is said to have become infatuated with Mrs. Davis, who rebuffed his attentions and they quarreled frequently.

About 10:30 yesterday forenoon Hunter and Mrs. Davis had a quarrel in the living room of the Davis house, which is in the village, nearly opposite the postoffice. The aged and feeble mother of Mrs. Davis and her two children, aged 10 and 6, were also in the room.

Suddenly, according to the story of Mrs. Davis' mother, Hunter pulled a revolver from his pocket and fired point-blank at Mrs. Davis, the bullet taking effect in her side. Mrs. Davis ran screaming from the house, and as she did so Hunter turned the revolver upon himself and fired, wounding himself. Seeing, apparently, that he had not killed Mrs. Davis, however, he pursued her to the home of Mrs. Hales, a neighbor, overtaking her on the doorstep and firing at her again, which shot took effect in the back of her neck.

Hunter then stopped outside and placing his revolver against his forehead, fired a shot. It failed to explode and he made a dash across the village street, through a group of people who had been attracted by the shooting, and plunged into the Narraguagus river.

He was rescued by Edward Torrey after a desperate struggle in the water, as Hunter seemed to be determined to drown, and was brought to land after a grappling hook had been firmly fixed in his clothing.

The Davis children ran screaming down the street on the way to the mill where their father was at work.

The shot that Hunter fired into his own body made a flesh wound not considered serious. He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Frank E. Patten and taken to Machias jail last night. Mrs. Davis was taken to the Bangor hospital last night on the late train.

Hunter is a well-to-do resident and has always borne a good reputation. He was employed in the lumber mills here, as was the husband of Mrs. Davis. Hunter's weapon was a 38-calibre revolver of cheap make and building pattern. He threw it away as he dashed for the river.

JUMPED THE TRACK

Two Persons Injured in Electric Car Accident at Dedham

DEDHAM, July 1.—A big semi-convertible electric of the Old Colony street railway company under charge of William O. Curtis, motorman, and Edward Sprague, conductor, which left Dedham at 4.02 o'clock yesterday afternoon for Forest Hills, jumped the track at the bridge on Washington street over Mother brook, broke through the fence and stopped hanging nearly half over the brook.

By almost a miracle the car stopped just at the point of safety, for had it gone two feet farther it would have toppled over into the brook with probable loss of life. As it is there were no bones broken, and so far as could be learned only two received injuries necessitating much attention.

Mrs. Catherine Schroeder of 12 Norfolk street, Cambridge, suffered injuries of the right arm and leg. She was taken to the home of her sister, Mrs. Jane Hager, Eastern avenue, Dedham.

John Goodhue of 17 Grove street, West End, Boston, received injuries to his left knee. He was treated at the office of Dr. A. H. Hodgdon and went home in an automobile.

Others on the car received nervous shocks, but none of them was injured to any extent.

That there was no panic was due largely to the coolness of the car crew, who assured the passengers there was no danger, calming them so that some kept their seats while others were passing out of the car.

The car had about 35 passengers on leaving Dedham. Curtis, according to custom, on approaching the bridge over Mother brook, slowed up and went on the structure at a much reduced speed.

What caused the accident is not known. Just as the forward trucks took the rail on the bridge they swerved to the right, jumped the wooden guard, tore through the fence and stopped on the abutments, the front of the car directly over the brook, 15 feet below. The rear trucks kept the rail and prevented the car falling.

At this point the tracks run within two feet of the bridge fence.

As soon as he could Curtis turned his attention to the passengers and was able to keep any one form getting hysterical and rushing for the door. All were assisted to the ground by Curtis and Sprague.

The cellar will be equipped for a cold storage, while the two stories of the block will be occupied by the Donovan Harness Co., the first floor being the salesrooms, while the upper one will be used as a work shop.

This property consists of a tenement block in Appleton street and another in South street. Mr. Dwyer intends to extend the Appleton street block, building out to the street and raise the building.

The Cadoret property at the corner of Lakeview avenue and Fred street has been sold to Mr. McKee formerly of South Lowell, for the sum of $3500.

Alois J. Pradel has purchased from Charles Campbell two lots of land on Lupine road, West Centralville and will soon start work on two two-apartment houses.

A LARGE DECREASE

In the Number of Contagious Diseases

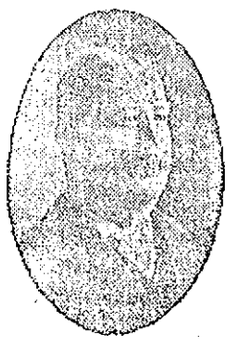

A comparative statement of contagious diseases and the number of deaths from contagious diseases for six months, January to July, 1910, and January to July, 1911, was obtained at the office of the board of health today, and the comparison shows that the number of contagious disease cases and the number of deaths were not nearly as great in 1911. The statement as taken from the board of health's records is as follows.

	Contagious Diseases Reported		Contagious Diseases Deaths

THE ROYAL COACH CONTAINING ENGLAND'S KING AND QUEEN

LONDON, July 1.—The royal progress from Buckingham palace to Westminster abbey on coronation day, June 22, was participated in by hundreds of celebrated people from all sections of the globe. John Hays Hammond, the American representative, was a prominent figure in the procession. A picturesque touch was given the affair by the appearance of the native princes of India, who were attired in the gayly bedecked costumes of their native land. In the photo the royal coach containing King George and Queen Mary is seen as it appeared a minute or two before reaching Westminster abbey. In the background is seen the famous clock tower of the house of parliament.

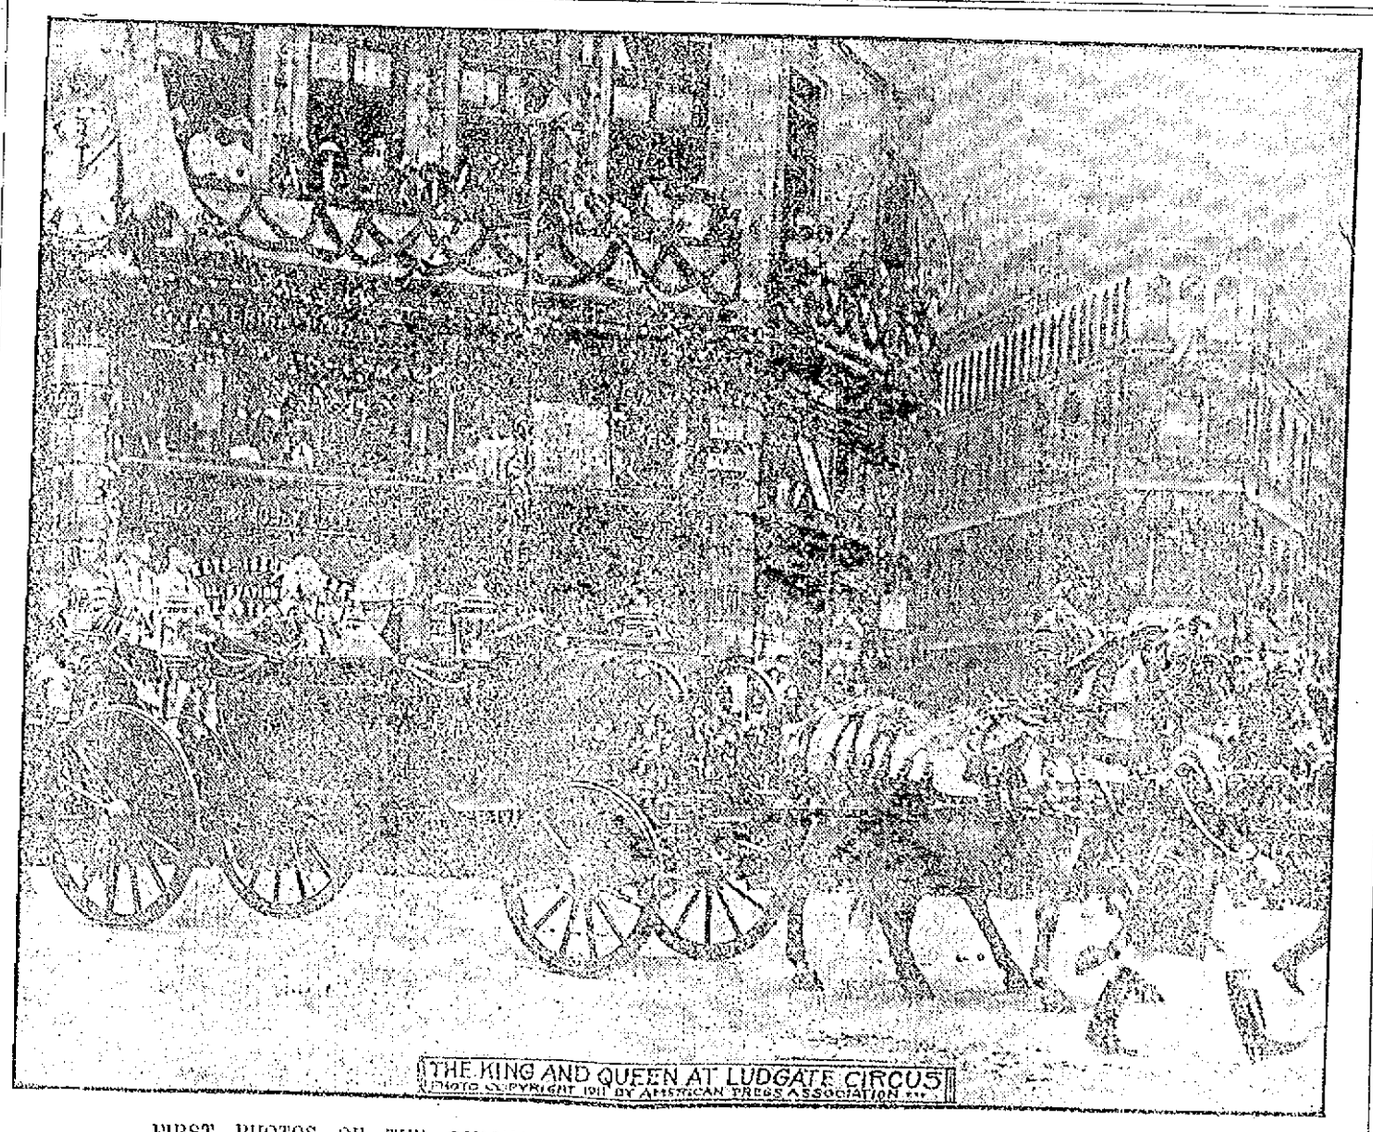

SEC'Y OF TREASURY

Is Made Defendant in Suit Brought by New York Man

WASHINGTON, July 1.—A receiver for a fund of $385,000 held in the treasury of the United States has been asked in the district supreme court by William Safford of New York. Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh and Treasurer Lee McClung are made defendants. They are cited to show why they should not be enjoined from paying the money to certain corporations indicted by the secretary of state.

The fund is an indemnity that Venezuela allowed the United States for concessions taken from gold and asphalt corporations. The Manoa company, the Orinoco company, limited, and the Orinoco corporation are among the designated beneficiaries. Safford claims in his petition to be a judgment creditor of the Manoa company for $58,000.

Deposits received at The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank begin to draw interest Saturday, July 1st.

FIRST PHOTOS OF THE CORONATION OF KING GEORGE V. AND QUEEN MARY IN LONDON

LONDON, July 1.—The glittering procession of royalty and of English notables from the empire's varied possessions on the day following the coronation is said to have been one of the most impressive pageants of all time. The route through London was lined with enormous crowds. It was impossible to obtain a good seat from which to view the procession for less than £5 ($25). The accompanying photo shows the king and queen in the royal coach, drawn by the famous "creams," the favorite royal horses, passing through Ludgate circus.

GUILTY OF ASSAULT

Two Men Ordered to Pay Fine of $10 Each

John Redding and Frank Cole were arraigned before Judge Fisher in police court this morning on a complaint charging them with assault and battery on Zalel Dowager. At the conclusion of the case the court found both men guilty and ordered each to pay a fine of $10.

The complainant testified that about 5.30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon he was driving through Charles street, near the corner of Gorham when three men approached his wagon, two of them being the defendants. He said one grabbed the bridle on the horse while another started to pull his bags of rags from the wagon. He said he told them to stop, but they paid little attention to him and when he jumped from the wagon he claims that they struck him, knocked him on the ground and then jumped on him. He denied striking them. He had several witnesses to testify in corroboration.

The defendants denied that they struck the man. They testified that as they were passing through the street the wagon approached and they had to wait to allow it to pass; that while the wagon was in front of them the complainant swung his whip and struck one of them on the side of the face inflicting a severe wound.

Charged With Larceny

Patrick Carney was charged with the larceny of ten pounds of lead, a toilet bowl and fittings, all of the value of $6, the property of Lizzie W. Ordway. He was found guilty and sentenced to two months in the house of correction at Cambridge.

Other Offenders

John Carney was charged with being drunk and admitted that he was guilty but pleaded for a chance. He said, "I am a sick man and have a sick wife and in the name of God give me a chance. I took two glasses of beer last night and it proved to be my undoing." His case was continued for a week.

John F. Cunningham of North Leominster also charged with drunkenness wanted a chance. He said he did not come to Lowell to get drunk but that he was led into temptation upon arriving here, and lost control of himself. The court assessed him $6.

Sumner L. Brown is on probation from the superior court and was arrested yesterday on a complaint charging him with being drunk. He will be turned over to Probation Officer Ramsay.

The case of Louis Wentworth was continued until Wednesday at the request of the police who want to investigate the case.

John P. Gallagher was fined $6.

A REWARD OF $500

For the Arrest of an Alleged Murderer

WARWICK, R. I., July 1.—A reward of $500 has been offered by the local police for information resulting in the arrest of Gietano Chilli, 22 years old, who is wanted in connection with the murder of Patrolman Walter McQuarrie in the village of Apponaug last Tuesday. McQuarrie was shot when he accosted a man carrying a bag of cloth which was later identified as having been stolen from the East Greenwich bleachery where Chilli was employed.

PROBABLY A SUICIDE

Lawrence Man Walked Into the River

LAWRENCE, July 1.—An apparent case of suicide took place in the Merrimack river a few hundred feet west of the Canoe club wharf, yesterday. Alouis Desutter, a Franco-Belgian, aged 60, of 409 Canal street, walking into the river. His body was found by the police in the afternoon.

John Murphy, aged 14 years, of 12 Newton street and Edward Coughlin, aged 14, of 42 Crosby street saw the man walk into the water. They notified Patrolman Hart, who, with Arthur Hembrough of 217 Water street, later brought the body to the surface. It is said that the man returned to shore after entering the water once.

His suicidal purpose evidently prevailed, for he again walked into the water, threw up his hands and disappeared. A card in his pocket led to his identification. He was a mill operative.

MAY GET DOCKED

New Rule Starts for Pos Office Employes

July first marks the beginning of the fiscal year at the postoffice and then will be inaugurated a new scheme to promote promptness in reporting to work among the clerks and carriers of the department.

At the outset it should be stated that this new rule is general and is in no way a reflection upon the local office which is one of the best conducted in the whole wide domain of the postal department.

Beginning the first of July each employe is allowed five minutes leeway in reporting for work. There has been a time clock that they have rung in upon going to work for some time past, but now it has a different significance.

Each employe must ring in the clock when he goes to work and if he is over five minutes late he gets a demerit for every minute over five minutes. If he gets 500 demerits within a year he will receive a reduction of salary of $100. But if in the subsequent three months following his reduction he shows up on time his original salary will be restored and he will only lose $25. If he doesn't make good within the three months the reduction goes for all time according to report. The scheme is for the purpose of promoting promptness among the employes of Uncle Sam.

MILLS SHUT DOWN

HOLYOKE, July 1.—The Lyman cotton mills were shut down today until July 10. The plant employs 1400 operatives.

A special prize valued at $20 for the best time in this race will be given by the committee. There will be free dancing with music by the Industrial School band of Lawrence and the Scottish pipe band of the Merrimack valley. The musical part of the day's amusement will be well taken care of. MY FACE WAS ALL BROKEN OUT

And So Disfiguring! Eruption Started with a Pimple, Came in Blotches, Causing Great Pain, Spread Rapidly. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment, Blotches Disappeared.

"My trouble started with a pimple on my nose, which I picked, and it rapidly spread all over my face, the eruption coming in blotches, and causing great pain and disfigurement. My face was all broken out, and oh! so disfiguring; being a business woman, it was dreadfully embarrassing. I was doctoring for six months without any relief. Then I saw the Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertised, so I thought I would try them, which I did. After using the Cuticura Soap and one box of the wonderful Cuticura Ointment, every one of my friends noticed the improvement. I am delighted to say the blotches have all disappeared, and I am completely cured through the use of the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I take great pleasure in recommending them to all my friends." (Signed) Miss Nellie Lonergan, 313 Ninth Ave., New York City, Jan. 29, 1911.

For more than a generation warm baths with Cuticura Soap and gentle applications of Cuticura Ointment have afforded the speediest and most economical treatment for torturing, disfiguring affections of the skin and scalp of infants, children and adults. A single cake of Cuticura Soap (25c.) and box of Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are often sufficient when all else has failed. Although sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with 32-p. book on care and treatment of the skin and scalp, will be sent free, on application to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 29A, Boston, Mass.

YOUNG GIRL IS MISSING

Her Mother Thinks That She Has Eloped With Former Boarder

Mr. and Mrs. Onesime Dube of 42 Lee street have reported the disappearance of their 17-year-old daughter, Albina Dube, who left home a week ago last Monday, and who has not returned. The parents fear that the young girl eloped with a young man who formerly lived with the Dube family. The police have been notified of the disappearance of the couple and a description as well as photos of the young man and young woman were given them, but as yet no trace of either has been found.

Mrs. Dube is grieved over the disappearance of her daughter. When interviewed by a Sun reporter this morning, Mrs. Dube related the following story:

"About a year ago a man about 28 years came to live here. He was sort of a linguist for he could speak several languages, among them French and English. Shortly after his arrival I noticed that he was courting my daughter Albina, who was then about 16 years of age, and she seemed to take a liking to him. I did not want my daughter to keep company with this man, so the best way to do was to turn him out, and so I did. So far as I could learn, he then went to Italy and returned to this country a short time later. Then he began corresponding with my daughter, sending the letters to another woman who also lived here. I got hold of several of the letters and in all those I saw he would propose an elopement. A week ago last Sunday he arrived in this city and hired a room in Moody street, paying two weeks' rent in advance, but I did not see him around my home.

"A week ago last Monday my daughter came home to dinner and after partaking of a hearty meal left for her work. A few minutes later two young girls came to the house and told me that Albina and this man were seen boarding a Lawrence bound car. The police were notified and my husband immediately went to Lawrence, but no clew of the couple could be found. A few days later we heard that the two were seen in Lynn, and there again investigations were made, but the efforts were fruitless."

The young girl was employed in the spooling department of the Massachusetts mills where there is still a pay coming to her. When she left home she wore a short blue skirt and blue waist, a long heavy blue coat, a white hat and black low shoes. She is about 5 feet tall and is a pretty brunette. Her hair is of a dark shade.

DIAMOND NOTES

Fall River again.

Dear Mr. Barrows: Please accept this slight token of our esteem, hoping that it will find you well, and that the national commission won't cop it.

Yours truly,
Mr. Bull Durham.

Poor Barrows has one consolation. They may take his coin away from him, but they can't deprive him of his smoking tobacco for he has earned 100 packages in two days, which is going some.

Groh grew fresh with Bannon, and Tommy grew indignant at Groh, and another Iridian appeared on the horizon.

Didn't both managers make a slight mistake in pulling out their first pitchers?

Yesterday was the first time this season that Fred Reiger has not finished the game he has started.

Harry Huston is throwing perfectly these days.

And Brockton is in second place again! They do come back.

Hickman was right there with the stick; likewise the chin music.

With all his faults, Wormwood is some worker and can play any old position on the team.

IS TRAINING HARD

Jimmie Gardner Getting in Shape Right

Jimmie Gardner of Lowell is training as he never has before for his twelve round bout with Wild Bob Moha, which will be decided at the Armory A. A., Boston, Thursday evening, July 6th. Mike Twin Sullivan, who has boxed Moha, told Gardner that Moha is all that has been said about him, and then some more, and as Jimmy knows Mike to be a first class judge of boxers, he is going to be in tip top shape. Joe Thomas, the ex-welterweight champion, is boxing with him.

George Robinson, who has made some splendid contests as an amateur against heavier men, is to box Jack Cottman, of Philadelphia. They will appear in the semi-final bout of eight rounds.

Dave Powers of Malden will find a worthy opponent in Ted Thompson of Chicago. They will box six rounds.

The opening preliminary is between Billy Yerkes of Hot Springs and Joe Brown of Boston.

Coates Thread Co. left their work here today until Wednesday morning they were notified that the plant will be closed down from Aug. 19 to Sept. 6. SMASHED TO PIECES

MINEOLA, L. I., July 1.—Dr. Henry Walden of New York met with a serious mishap today on the Garden City field when he fell nearly a hundred feet in his original type monoplane, smashing it to pieces. Lack of power was probably responsible for the accident. Walden was severely shaken up.

MIDWAY ATTRACTION

Big Affair to be Held in Columbus Park

The garden party to be held the "Night Before" in aid of the Immaculate Conception church, on the Columbus park grounds, promises to be a brilliant affair, for the various committees are working diligently on several novel features. There will be band concerts and dancing, while the "Midway" will rival the celebrated Coney Island. The grounds will be brilliantly illuminated, and in every particular the affair will be a conspicuous success.

From 5 to 7 o'clock the women in charge will serve a bean supper to which clerks in the stores are specially invited. At 8 o'clock the grounds will be thrown open to the children of the city. Tents have been raised, stages erected, incandescents and arc lights placed in position and the affair promises to be the biggest ever held in Lowell.

CHIEF OF POLICE

CAME HERE TO STUDY FINGER PRINT SYSTEM

J. B. Richard, chief of police of Sioux City, Iowa, was a visitor at the police station today. Mr. Richard is combining business with pleasure. The Sioux City department has decided to adopt the finger print system and learning that the methods used by the Lowell police department are the best in the country he came to this city to receive pointers. Supt. Welch explained the various methods and gave him some valuable information relative to the work.

FIRE ON STEAMER

LIVERPOOL, July 1.—Fire was discovered among the bedding in the cabins of the steamer Canada while the vessel was at her dock here this afternoon. The blaze was easily extinguished before any damage of consequence had been done.

HARVARD'S VICTORY

Yale Crew Badly Beaten in the Varsity Race

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 1.—Harvard administered to Yale the worst defeat that the Blue has received in rowing for many years yesterday afternoon, when Capt. Roger Cutler's giant eight led Capt. Frost's crew from start to finish over the four-mile course. Harvard won by 36 1-2 seconds or 14 boat lengths.

This means that the Crimson defeated the Blue by 882 feet in four miles. The times of both crews were slow and way below the record of the river, because the race was rowed against a stiff southwest wind, which blew directly against the crews, and as the breeze was also against the outgoing tide there was rough water in some spots, which made it impossible for Harvard's speedy crew to take a shy at the record of 20:10 that has stood since 1888.

Harvard's time was 22 minutes 44 seconds, and Yale's 23 minutes 40 1-2 seconds.

Of the three races in yesterday's regatta, the first one, for the freshman eights, which was rowed at 11 this morning, was the only real contest of the series. Yale was expected to win this race and it came out just as scheduled, although the Blue had a much harder time in defeating the Harvard youngsters than had been expected.

For a mile and a half the crews raced by side, Yale leading most of the time by a few feet, but never by more than a third of a boat length. But when the eights started their sprint for the finish line, Yale had the speed and pulled away from the Crimson shell, winning by one and a half boat lengths. The times were: Yale 11 minutes 53 seconds, Harvard 11 minutes 59 1-2 seconds.

Following the freshman race, the varsity four-oar crews took their turn. Harvard was booked to win this event and here again the result was just as predicted. For a mile it was a fairly close struggle, although Harvard led all the way from the first stroke.

In the second mile Yale tired and fell steadily to the rear, while Harvard's smoother and faster four was increasing its lead, until when the flag fell, announcing Harvard the victor, Yale was three and a half boat lengths behind. The times in this race were: Harvard 13 minutes 37 1-2 seconds, Yale 13 minutes 52 seconds.

Through a strange freak of nature, all three races were rowed against a strong head-wind, although the two in the morning were rowed upstream while the varsity race in the late afternoon was down the river. Until 12 o'clock a strong wind, carrying from east to west-of-north, blew down the river against the incoming tide. Then just at noon, the wind shifted clear around and came up fresh from the south, and so blew against the outgoing tide and against the varsity crews in their race. So in neither contest was it possible to do any fast rowing, so far as time goes.

While the oarsmen would have liked more favorable conditions for the satisfaction of finding out how fast they could row, there never was a more glorious race day on the Thames for the thousands who came to see the regatta than this has been. And never in this country has there been gathered any such fleet of steam, power and sailing craft as floated on this beautiful river when Harvard and Yale measured oars this evening.

There is always a good-sized fleet of yachts anchored along the course, forming a lane for the shells to pass through, but yesterday put all previous displays way in the shade. From the railroad bridge clear up and past the navy yard, a stretch o ftwo miles on either side of the course, yachts and boats of all sizes, from the immense steamers that only the millionaires can enjoy, down to the most diminutive powerboat, the flotilla was massed; not in a single line on either side of the flags, but packed in as closely as cable lengths would permit. College colors and every bit of bunting found in the locker was snapping in the breeze.

Anchored here and there in this brilliantly decorated fleet were big excursion boats packed with spectators. One carried the Harvard club of Boston, another swarmed with the celebrating alumni of the Harvard classes of 1891, 1896 and 1901. The steamer brought them around this morning from Watch hill, where they had spent the night.

One of the most conspicuous yachts on the river was the Catania, owned by the duke of Sutherland, which had just arrived from Gibraltar, bringing a party of distinguished guests across the ocean to see the race, although the duke had been unable to make the trip.

Four U. S. revenue cutters and the derelict destroyer Seneca added to the brilliant spectacle, while their crews darted up and down the river in power launches and barges, keeping the course clear for the racing shells.

More people watched yesterday afternoon's race than have ever seen a meeting between Harvard and Yale on the Thames before. The two observation trains, running on either riverbank, much longer than ever before, were both filled to their capacity, while the highways that run along the hills rising fro mthe shores had continuous processions of automobiles.

A BRILLIANT EVENT

Will be Held by Mystic Nobles Sunday

What promises to be a notable and at the same time brilliant affair will take place tomorrow afternoon in Boston, when the initiatory degree will be exemplified on about 300 candidates for admission into the Mystic Nobles of Granada, making the largest class since the inception of the order. The following cities will be represented at the degree, Lowell, Worcester, Fall River, Springfield, Portland, Me., Manchester, N. H., Providence, R. I., Pawtucket, R. I., New Haven, and Bridgeport, Conn. and Boston Caravan has made elaborate preparations for the entertainment of the gathering which altogether will number 1000 men. The Lowell quota to the number of about 200 will leave here on the 2.28 train and on arriving in Boston a committee will be in waiting to escort the visitors to Granada hall. The doors will close at 4 p. m. at which time the ceremonies will open. Dinner will be served followed by speech-making and an entertainment. The arrangements in Lowell are in the hands of Dr. Wm. M. Collins, grand monarch of Lowell Caravan.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN

Lawrence Man Met With Serious Injury

PORTLAND, Me., July 1.—John Bowler of Lawrence, Mass., was struck by a Grand Trunk freight train last evening. He was on the track back of the Galt block on Commercial street and was apparently asleep. One leg was fractured and the other half was nearly cut off at the ankle and was amputated after he was taken to the Maine general hospital.

Bowler is 38 and for three weeks had been at work on the Portland & Lewiston electric line.

JUDGE LONG

SAYS HUSBAND IS LORD AND MASTER

SPRINGFIELD, July 1.—These precepts for the guidance of wives and husbands in cases of difference over household economy were laid down by Judge Charles L. Long yesterday in the separate support case brought by Mrs. Edith S. Marsh against Henry D. Marsh, assistant treasurer of the Five Cent Savings Bank:

To begin with the husband is absolute lord and master of the exchequer.

Under the law he is entitled to his meals at any hour he wants them.

He may select such food as he chooses. If he wants one food and his wife another, the husband's decision goes.

A servant girl to whom the husband objects must be discharged.

Finally, man, who pays the bills, and not the woman, is boss.

Judge Long advised the Marshes to patch up their differences. Mr. Marsh left the court room wreathed in smiles. Mrs. Marsh did not indorse the court's opinions, and said so.

INSTITUTE OF INSTRUCTION

PROVIDENCE, July 1.—With several departmental meetings and a general session in the forenoon the American Institute of Instruction closed its three days convention in this city today. The speakers at the closing meeting today were Charles Prosser, deputy commissioner of education for Massachusetts, whose topic was "Standards and problems in vocational education" and Dr. Winship, editor of the Journal of Education, who spoke on "New England's Future." Among the other speakers at today's sessions were Mrs. Charles Flagg, president of the Maine Federation of Women's clubs; Superintendent Arthur D. Call of Hartford, Conn.; H. C. Morrison, state superintendent of public instruction for New Hampshire; Superintendent Clark of Somerville, Mass., Superintendent Verplank of South Manchester, Conn., and Miss Mabel Robertson of Fall River.

Of course Lowell friends of the new charter feel grateful to Norman White who championed the charter for Lowell on the floor of the house at a very critical stage in the progress of the bill.

The city of Fitchburg is threatened with another epidemic of diphtheria, four nurses and several patients at the Burbank hospital having contracted the disease. The board of health of Fitchburg should get busy. When a hospital has to close on account of the disease, the condition would appear to be serious. It is fortunate that the schools are not in session. There is general curiosity not only in Fitchburg but outside as to the cause of the disease.

JUDGE FALLON'S TREATMENT OF BOYS

Some of the Boston papers made a great hullabaloo the other day because Judge Fallon of the police court ordered a boy of thirteen years held in $200 for the juvenile court and in default sent him to the Charles street jail. There was a lot of sympathy for the boy's mother because she was poor, and Judge Fallon was severely criticized by papers that have heretofore had nothing but words of praise for him. But all this went well until the other side of the story was told.

Judge Fallon while in the police station overheard the boy say: "Oh, it's nothing to be locked in a cell. I'll soon be out again."

That statement combined with the fact that this boy had been in before on other charges convinced the judge that unusual severity was necessary. The boy was one of a party who entered an empty house, cut off the water pipes and sold them for junk.

"To turn him out with a mere reprimand," said Judge Fallon, "would be to encourage him to go on in his criminal course;" and so it would. If such juveniles are immune from punishment while they acquire criminal habits it will be useless to attempt to reform them afterwards. Where boys show precocity in criminal tendencies they should be treated with the degree of severity necessary to compel them obey the law.

Judge Fallon has always been recognized as a just judge, and in this case his course was perfectly proper. He would be unjust to the boy and to the community if he allowed the lad to boast of his immunity while committing a serious crime.

SUPPRESSING THE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

Editor Sun:

Dear Sir—In your editorial in Monday's paper you seemed to criticize the teachers of Lowell and to say that closer supervision is necessary in order to procure better results. I think you will find the teachers of Lowell equal to those of any other city and doing just as good work. No conscientious teacher will be helped by closer inspection. Yours truly, E. H. H.

We had no intention to criticize the teachers of Lowell. If they were not as a whole faithful and hard working teachers the results would not be as good as they are under the go-as-you-please system now in force.

We hold that better results generally can be secured by more careful inspection or supervision which means that a man well trained in practical educational methods should go into every school room in the city, judge of the work done there not only as it appears in the class room, but in reference to lasting results, then criticize what is wrong or defective and have it remedied at once.

Were such a system of supervision in force all the teachers would do better work, and those who are now working in ruts or neglecting the essentials for the non-essentials would soon change. The whole question is one of getting the school board to allow the superintendent to do his duty by giving him the authority and holding him strictly responsible for results.

Supt. Whitcomb's statement at the meeting of the school board on Monday evening was illuminative of the methods at present in force in the school board. He said in effect he had always sought the cooperation of the grammar masters in running the schools but had not always been able to obtain it. The lack of this cooperation was an injury to the schools, he said. He had been criticized for not being able to command the loyalty of the grammar masters, but he allowed that "if he could not command he had shown at least that he could obey." That implies that instead of commanding the grammar masters he has been obeying them.

Dr. Lambert stood for the advisory board by saying that if twelve principals could come together and cooperate and the superintendent of schools could not secure their cooperation, the fault lies with the superintendent, not with the twelve. That is an absurd and an unjust statement. Had the superintendent of schools the power that he should have there would be no question of the cooperation of all the principals. If the board were doing its business in a business-like way it would promptly get rid of any principal who refused to cooperate with the superintendent for the benefit of the schools. Instead of doing so the board has organized the principals into an independent body to do some of the more important parts of the superintendent's work, a body that is so exclusive that it does not allow the superintendent to be present at its meetings. But having twelve members perhaps it has misgivings about the "unlucky thirteenth." We are not speaking here particularly for Supt. Whitcomb but for the system necessary to attain the best results. The superintendent, whoever he may be, should be superintendent and should have the authority to run the schools as he deems best. He should be held responsible for results, and if he cannot "make good" some other man should be employed in his place. But if the most distinguished educator in the United States or in the world were in Mr. Whitcomb's shoes today he could not do anything more to improve the schools, because he has not the authority. What the school board should do if it must have a board of supervisors and if at the same time it wants to be logical is, not to suppress the superintendent but to abolish the office altogether and let the truant officer call at the schools occasionally to see that the ventilation and sanitary conditions are all right. Why pay a man $3000 a year and then tie his hands so that he cannot earn his salary?

The fact is, the school board has adopted a very bungling system and one that will not work. The sooner it is dropped and the sooner the requirements of the new law are put in force the better for Lowell and for Lowell schools.

AT THE CLUB

"Well, how do you like your new machine, Harry?"

"I like it first rate, Andrew, and you can take my word that it is as good as I can buy."

"By the way, Harry, where did you get your car?"

"Why, you ought to know; I purchased it from the Moody Bridge garage."

"Honestly speaking, I knew where the machine came from, but I wanted to make sure, for I have a little story to tell you about one of the proprietors of the garage, Joseph Marin."

"Throw it out, I am patiently waiting for it."

"Of course I wouldn't want you to tell Joe about it, but it is this way. Some time ago Joe was driving up Moody street at a fair rate of speed. At a point between Aiken and Spalding streets a little boy accidentally ran into the path of the machine. Joe, who at all times has an eye out for such occurrences, quickly applied the brakes and in a very short space brought the auto to a full stop. But, alas! it was too late, the boy was knocked down and run over by the large touring car."

"Did he kill the lad?"

"Take your time, let me tell you the story. Well, Joe jumped out of the automobile and looked around for the chap, but the latter could not be seen. Then Joe got his jack and raised the auto and with fear scrutinized every part of the mechanism, thinking to find the mangled body twisted around the machinery. Such was not the case, however, for the remains of the chap could not be found. By this time a large crowd of people gathered around the machine, but the disappearance of the boy was a mystery. Part of his clothing was found twisted in the gearing. Somebody said that the boy who was killed was named Berger and that he lived on Ford street. Joe then went to the house to inquire if the Berger boy had been killed although he felt that a dead boy would not disappear so quickly unless ground to atoms. You can't imagine what our friend Joe saw when he reached the Berger home."

"The boy's ghost?"

"No, not his ghost, but his body all greased up from toes to head, and the chap was just telling his mother that he was lucky Mr. Marin did not catch him. The boy explained later that when the machine struck him he fell between the two wheels and was uninjured, and when the machine had passed over him, he hurriedly ran home so as not to give the automobile driver a chance to scold him for getting in the way."

"Well, that is the best I heard yet, Harry, but for the love of Mike don't let Joe hear that you are telling it around."

Harry's Horse Story

"By the way, Andrew, I heard of a local stablekeeper who lost a horse lately in a very strange manner.

"He had purchased a horse from a Tewksbury farmer and went out one evening in his automobile to get the animal, intending to lead it home with a hitch rope behind the auto."

"Did the horse run away?" asked Harry.

"Well, not exactly that. Farmers' horses, as a rule, do not run away but they sometimes walk away and that is probably what this horse did."

"It was getting dark as he set out for the city with the horse tied to the auto by a hitch rope. The horse trotted so beautifully after the auto for the first mile or so that the stableman thought he had a very intelligent animal, and so he had.

"When he struck Andover street, however, he looked back but found to his astonishment that the horse had disappeared although the rope was there.

"Was the horse ever found?" inquired Harry.

"Oh! yes, he was found in his stall next morning after feeding all night on new mown hay.

"When the stablekeeper called the next day to get the animal it was so badly swollen as a result of eating the green hay that it could not be taken out of the barn door."

PEOPLE OF NOTE

A writer says in the Liverpool Daily Post:

"Here is a perfectly true story which has never appeared in print but which is known to scores of people: A maiden lady was bicycling in the south of Scotland and caught in the handlebar of her machine the chain which supported her glasses snapping it into several pieces. So she went into the solitary shop of the village through which she was passing and asked for any sort of chain.

"The old woman said she had only a string of old glass beads which had been in her family for years, but as times were hard she would part with them. Thinking them rather pretty the lady paid the price asked which was fifteen shillings.

"About ten days later, on her return to London, she went to a jeweler to get her small gold chain mended, still wearing her glasses on the beads. The man noticed them and asked if he might show them to the head of the firm. The latter soon came forward and said he should be happy to offer £500 for the necklet.

"Without showing the least surprise the lady sagaciously answered that she would think the matter over. Then she went to a friend in one of the museums. After a little research among books he pronounced the beads to be the lost string of wonderful pearls Mary Queen of Scots had worn on the scaffold, and several experts agreed. Finally the beads were privately sold for £15,000 and out of part of the proceeds the lady took care that the old saleswoman should be made more than comfortable for the rest of her life."

The only person to receive the degree of doctor of divinity at Brown was William B. Parshley of the class of 1886, missionary in Yokohama. Only one man was similarly honored at Yale, George W. Knox, professor at Union Theological seminary, who won his spurs as a missionary to Japan and there laid the foundation of his large contribution to the study of comparative religions.

An old lady who used to know Scott has just died in Edinburgh at the age of ninety-seven. Mrs. Jean Burke was a Macgregor whose ancestors came from the Braes of Balquhidder, and in whose family there runs a tradition that they were direct descendants of Rob Roy. Mrs. Burke, in her young days, along with her two sisters, resided next door to Sir Walter Scott, and saw him regularly every morning leaving his house for his duties in parliament house. The three young Macgregors, consistent with the tradition of their family, were in the habit of wearing cloaks of Rob Roy tartan, and the old lady recalled how Sir Walter Scott used to greet them, as they started for school, with the words, "Rob Roy Macgregor."

LAKEVIEW PARK

The next one of the big, free, out-of-door attractions at Lakeview park will be seen Monday and every afternoon and evening during next week. Rollo, the Limit, will be the attraction.

Rollo has an act that justifies him in going under the appellation of "The Limit," as it is the limit in daring and pure reckless nerve. The act is fast and sensational. While it does not take long to perform it is so intensely thrilling that it seems to the excited spectator as almost an age.

It is the only turn of its kind in America although there are many of a similar nature, none, however, which go to the extent of sensation reached by Rollo. Everybody is familiar with the loop-the-loop acts of a few years ago, which were done in automobiles, or bicycles and in various ways. Each of these however, had an extension of the incline in the form of a loop to guide the looped.

Rollo introduces the novelty of doing away with the loop entirely. He dashes down a steep incline on roller skates and at the bottom flies off into space, turning a swift, complete somersault before alighting on another incline which eases off his descent to the ground.—Adv.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE

Today's two performances of "Raffles the Cracksman" will close a most successful week at this theatre.

Commencing Monday, July 3d, a dramatic event of unusual interest will be presented "Salomy Jane" the play in which Miss Eleanor Robson scored her biggest success. The Lakeview Theatre Stock company will give this fine western story a careful presentation, with new scenic effects and all the detail for which this company is becoming known. "Salomy Jane" was written by Paul Armstrong and it's scenes are laid in the fertile dramatic fields of California.

Miss Marie Horton will be seen as "Salomy Jane" and she may be depended on to give it an artistic portrayal. Mr. Arthur Behrens will have the role of the man who has demonstrated his ability to portray almost any kind of a role satisfactorily. Wm. A. Williams will play the "Gambler" and the stage coach driver will be Mr. J. J. Owens. Bartley McCullum will play Col. Starbottle the comedy role of the play and Paul Armstrong the author has made of this part a feature for comedy.

The love story told in this play between Salomy Jane and "The Man" is of the true, rugged west, and Salomy's kiss in the first act is one of the treats of the drama, for all she knows about "The Man" whom she kisses is that he has killed "Baldwin" the man who has insulted her. From that time on the love interest is strong and is without doubt the success of the play. There will be a matinee every day excepting Monday afternoon.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

"Two Thousand Dollars Reward" is the title of a pretty comedy drama which is to be given at the Merrimack Square theatre next week by that popular actor, Mortimer Snow, and his assistants, Miss Lillian Lee Anderson, O. E. Covert and Dan McCabe. The latter is the well known Lowell boy who has appeared with the Hathaway theatre stock company in seasons past and also with other favorably known organizations. The playlet in which the above are to appear is one of the very best of the numerous western pieces, and contains an evenly balanced and cleverly told story of life among the plains. It concerns the escape of a bandit who succeeds in eluding the officers of the law and for whose capture a reward of $2000 is offered. The whereabouts of the man becomes known to the young girl on the ranch, but she, knowing the true story of the affair in which it is alleged he is directly implicated, assists in shielding him from the officers and eventually helps not a little in establishing his innocence. Mr. Snow, as the escaped bandit, is sure to continue in the approval of his audiences for such a character is just to his liking, while Miss Anderson, as the ranch girl, will again be seen in a congenial part. The staging of the piece will be given the same care and attention of the past.

Ash and Carr, travesty artists, will be seen in an amusing series of burlesque of famous and well known stage folk, and Miss Margaret McDonough, who recently appeared in the Mortimer Snow Co., will be heard in songs. Will Carpenter, the Lowell boy known as "The Roller Skating Wizard" will be a unique exhibition on the rollers and is sure of meeting with the success which has characterized his work in the past. The photo-plays will be among the very best ever shown here, and are the kind that not only entertain and amuse, but instruct as well. They are all approved by the state.

For the sacred concerts Sunday afternoon and evening the Four Manning Sisters in a refined act, Dodd and Campbell, Miss May E. Whiteley, Morgan and West in a new act, and others. The pictures will be new and novel. Remember that the temperature of this playhouse averages about 20 degrees cooler than is found on the outside. Baseball results nightly.—Adv.

THEATRE VOYONS

Commencing Monday the Theatre Voyons will show "Fighting Blood," a Biograph Western Indian picture in which 200 horses and 300 actors appear. This picture is unquestionably the best and most thrilling western reel ever made and its showing will win unlimited approval. The story of the pioneer families attacked by hundreds of Indians and their stirring defence and the exciting rescue by a troop of cavalry is well told and the outdoor fight was staged amid surroundings unequalled in impressiveness. On Thursday the Theatre Voyons will present as an added attraction the first motion pictures of the coronation of King George V in London.—Adv.

CLOSING EXERCISES

Of the Lowell Commercial College Held Last Night

Associate hall was the scene of a brilliant affair last night, when the graduation exercises of the Lowell Commercial college were held. The attendance was very large and after the presentation of the diplomas and a well rendered literary program, dancing was enjoyed till a late hour.

Altogether 71 young men and women received their papers and the beauty of this graduating class is that nearly every one is immediately going into a position that has awaited his or her completion of the course of study and practice.

Judge Frederick A. Fisher presided and also presented the diplomas, while the address to the graduates was by Cyrus A. Durgin, principal of the state normal school.

In his opening address Judge Fisher complimented the 71 graduates as well as the masters and brought out the fact that out of the class, 13 came from neighboring towns, eight from four other New England states, outside of Massachusetts, and three from Canada, thus showing the outside reputation of the college.

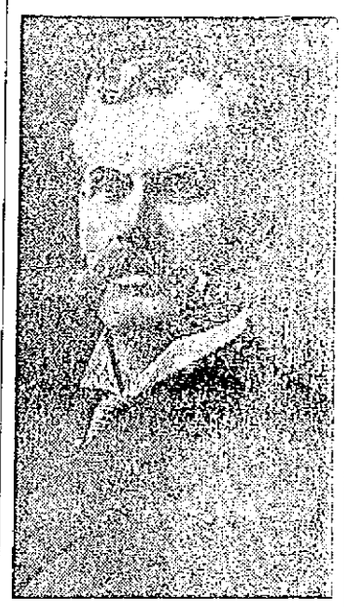

"I have no doubt," he said, "that there are larger colleges in the state, but I doubt if there are better ones; and I have taken pains to attend a recitation, and to study the curriculum. This institution seems to have anticipated, by a good many years, what is now a well recognized need,—and that is, for vocational training.

"I am glad to see that the class has adopted as its motto, the word 'concentration,' which is consistent with the motto of the college itself, as the school that has made good. Efficiency is what we are looking for today. I noticed that the curriculum includes a 'model office.' I hope the graduates will be charitable to us, when they go into our offices; for I doubt if they will find any other model office in the city."

Mr. Cyrus A. Durgin said in part: "These graduations from the different schools and colleges at this season of the year mean a great deal more than merely coming together and receiving diplomas. They mean the entrance into the world's competitions of new blood and new vitality.

"When we think of the colleges of Massachusetts, when we think of the small army of young men and young women who have been leaving those colleges this week and last week to take up the world's work; when we think of the nearly 300 high schools in Massachusetts and the hosts of young men and young women that attend them—nearly 75,000 strong; and when we think of the host of children attending the elementary schools,—more than half a million in number, requiring more than 13,000 teachers, when we think of the vast sums of money expended for the erection of buildings, —more than 13 millions,—and more than 19 millions and a quarter annually for the maintenance of those buildings; and in contrast with that, think of the size of Massachusetts as it looks on the map; we are obliged to come to the conclusion that education in this state is a very serious thing.

"In the old days, a boy was sent to college after he had graduated from the high school or the academy. There he took up the study of Greek, higher mathematics, and eventually some of the sciences; and when he emerged he was an educated man. Later on, I am glad that we did the same for the girls. I believe in that kind of education; it does a great deal for those who take it.

LEDOIT E. KIMBALL

But conditions are changing in the commercial and industrial life of the nation, and our education has changed. In these days it is not looked upon as absolutely essential for everybody to study Latin, or for everybody to know the rudiments of chemistry. We look upon education in a two-fold way—the so-called 'cultural' education and the other, which we may call 'vocational.' I am at the head of a vocational school and am talking to the graduates of another vocational school.

"Vocational training is divided into five parts: First, the professional side, dealing with the training of ministers, physicians, lawyers and teachers. It is now proposed to have agricultural schools. Then we have what we may call the industrial type of education. Then the commercial form, of which the Lowell Commercial college is a type. Last and most important of all, is the department of vocational education which has to do with the training of young women for the household arts.

"We frequently hear people speak of 'vocational education versus cultural education.' There is no sense in that, and never has been. Anything that is 'cultural' is brought about in the last analysis by cultivation. It is a fact that if a man can speak well, we look upon him as being educated, more than if he can do something with his hands, and that is incorrect. Culture comes from doing well what you have to do; it makes no difference whether you are learning book-keeping or getting a few paragraphs in Caesar.

"There is no conflict between the cultural, or the general side of education, and that which has to do with earning one's living. I am positive that there is just as much culture in a young lady learning the ways of children and how to teach them well, as there is in learning the best verse that has ever been written."

The speaker then congratulated the pupils as well as the president of the college, LeDoit E. Kimball, for the success obtained during the year.

The class gift to the school, a beautiful framed picture, was presented by the president, Fred B. Root, and accepted by the treasurer of the college, F. Arthur Spence.

The graduates of the class of 1911 are as follows:

Lawrence Youth Killed at Derry, N. H.

DERRY, N. H., July 1.—Stephen Murphy, 15, step-son of Noah Hamel of Lawrence, Mass., was almost instantly killed a few miles north of Derry yesterday afternoon, being run over and crushed by a heavy automobile truck. Hamel was returning from Suncook whither he had taken a load of furniture.-After making a brief stop near Londonderry, the boy went to the front to crank the automobile, which was started. The boy was standing on the step and in some unaccountable manner slipped so that he was thrown around beneath the wheels, the rear one passing over his body. A physician was called, but the unfortunate lad was dead before aid could be rendered him.

BABY KNEW THE DIFFERENCE

One mother has learned by experience that baby powders are not alike. Mrs. N. T. Hartshorn of Sandisfield, Mass., used Comfort Powder for her first baby and its skin was always healthy and perfect. For the second baby she used borated talcum, and the baby was chafed for six weeks. Then she went back to Comfort Powder and in two days the chafing had disappeared and the baby was happy. Its skin knew the difference between an irritating, highly-perfumed talcum and soothing, healing Comfort Powder. E. S. Sykes' name is on the genuine.

SCHOOL DISTRICT

THE TOWN OF WILMINGTON ADMITTED TO IT

Wilmington has been added to the school district which comprised Tyngsboro, Tewksbury, Dracut and North Reading. The town was admitted into the district at a meeting of the district school committee held at the Y. M. C. A. building in this city.

Mr. Julius E. Warren was present at the meeting as the representative of the state board of education and he explained the reason for the annexation of Wilmington to the district as outlined by the state board. Mr. Warren was questioned by the different members of the committee and after giving answers which were satisfactory to the committee it was voted to admit the town.

The change by the addition of Wilmington will add to the duties already incumbent upon Supt. of Schools S. Howard Chace and the committee in considering this phase of the situation unanimously agreed to an increase of $300 per year in the superintendent's salary, thus making his yearly compensation $2100.

Dracut as part of the former school district paid something like $1060 as the proportional share of the superintendent's salary and under the change which will include Wilmington in the new apportionment, this town's share toward the salary will be decreased according to its fractional proportion of the new district.

MRS. GETCHELL'S WILL

Time Limit on Bequests Has Expired

The time limit placed on the distribution of her estate by the late Lorinda M. Getchell has expired and several Lowell charities will soon receive substantial bequests through her will. Mrs. Getchell died in 1905 leaving many bequests to relatives, friends and the parish house of St. John's church and the residue to the executor of her will, in trust for five years pending the return of a son, from whom she had not heard for several years. If in five years time no trace of the son had been found then $500 was bequeathed to the Day Nursery of which the Rev. Dr. L. C. Manchester is president; $500 to the Elliot church, of which the Rev. John M. Greene is pastor and $500 to the Old Ladies' home of this city. The time of the trust has expired, and the son not having been heard from, the executor, Mr. Marcella Greenwood, will soon forward to the above institutions their bequests.

Uses of Salicylic Acid

Salicylic Acid is one of the best-known antiseptics and germicides. It is so highly esteemed that practically all food products are preserved by it.

One of its chief virtues is that it removes disagreeable odors, particularly in the hair and scalp.

Salicylic acid, in correct proportion, is used in Birt's Head Wash, so that the scalp and hair are left in a perfectly clean condition after a shampoo with it, and any parasites or vermin that may have been present are effectively removed.

This feature makes Birt's Head Wash almost indispensable in the nursery.

Children using it frequently could hardly get ringworm or vermin. Birt's Head Wash also contains cocoanut oil, glycerin and whites of eggs, which are recognized by all schools as being of peculiar benefit in hair and scalp disorders, particularly dandruff, itching scalp and faded, falling, lifeless hair. In hygienic tubes 25c., at all druggists.

SUMMER FROCKS FOR OUTDOOR WOMEN

New Outing Garments

IT'S away for the seashore or country at last by the contingent that has remained in town until the present. The weather has been so delightful that the town stayers have found this to be no special infliction, and those who are now departing have the comfortable consciousness they are taking with them what are really the latest and smartest garments.

One thing that is making this season a notable one is the popularity of the sensible outing garment. While afternoon and evening gowns are wild and even the tailor made is freakish, the costume designed for the outdoor woman is really more charming than it has ever been before.

Take the modish tennis costume.

It is made of any fetching material—linen, pique, chambray or lawn. One may wear any color that suits the taste, and it is considered quite smart to combine two shades, as blue and red, the coronation colors, or contrast any color you choose with plain white.

Embroideries also are allowable on gowns for sports. The tennis gown illustrated here is quite pleasingly adorned with a simple embroidery in white and green. The skirt has a deep hem, above which a fold of the material is adjusted to give the appearance of a tunic. The garment is a one piece affair, closing at the left, where handsome ornaments are embroidered to give the appearance of frogs. The square sailor collar is covered with braiding and embroidery and is finished with a pretty tie made of green velvet ribbon. The band of ribbon over the hair is wide enough to keep stray ringlets in place during a lively game. A soft finished, rather coarse linen is the fabric selected for this frock. For tennis, croquet, yachting, boating or a quiet morning on the hotel veranda one could scarcely hope to find a more attractive costume. With the embroidery all in white it would be possible to vary the collars and ties to give the appearance of a new frock each day.

Light blue chambray with a band trimming of interlaced circles and fleur-de-lis was adopted for the making of the other little outdoor gown pictured here. With its brief skirt it is suitable for canoeing or a morning on the links. These band trimmings may be purchased separately and are available in every shade.

For the girl who does not care to invest in an entire suit various combinations may be achieved by combining the mannish shirt waist now in the shops with a plain linen or serge skirt. Some of these waists are so severely masculine that I know of one girl who is wearing a fetching summer silk skirt which her brother bought with the intention of appearing in it himself.

The sweater is still with us in spite of the modifications of the weather. It is useful to the girl who is invited for a week on a yacht or who is contemplating a sea voyage of any particular length. Pictured here is a clinging sweater of Angora wool in the Norfolk jacket shape. On mild mornings on shipboard the sweater is quite warm enough without the heavy steamer coat of tweed or blanket cloth. The little toque of satin and velvet is suitable for the deck of the smart liner, yet is built snugly enough for a motoring journey.

The new silk jersey has low neck and short sleeves and is waterproofed for wear in the surf. The smartest bathing costumes this year are made with divided skirts, but they are plaited so that the division is not obvious.

Riding togs are also divided. The sailor hat and various modifications of the sailor are popular with the equestrienne.

CATHERINE TALBOT.

TENNIS COSTUME

DEVOTEES of the tennis court have some extremely pretty styles to choose from this season. The smart tennis gown illustrated here is just as suitable for walking or golf as for tennis. Linen, chambray and even dimity are used for the construction of the modish outing gown. Any color that is liked may be chosen—pale blue, pink and a shade of sage green, which is considered very smart, are popular. The tennis gowns are very simple, the bodices seamless and attached to a straight rather narrow skirt under a wide girdle. White pearl or white crochet buttons are sometimes used to fasten the waists, and the collars are invariably low cut, generally on the sailor style, with a neat tie as a finish. The sleeves are usually short, with turned back cuffs of contrasting material. A hat of soft panama garnished with a loose scarf of oriental pattern is generally worn with the outing dress. Never before have what comes under the head of "washing gowns" been so substantial looking and so durable. Cotton voiles and marquisettes are leading ideas, and stripes of different width distinguish many fabrics, which prove useful when the classic idea in dress asserts itself. The horizontal lines and the wide stripes, together with polka dots, all figure in the new washing stuffs. Some of the colorings recall old fashioned dimities. The white voiles show formal sprays and latticework effects. Plain linens have been brought out in beautiful colorings.

Nature's Suggestions

WHEN we reflect how brief is the time which has elapsed since the period of grained woodwork and horsehair upholstery, when we recall its accompanying wall papers and carpets, with their patterns which haunted the eye like a mathematical nightmare, it seems almost incredible that so short a time has sufficed for a change so great in taste. Ugliness and stupidity were in possession in the horsehair age. Furniture was just tables and chairs. Carpets were flung down haphazard, curtains were heavy and dark. We were entirely at the mercy of the builder, who produced his rolls of paper, in which bilious drabs and hot pinks were the predominating tones. They were undoubtedly bad for the nerves and altogether unrestful, but in this strenuous age, when we have become almost hypercritical, some of the atrocities of decoration which were then tolerated would conduce to madness.

We have left behind the stiff, uncompromising horsehair suits, the glass shades, the stuffed birds, the waxen flowers and are no longer to be deluded into accepting "birdseye maple" or "satinwood" which is created by three layers of paint.

Now we think in styles, in schemes, in epochs. We can have our walls, our floors and our curtains just as simple as we like or as rich as we please. The modern builder, while he gives us colonial or empire fixtures or Jacobean moldings, does not attempt to influence us in the selection of color schemes. We are in no way coerced into accepting unsuitable wall paper. We have helpful suggestions in plenty in the artistic fabrics and papers which are available. We can see specimen rooms where this or that complete scheme is successfully carried out, but all this only stimulates our own desire to create some individual scheme of decoration which shall be in complete harmony with our taste. People today who can see harmony are becoming as common as people who could only hear it a few years ago.

Nature is full of the kindest and most helpful hints—the warm drab and sharp green of a dish of broad beans is a classical example, and the suggestion inherent in the stalk and leaf of many plants needs only following intelligently to get the most subtle and perfect harmonies. The winter countryside, with its abundance of drabs and buffs, of grays and purples, ought to educate us to a fineness of color perception akin to that of the Japanese.

In adapting nature hints to interior decorative schemes it must be remembered that wall and curtain and furnishing are, after all, not complete decoration in themselves, but the background and scenery for the dramatis personæ and need breadth and repose to keep their place in the scheme of things. Rooms should have their suggestion of purpose and association of wise ideas. A white dining room, for instance, would strike us as cold and cheerless. Even the rather heavy and dull red of the Victorian epoch is more appropriate. A dining room ought to have a certain warmth of color, though the colors themselves may be light in tone. Buffs and golden browns for paper and hangings, with old oak furniture and a carpet in a deeper shade of brown would be a very pleasing room. Perhaps the brown toned dining room is the most delightful of any, although there are many people who cling to red as the only possible dining-room color. There are many possibilities in soft green tones adaptable to dining room decoration, but blue is desirable only in its darker tones or intermingled with the red of oriental style.

Styles Favorable For Plump, Not Fat, Women

Styles were never more favorable to the plump woman than at present. The straight, trim looking skirts, the simple peasant blouse and the fashionable coat of the season are all unusually becoming to those of average height. But as to the stout short woman, heaven defend her! And she moans, "Why can't fashion editors devote several pages to women as they really are?" Dear madam, if the fashion pages were filled with pictures of women as they really look there wouldn't be a pattern or a magazine sold. Women are illustrated as they want to look, not as they are. Their vanity has to be appealed to, for women as a whole can't stand the truth. It would be interesting to know if the stout ladies one sees gowned in the height of the style think that they are replicas of their tall willowy sisters illustrated in the fashion books.

CHILDREN'S ROOMS.

For children's rooms and night nurseries pale pink and white is a delightful combination, and while striving to have everything as dainty as possible one must avoid unnecessary fluffiness, remembering that all draperies, etc., will be paying frequent visits to the laundry.

WALL DECORATIONS

Many Dainty Floral Designs and Japanese Effects

Colored effects predominate in the scheme of wall decoration this season. Bold chintz patterns on delicate backgrounds are some of the most beautiful among the selections to be seen in the best shops. With these decorative papers it is hardly necessary to hang pictures. One of the most delightful examples of Japanese art is in delicate tones of pink on a creamy brown striped frieze, which are most effective, with the deeper colored dado headed by a narrow fanciful border, which border is also placed at the top of the frieze. This particular design can be adapted to various treatments. It is a copy of an old Japanese dress. The rose crown decoration on white striped paper is one of the most beautiful of the hand printed patterns suitable for high pitched rooms. The sweet pea is a novel design for a frieze on white moire paper. Another new idea for high walls is square paneling, obtained by floral borders on white or cream grounds. The aster border is one of the prettiest of this kind. The Sevres crown decoration and the laburnum with diaper filling are other notable examples of this form of wall treatment, especially suited to a drawing room or boudoir.

LET THE LITTLE ONES FIDGET.

Children of the present day will not "be seen and not heard." They have learned that a wise doctor has said that the more a child is heard the finer will become its lungs, the deeper its breath and the more lasting its health. Every child must be allowed to fidget. It is not only nice for the child, but an absolute necessity to insure normal development. The modern child has advantages over its parents.

Acknowledging Invitations

An invitation should always be answered as quickly as possible and in the same form that it is given. For instance, if you receive a card which says, "Mrs. Jones requests the pleasure of Miss Brown's company on Wednesday, June 12," you reply, "Miss Brown has much pleasure in accepting Mrs. Jones' kind invitation for Wednesday, June 12." If, on the other hand, Mrs. Jones writes, "Dear Miss Brown, I shall be so glad if you will come to tea with me on Wednesday, June 12," you answer, "Dear Mrs. Jones, I shall be delighted to have tea with you on Wednesday, June 12." This rule of answering invitations holds good in every case. If you send a refusal it is polite to give a reason and not merely to say that you are sorry you cannot go. After being present at a dinner, dance, wedding, "at home" or large tea party it is usual to call upon the hostess within a week.

The Summer Girl's Hair

IF hair is never given special attention at any other time it should be considered in the summer. The no hat fad makes this imperative, and the no hat fad is one that has come to stay—it is so comfortable and convenient. Now that the "hat must match the gown" ruling is so strict the dispensing with a hat when the occasion will allow it affords a neat way of getting around this requirement. At the fashionable summer resort one sees people hatless as often as with hats. The coiffures, however, are works of art.

The girl who cannot employ a fashionable hairdresser can do much to improve the condition of her own hair. It should always be clean. The doctrine that hair should only be washed or shampooed at frequent intervals is nonsense. Hair should be given a good shampoo or wash at least once a month, and if the hair is dry a little glycerin added to the water will neutralize the effect of the soap and water so far as the depletion of oil in the hair is concerned.

At this time some formulas for improving the condition of the hair may be useful.

To make the hair look glossy comb it with a comb on which a few drops of hair oil have been dropped. Oil of rosemary used alone will serve. This will prevent the hair from becoming limp and unmanageable. It is best combed thus at night when retiring.

To restore hair which has faded from its natural color apply this lotion:

Tincture of jaborandi, 4 drams; lanolin, 3 drams; glycerin, 2 drams; soft soap, 1 dram.

Mix thoroughly and rub into the roots of the hair every night.

Gray hair is generally hopeless. A loss of sulphur in the blood or iron in the blood is sometimes a cause of early grayness. Sometimes use of these tonics will help the hair. It at least ought to prevent the grayness from spreading. Dandruff sometimes is a cause of grayness. The cure is treatment for the removal of dandruff. A nervous shock or a fever may bring about a change in the color of the hair. Rock salt dissolved in brandy is a hair tonic recommended by some. An unguent made by melting beef marrow to measure a gill, adding a tablespoonful of olive oil and a few drops of violet for perfume sometimes restores gray hair.

To remove dandruff from the hair take tincture of cantharides, 1 ounce; rectified spirits of wine, 1 ounce; essence of rosemary, 10 drops; essence of verbena, 10 drops; bay rum, 1 ounce; orange flower water, 3 ounces. Mix and rub into the roots of the hair every night.

HATS FOR GIRLS.

A pretty hat for a young girl is made in black fancy straw with a high crown and trimmed on both sides of the brim with old world rose patterned ribbon. This hat is also adorned with clusters of tiny pink roses and green leaves.

A very pretty hat in black straw, intended for quite a tiny wearer, is lined under the brim with frills of ivory lace and trimmed round the crown with wreaths of pink roses and knots of ribbon, while another hat, which is entirely new, is covered smoothly with black satin and arranged with a trimming of flowers and ribbon and a lining of shot silk chosen in pale colorings.

The Pretty Mannequin

THE life of a Parisian dressmaker's model, or mannequin, as she is called in France, is outwardly luxurious and easy. She dresses in silk attire, she walks upon carpets rich and rare, she has a maid to dress her, a hairdresser to do her hair in the very latest style, her hands are carefully manicured, and for at least five hours a day she parades before an admiring audience in dresses so beautiful that even the heart of a millionairess is sometimes reduced to envy.

She puts on disdainful little airs with her employers, she orders her dresser about with the haughty ways of a stage duchess, she stands or glides before the highest ladies in the land with the detached indifference of the most regal of sovereigns, and the idea of associating her with anything sordid or poor or hardworking seems preposterous.

But there is a very different side to the picture.

Where does she live, this beautiful mannequin? What wages does she earn? What position does she hold in the eyes of her fellow workers? And what becomes of her when her beauty and grace have gone?

A beautiful American girl in Paris was in desperate straits for money and even for food. She was too good looking to have any success as a governess, a nurse or anything domestic, so she thought she would become a mannequin.

So she, with this idea in view, went to see a big dressmaker, and after receiving her none too politely he offered her nine hours' work a day and $20 a month, no food included.

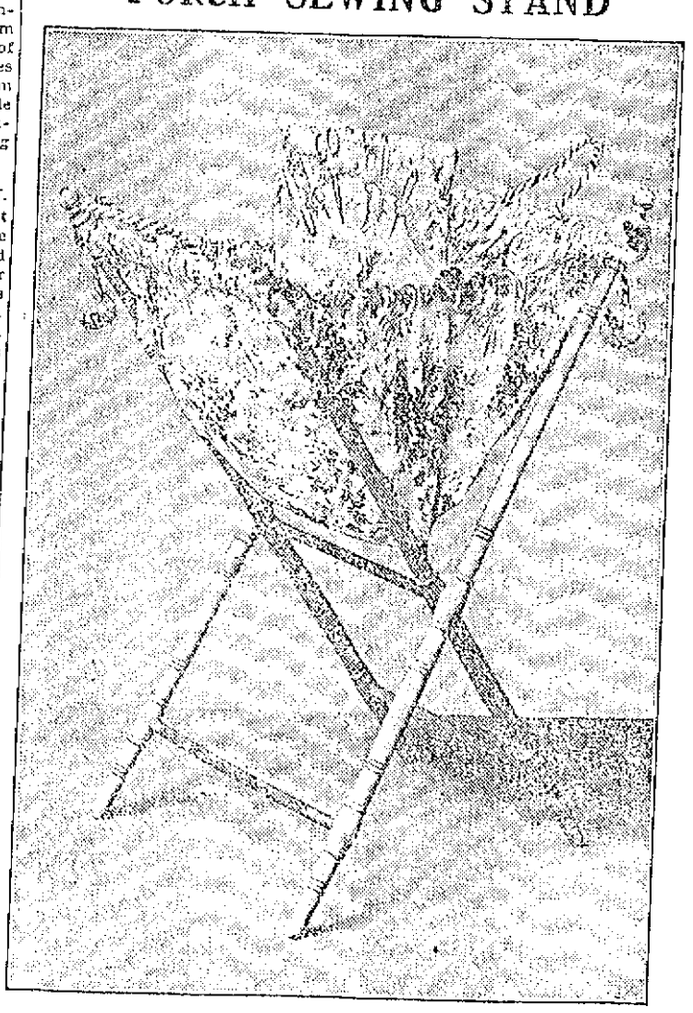

She told him it was impossible for her to live in Paris on that and still keep her good looks.

"No one asks you to," he answered, and when she angrily told him that she was an honest woman he merely shrugged his shoulders and told her she could please herself whether she took his offer or not.

In defense of the man's apparent callousness let it be said that the majority of French mannequins accept these conditions with philosophy. They probably do not like them, but they are essentially cynical and fatalistic, and possibly they come to the conclusion that "such is life," so why make a fuss about it? Thus the dressmaker grows used to their indifference and finds any objection to his accepted conditions merely tiresome.

There are exceptions to these cynical philosophers, of course, and some mannequins are quite virtuous bourgeoise, with husbands and babies at home whom they cherish and love honestly and simply, but the greater number revel in fictitious wealth and ease so long as their beauty lasts.

PORCH SEWING STAND

THIS cretonne covered sewing stand is just the thing for use with the smart willow porch furniture with its cretonne cushions. Such stands cost quite a penny in the fashionable shops, but ingenious women can easily duplicate them or invent something similar just as good. The framework of the stand folds together like a camp chair, and on the cretonne bag are handles by which it may be picked up and carried about. Inside the bag, which consists of cretonne, the sewing utensils are slipped on a flat cretonne covered extension of cardboard, which may be raised or lowered as needed. The spools of thread are arranged on the case beneath the scissors, etc., and a set of needles, including all kinds and sizes, is included. The dividing partition has a semicircular compartment of elastic pockets, in which sewing conveniences may be slipped.

Though capacious enough to accommodate any amount of needlework, mending and darning, the stand is so light and convenient that it may be picked up and carried anywhere.

LOCAL FRATERNITIES

FRED I. VINAL, N. G.,
Grand Union Lodge

Grand Union Lodge, I. O. O. F.—Its History and Present Officers

The order of Odd Fellows in this country dates from April 26, 1819, when Thomas Wildey founded Washington lodge, No. 1, in Baltimore, Md., but prior to this, and running even to 1823, lodges were "self-instituted" in this country, said lodges, each and all, believing themselves to be the only Odd Fellows' lodge existing in the United States at that time. It was then the custom, where five brothers could be got together, to self-institute and operate a lodge. Records were not considered necessary, so no definite knowledge as to their work has been treasured.

Grand Union lodge, No. 7, of this city sprung from the seventh oldest lodge in the country, Merrimack lodge, which was instituted in Lowell on July 18, 1829. Later came Mechanics lodge, instituted Oct. 26, 1842; Lowell lodge was instituted Oct. 9, 1845. The latter surrendered its charter on Dec. 28, 1850, and was reinstituted Feb. 20, 1874. Lincoln lodge was instituted on March 4, 1879.

On April 4, 1907, the four latter lodges consolidated and formed what is now known as Grand Union lodge, No. 7, the first board of officers being as follows:

After the consolidation the lodge first met at Odd Fellows hall, corner of Market and Central streets, which is now known as the republican headquarters. In the 70's, the Carlton building in Merrimack street near Shattuck street, was purchased and remodeled, and the meetings were held there until the Odd Fellows temple in Middlesex street was erected. The meetings are now being held at the latter place every Thursday evening.

There are now 434 names on the membership roll and the lodge is in very good financial condition. Under the efficient care of the present noble grand, Fred I. Vinal, the lodge is very prosperous and its funds as well as its members are increasing rapidly.

Those in charge of the lodge at the present time are the following:

STOCK MARKET

SOME ADVANCES IN THE EARLY BUYING MOVEMENT

Later There was a Downward Tendency —Atchison and Southern Pacific Went Half a Point Below Yesterday's Closing—The Remainder of the List Was Steady

NEW YORK July 1.—Strength in the Erie issues which were influenced by the report that the road was to be affiliated with the Canadian Pacific was the feature of the stock market at the opening today. Erie first and second preferred gained a point each and the common a substantial fraction. Canadian Pacific remained virtually stationary. A heavy buying movement in Western Maryland advanced that stock 2 1-2. U. S. Steel was not affected by the government report and the stock gained a small fraction. A few of the less active issues were weak.

The general market made only a feeble response to the rise in U. S. Steel to 79 1-4 and prices shaded off afterwards with Atchison and Southern Pacific leading the decline. The attendance of traders on the floor was small.

The slight advances effected in the early buying movement were lost when the list adopted a more definite downward tendency. Atchison and Southern Pacific were especially heavy and were forced to about half a point below yesterday's closing. The remainder of the list steadied around last night's level.

Erie Railroad Situation

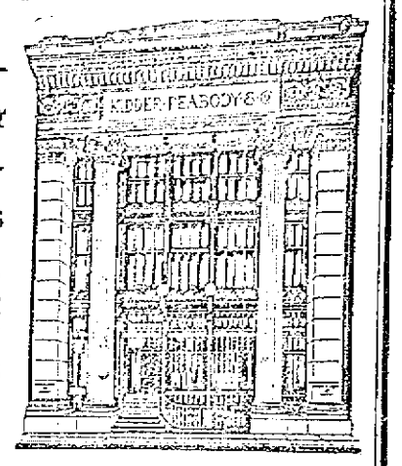

NEW YORK, July 1.—Notwithstanding the sharp rise of Erie railroad stock, which yesterday made a high record for the year, there was no confirmation here today of the report that the controlling interest in the Erie had passed to the Canadian Pacific. It is known, however, that a number of Canadian capitalists have been buying Erie stocks, and yesterday's rise is attributed to this action.

It was learned that while no general traffic arrangements have yet been made between the Erie and the Canadian Pacific, the matter has been discussed informally. Such an arrangement would give the Canadian system entrance into New York via Chicago and Buffalo and afford additional means whereby the Canadian Pacific could meet the competition of the Grand Trunk, which recently acquired a connection between its New England lines and Providence, R. I.

LINN FOUND ALIVE

Wealthy Chicago Man Disappeared on Yacht Water Witch

COTUIT, July 1.—Kenneth Linn, the wealthy Chicago young man who on Thursday night disappeared on board the yacht Water Witch from this place, was found alive on Popponesset point, seven miles from here, on the shore of Nantucket sound today.

Linn was located this forenoon near a summer residence on Popponesset point, according to word received here by Dr. J. J. Higgins, but nothing was said about his physical condition. It is believed, however, that he must be in a starving condition, as there was no food on board the sloop Water Witch, on which he left this place Thursday night. The sloop was found off West Chop today.

Naked and insane, Linn, who is well to do, boarded the Water Witch on Thursday night after eluding his widowed mother and a man nurse and sailed out of the harbor. His disappearance was made known yesterday and since that time searching parties had searched the Sound and its shores for Linn.

Linn was injured in a baseball game in Tampa, Fla., recently, and the injury affected his mind. To recuperate he was brought here last Monday.

Horace Nickerson of this place and three other young men who had been searching the surrounding country found Linn in the hunting lodge owned by Fred W. Lowell of Cambridge.

Nickerson stated that Linn talked rationally at times and seemed to regret the way he had left Cotuit. To all appearances young Linn was none the worse for his experience. Linn said that he sailed only a few miles in the Water Witch, then put in at the cove. He saw that the Lowell house was vacant so went in there to spend the night.

As soon as they discovered the young man the searchers notified N. R. Sawyer, the nurse from whom Linn escaped, and Linn was taken back to Cotuit.

CATHOLIC CHURCH

AT CANOBIE LAKE TO BE OPENED SOON

The new Catholic church at Canobie lake will be formally opened in about a fortnight. It will be called the Church of the Immaculate Conception. For several years past the cottage occupants at the lake were obliged to attend services in the neighboring cities. A petition from the vacationists as to the need of a church at the lake was tendered the bishop at Manchester. The parish was then established and Rev. Fr. John J. McNamara appointed pastor.

Fr. McNamara has recently purchased the Ide Allen place at Salem Depot for a parochial residence, and there the services are held during the winter season. He has had charge of the local parish for two years, celebrating mass at Salem at 8.15 and at Pelham at 9.30. In the summer the service at Pelham was held at the usual time, but the Salem service was held in the rustic theatre at Canobie Lake park at 10.30.

The new church is an attractive structure situated on the shore of the lake. A large bell for the church has been given by Joseph Jackson, of Lawrence. Several prominent clergymen are to assist the bishop in the dedicatory exercises and among them will be Rev. Fr. Thomas I. Gasson, president of Boston college.

VACATION FOR OPERATIVES

PALMER, July 1.—The cotton mill operatives of Palmer, Thorndike, Three Rivers and Ware were given a vacation today until July 10, orders having been received from Boston to suspend work. The mills are controlled by Bliss, Fabyan & Co.

BEAUTIFUL PAGEANT

Great Celebration Was Opened in Taunton Today

TAUNTON, July 1.—Depicting this city from the time of the Indians to the present day one of the most beautiful pageants ever seen in New England was opened here today. The pageant will continue three days. Two hundred persons participated in the exercises. The pageant was presented this afternoon before enthusiastic crowds. Indians at the time of the landing of the Pilgrims first attracted the eyes of the spectators. Then on the attractively decorated shore of the lake was shown the landing of Columbus. In connection with this scene winsome girls dressed as Spanish maidens danced. The next episode dealt with local surroundings, showing the landing here of Pilgrims from Taunton, England, and the founding of this city. An attack by Indians and the burial of an Indian chief concluded this scene. Then was shown King George III. in his court and Taunton Green on the eve of the Revolution.

But what stirred the hearts of the spectators the most was the scene depicting Robert Treat Paine leaving Taunton to attach his signature to the Declaration of Independence and again his return to Taunton.

The pageant closed with folk dances.

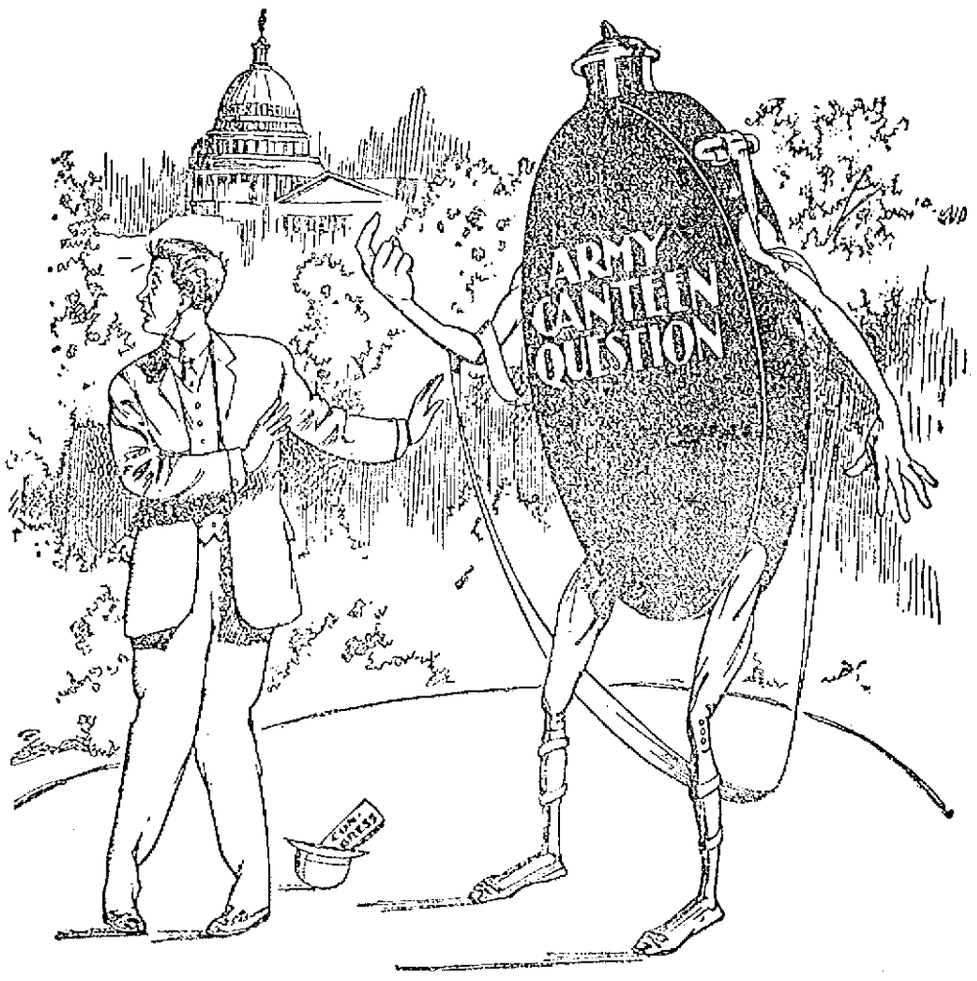

STEAMER ON FIRE

LIVERPOOL, July 1.—The officials of the White Star line announced this afternoon that in view of the fires which have been discovered on the steamer Arabic and supposed to be of incendiary origin, they were compelled to postpone the sailing of the steamer until tomorrow. Another small blaze was discovered this morning. The passengers will be accommodated at the hotels.

The crews of the tugboats struck this morning, and unless a settlement is promptly arranged 23 big steamers, including the Lusitania, will be affected.

MADE WORLD'S RECORD

LONDON, July 1.—A world's record for automobiles was created at Saltburn-by-the-Sea today by P. Bordino, the Italian driver, who covered 116.13 miles in one hour at the Yorkshire Automobile club trials.

"Yes, I know how it is, but I'm afraid I can't open up. Think how it would look at home."

OFFICIAL INSPECTION

NEWPORT, R. I., July 1.—A unique welcome was given Secretary of the Navy George Von L. Meyer when he arrived here today for an official inspection of the Narragansett Bay naval establishment. In addition to the customary salute of 19 guns from the flagship Connecticut, the secretary was given a salute of 19 guns from a miniature cannon on a 45 foot replica of the flagship built by the bluejackets of the Connecticut. The diminutive Connecticut is equipped with motive power.

SAFE AND SANE FOURTH

Local Police Instructed to Enforce the Law

Supt. Redmond Welch of the police department believes in a safe and sane Fourth of July and he will make an honest effort to further reduce danger attending the observance of Independence Day. Monday the members of the department will receive instructions from him relative to the use of fireworks by persons on the streets, rowdyism, etc.

In years gone by there has been considerable rowdyism in the vicinity of the centre of the city and the South common on the Fourth and also the "night before," but owing to the fact that it was taken for granted that the occasion was one for jollification the people were given considerable leeway, but this year the members of the department will be notified to stop the jubilant tactics of people who are out to celebrate.

Copies of laws relative to the keeping, storage, transportation, manufacture, sale and use of fireworks and firecrackers will be given the members of the department and it is the intention of Supt. Welch to have the law carried out to the letter.

The following chapter of the law relative to fireworks and firecrackers is self-explanatory.

Section 49.—Except on the fourth day of July and the seventeenth day of June, or the days celebrated as such, the use or discharge of fireworks or firecrackers without a permit from the Chief of the District Police, or the official designated by him to grant such permits, is hereby prohibited.

Section 50.—No rockets, bombs, aerial shells, Roman candles, Italian batteries or set pieces, except the small set pieces, shall be set off except under the charge of an experienced adult person.

Section 51.—No fireworks or firecrackers shall be set off within 300 feet of any hospital except by special permit.

Section 52. The use of what are technically known as fireworks showers and the use of any mixture containing chlorate of potash and sulphur in theatres or public halls of entertainment are hereby prohibited.

Section 53.—Mortars for discharging bombs shall not be used under any circumstances except in an enclosure prepared for a public display of fireworks, and then under the charge of an experienced pyrotechnist, and each mortar so used shall be placed not less than one-third of its length below the surface of the ground.

Section 54. In the display of fireworks great care shall be exercised by the management and those in authority present that the place which the bystanders occupy shall be beyond the danger area. By danger area is meant in this case such a distance from the point of display that no bystander's bodily safety will be endangered by the accidental discharge of the fireworks.

Section 55. No serpents, rockets, bombs or set pieces of fireworks shall be set off in a public street or public way.

Section 56. No illuminating fireworks for display shall be set off or fired except between the hours of 7 o'clock in the afternoon and 12 o'clock midnight.

Section 57. No smoking shall be allowed in any place where fireworks or firecrackers are handled in stock for sale or display.

No torpedo larger than three-fourths of an inch in diameter can be kept or sold and all torpedoes must be packed with sawdust. The law also provides that no sparklers with match or other sensitive heads be kept or sold.

MAN PROBABLY DROWNED

EAST PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 1.—Following the disappearance of James Carrigan, 28, from his home and the finding of his hat in an empty boat on Phillipsdale pond today, the police began this afternoon to drag the pond in the belief that he had been drowned. Carrigan did not report at his place of employment this morning and later the boat containing his hat and a bottle of whiskey was found on the pond.

CHIEF HOSMER RETURNS

Chief E. S. Hosmer of the fire department returned to Lowell today after a three weeks' vacation spent at Juniper Point, Salem. He contracted a severe cold a little over a month ago and that together with the strenuous work he had to do during the time of the grass fires decided to take his vacation earlier this year than has been his practice in the past. He is much improved in health and stated to a representative of The Sun that he had a very enjoyable time and instead of being bothered with the heat that the weather was rather cool. Mrs. Hosmer accompanied her husband.

UNDER NESMITH WILL

FRANK E. DUNBAR,
One of the Trustees of the Nesmith Estate

Granite State Has Claims That May Amount to Nothing

A short time ago Governor Bass of New Hampshire visited Pollard avenue in this city to consider a proposition that it be closed. The governor represented the state of New Hampshire as beneficiary of the will of John Nesmith, giving the property to the state after the death of his children.

The proposition is still pending and is bothering the trustees of the Hildreth building which is being extended to Paige street.

The interest of the Granite State in the property is such that it may never amount to anything financially, but if held continuously over the property now owned by the Nesmith Heirs in conjunction with others, it will prove burdensome to the owners and a restriction upon the free use and development of the property. For this reason, it is understood, that negotiations are under way to have the state release its claim upon the property for a cash consideration. But no such agreement would be legal without the sanction of the court.

The representatives of the Nesmith estate are Frank E. Dunbar, George S. Motley and Joseph A. Nesmith. The report in business circles has been that if the proposition to the governor and council of New Hampshire is accepted there will be a large business block put up on the property.

Thanked by the Legislature.

Men who are well informed on the matter say that the New Hampshire legislature at the last session passed an act authorizing the governor and council to conduct negotiations with the Nesmith heirs. It is also reported that some time after the bequest to the state of New Hampshire became known, the legislature adopted resolutions thanking Mr. Nesmith.

There is no record in the probate court office in Cambridge that the state of New Hampshire accepted the conditions of the gift, but business men say that it is not unusual, as the state does not receive the gift until the last surviving child of Hon. John Nesmith is dead.

Mr. Nesmith died Oct. 15, 1869. In addition to his widow, the surviving children mentioned in the will were Eliza J., Harriet B., Mary, James E. and Joseph A. Nesmith.

Provisions of the Will

In the codicil to his will Mr. Nesmith said: "I further order and direct that my trustees shall not deliver, make over or convey to the state of New Hampshire the real estate situated at the corner of John and Merrimack streets, Lowell, Mass., described in my said will, nor the said reserved sum of $60,000, or what remains thereof at the decease of my last surviving child mentioned in said will, nor any part of the same, until said state shall have, by proper legislation, accepted the said real estate and said reserved sum for the use mentioned in my said will and upon the conditions following:

"First, that said state shall forever hold said real estate at the corner of John and Merrimack streets and shall neither sell nor dispose of the same nor any part thereof, nor shall lease the same nor any part thereof for a longer term than five years at one time nor shall in any way, directly or indirectly, make or permit any agreement or arrangement whereby said state shall part with the full control thereof without any restriction except so far as the same may be abridged by such a tenancy for a time no greater than five years."

Designed for the Blind

Provision is made in the second section of the will for keeping the buildings in repair and for rebuilding. The third section of the codicil was:

"That said state shall become bound, on receiving the said reserved sum of $60,000 or what remains thereof after the decease of my last surviving child, to pay and make good as the income thereof the amount of 6 per cent per annum thereof, which said income, together with the rents of said real estate, after defraying all necessary expenses thereon, including insurance if made, shall be set aside and constitute a fund to be known as the Nesmith fund, which fund shall be annually applied forever to the aid, support and education of the indigent blind of the state of New Hampshire."

This codicil was made April 28, 1869, and was witnessed by Geo. W. Coburn, Geo. W. Weymouth and Benjamin Goddard.

The Merchants bank property was mentioned in the will as forming a portion of the Nesmith property. The name of John P. Nesmith of New York city was also mentioned in the will as a tenant in common with John Nesmith in a strip of property.

Sold to an Italian Countess

John P. Nesmith of New York City is reported to have disposed of his share of the property to representatives of an Italian countess living in New York city, but the assessors' books of Lowell do not give anyone but the Nesmith heirs as owners of the property.

In the last report on file in the probate office relative to the Nesmith estate it was written that the amount on hand of the $60,000 mentioned in the codicil of Mr. Nesmith was $50,-951.52.

Four Surviving Children

There are four surviving children of Hon. John Nesmith, three of whom live in Lowell.

It has been reported that if the governor and council of New Hampshire consent to the proposition said to have been made to them by representatives of the Nesmith heirs a bill in equity will be filed in the Massachusetts supreme court to dismiss the trust under the will of Mr. Nesmith.

FIREMEN ARE BUSY

Property Owners Must Clear Rubbish

Members of the fire department are now on their annual tour of inspection of the territory in their respective districts and wherever rubbish has been found or places where fire might be caused by the careless use of firecrackers or fireworks the owners or tenants of the premises have been notified to have the rubbish removed and the place protected. This is done annually before the Fourth. Several men from each company who started out yesterday were also working today and it is expected that the inspection will be completed Monday.

All of the firemen will be on duty on the Fourth and also the night before and the call men have been notified not to go any great distance from their respective stations.

BLESSING OF GROTTO

HAS BEEN POSTPONED UNTIL LABOR DAY

Plans are now being formulated to change the date of the blessing of the grotto of Notre Dame de Lourdes erected on the grounds of the French American orphanage in Pawtucket street, from August 20th, as it was first planned, to September 4, Labor day. The reason for the shifting of dates is that the celebration can be held on a larger scale on the latter date than on the previous date which will be a Sunday.

For the purpose of making the change, a meeting of all the presidents of the French societies as well as the captains of the guards, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock at the C. M. A. C. hall. The meeting is called by the pastor of St. Joseph's parish, Rev. Fr. Watelle, O. M. I., and he hopes that all members of the committee in charge of the celebration will be present.

The women of the parish will hold a meeting tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock at the C. M. A. C. hall. The presidents of the following societies are invited to attend: Notre Dame de Bonsecours, Cercle d'Youville, Court Blanche de Castille, F. A. F., Notre Dame de Lourdes sodality and the Children of Mary sodality. The meeting will be presded over by Rev. Fr. Watelle, O. M. I., who will tell the women what is expected from their societies. It is probable that the latter will also make arrangements for floats for the parade.

PLOT AGAINST GOVERNMENT

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of Salvador, July 1.—An alleged plot against the goverament has been discovered here. TO RECOGNIZE DOCKMEN'S UNION

LIVERPOOL, July 1.—It was officially announced this evening that the Cunard, the White Star and other "combine" lines and the Harrison line had agreed to recognize the dockmen's union and attend a conference within a month for the settlement of the question of wages and the conditions of employment.

CO. K ENTERTAINED

But They Did Some Road Work First

The members of Company K, Sixth regiment, combined business with pleasure last evening when they hiked out to Billerica Centre, as if they were going to war and wound up at the hospitable residence of First Sergeant Harry Sheldon where they were used like coronation idols, otherwise called kings. On the way out the company got in a little campaign work such as advance guard, patrol work and other stunts in the tactics that are all Greek to a layman. On arrival at Sergeant Sheldon's home, which was prettily decorated in honor of their visit, they discarded all military formality and sat down to a repast. Their celebrated orchestra was on hand and a number of delightful musical numbers were given. There were songs and stories and a general good time until the last car when the militiamen forget their fondness for hiking and rode back to Lowell.

CAPT. JAMES N. GREIG,
Of Co. K

strenuous patriotic work ordinarily without going out of their way on the glorious holiday. They left town this afternoon for the sequestered precincts of delightful Lake Winnipesaukee, whence the lordly Merrimack river gets its start in life. Their canoes they sent ahead of them by freight and after a few days at the lake they intend to paddle back all the way to Lowell following the river from its source to the Pawtucket Falls.

EX-MAYOR BERRY

DIED SUDDENLY AT WOLFBORO, N. H., TODAY

WOLFBORO, N. H., July 1.—Announcement was made today of the sudden death last night of Charles P. Berry, a former mayor of Portsmouth, N. H., and before that time a shoe manufacturer at Lynn, Mass. Mr. Berry, who was 69 years old, dropped dead in the stable at his summer home in this town. Heart disease was the cause of death.

After leaving Lynn, more than 20 years ago, Mr. Berry went to Portsmouth, where he engaged in shoe manufacturing and in 1893 and 1894 was mayor of the city. He is survived by a widow and a son.

ANNUAL OUTING

OF THE GORHAM STREET METHODIST CHURCH

Four car loads of parishioners of the Gorham street Methodist church and friends left the corner of Gorham and Ellsworth streets at 2 o'clock this afternoon and went to Milligan's grove where an outing was enjoyed. Many people who were unable to take the special cars left on the regular cars later in the afternoon.

Arriving on the grounds a fine program of sports was carried out and the affair proved to be a success in every particular. The Rev. Mr. Matthews was present and had general charge of the outing.

Mrs. Tellit Wright—Thank goodness, I was out.

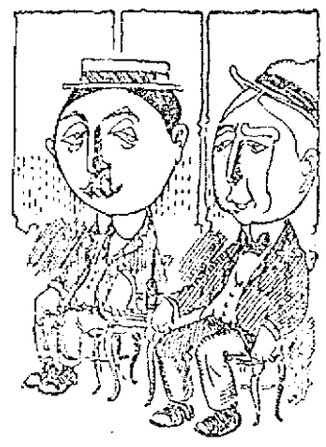

New Maid—That's just what she said, ma'am.

"What is a soldier of fortune, pa?"

"A soldier of fortune is a vagabond who fights for anybody who asks him, and then puts up an awful scream for help from his own country when he gets into trouble."

EQUIPMENT.

"I'm going abroad. What ought I to have on the boat?"

"A motor car, a letter of credit, a thoroughbred dog, a bridge set, a sound stomach and patience."

THEN HE DID.

"May I kiss you before I go?"

"Well, you can't very well kiss me after you go."

TURN ABOUT.

Clerk—Can I get off to go to the ball game?

Boss—You cannot. Furthermore, you will have to work tonight. The office is scheduled for a double-header.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

DOMINION DAY

JULY 1.—Today is a holiday in Canada because it is "Dominion Day." That is sufficient excuse for the native to "swell with pride" for the simple reason that with the growth of the country and the flirting that has taken place over "Reciprocity," little Miss Canada is feeling like the young lady with her first long dress. Preceding 1867 "Canada" was the region from Labrador to the watershed west of Lake Superior. Its neighbors were Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and that vast western territory known as the Hudson Bay company. Each section had its own ideas, laws and religion and it took some fine figuring to work out a plan that would weld and hold all together under one form of government. But it was finally accomplished, and on July 1, 1867 the "British North American act," was O. K.'d by the British parliament and the Dominion of Canada was launched with Sir John A. Macdonald at the teller of the ship of state. Oddly enough the plan adopted was first suggested by our old friend Ben Franklin.

EXCUSE ME!

BOARD OF TRADE KICKS

And Gets Assurance of an 8.59 Train Daily

Lowell will have a train to Boston at 8.59 every morning, for which the gods and the board of trade be praised.

The new train schedule recently in vogue caused the greatest kind of a complaint through the city and with the reputation that the board of trade has earned in the past year or more for doing things the complaints were sent in to the board, and that body appointed Secretary Murphy who is fast acquiring a reputation as a "fixer," to confer with the Boston and Maine officials relative to the matter.

Secretary Murphy did a little investigating before proceeding to the front and found that in five days since the new train started was 17 mins. late on the first day; three minutes, the second; nine minutes the third; three minutes the fourth and on time the fifth. But the train is made up at Plymouth, N. H., and by the time it gets to Lowell it is crowded to overflowing and is hot and dirty. He also found that the 8.48 train from Lowell is generally patronized from regular patrons who ride on monthly tickets and hence do not pay the company as much as transients which might have had something to do with the discontinuance of it.

Yesterday Secretary Murphy had a conference in Boston with C. M. Burt, general passenger agent; General Superintendent C. E. Lee, and Mr. Ferguson, private secretary to General Manager Barr, at which the matter was discussed at length.

The outcome of the conference was an important concession on the part of the Boston and Maine to the effect that if the Plymouth train is more than 10 minutes late on any morning a special will be made up to run express to Lowell, leaving the station at 8.59 and if the Plymouth train is less than 10 minutes late the Lowell public will be asked to wait for the regular. Thus Lowell people will not have more than 10 minutes to wait for the 8.59 train.

But Secretary Murphy was not quite satisfied with this concession inasmuch as Mr. Barr, the general manager, was not present personally and hence upon his return to his office he addressed the following letter to the general manager:

Lowell, Mass., June 30, 1911.

Frank Barr, Third Vice President and General Manager, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir—Many complaints have been received in regard to the discontinuance of the 8.48 train to Boston. The train was patronized by people who went to Boston every day, and the arrival in Boston was in season to accommodate business men and men obliged to go to court and the stock exchange.

At present the train leaving Lowell at 8.59, coming from the north, is usually late and crowded. The new schedule provides no accommodation between the hours of eight and nine, and if the 8.59 train is late there is no express train from 7.58 to 9.45.

The inconvenience to Lowell people is of such a nature as to cause many vigorous protests and complaints, and the matter is presented for your consideration, with the hope that you can effect a solution to the existing conditions.

Respectfully yours,
Lowell Board of Trade.
John H. Murphy, Secretary.

Mr. Murphy expects a reply within a few days.

SEATS AT FIREWORKS

Inspector Dow May Have to Hire Chairs

James Dow, inspector of buildings, is looking for chairs to accommodate the city council members while the fireworks are in session on the South common Tuesday night. It would be an easy matter for Mr. Dow to get the chairs if the old scheme of borrowing them from the school department was still in vogue, but that very neighborly practice has been done away with and the school committee refuses to allow their chairs to be taken from the schools.

It looks as if Mr. Dow would have to hire chairs for the occasion at about ten cents per copy and then there will be a scrap over the question as to whose appropriation should be touched for the seats. Of course the chairs will have to be provided. It would be a measly shame to oblige these noble statesmen to stand while rockets were making holes in the atmosphere above their heads. The public can stand if it wants to but the men who are reducing the tax rate every year must have seats. The police, however, will take the precaution to rope the enclosure where the city government members are seated and the members are requested to enter at a point opposite the jail, at the corner of Thorndike and Highland streets. No tickets have been issued.

All of Lowell's playgrounds will be thrown open to boys and girls; big and little, next week. The grounds on the South common, of course, will not open until Wednesday because of the Fourth of July "doings" there, but the North common and other playgrounds will open on Monday.

The amount of money derived from the sale of lots on the South common this year, it is stated, will be much smaller than in former years. It seems that some who purchased lots last year and the year before failed to do better than pay expenses and some of them didn't do even as well as that. There'll be attractions enough, however, to make the place interesting.

THE LOSS IS $40,000

Lumber Yard District at Burlington, Vt. Threatened by Fire

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 1.—Because there was a dead calm over Lake Champlain early this morning Burlington was saved from a fire disaster. Fire destroyed the Lake Champlain Yacht club house, tenanted by wealthy New York summer people, and would have swept through the big lumber yard district adjoining had there been even a slight breeze stirring.

The yacht club house occupied a private pier. The fire had burned through the roof when discovered and attempts to save the club's costly furnishings were abandoned. Aided by the calm the combined firefighting force of the city confined the blaze to the single structure. The loss is estimated at $40,000. Commodore Wetherbee announced that the club would rebuild immediately in preparation for the annual midsummer regatta of August 11.

AMERICAN AVIATOR

Travelled at Rate of 80 Miles an Hour

EASTCHURCH, England July 1.—In a practice spin over the course of today's competition for the international aviation cup, Charles Weymann, the American, did the circuit at a speed of 80 miles an hour.

The present event requires 25 trips around a circular course, making a total distance of 93.2 miles. The contest is on the Royal Aero Club's grounds on the isle of Sheppey, a course regarded as dangerous. One hundred members of the Royal engineers of Chatham patrolled the grounds.

Three nations—America, France and Great Britain—were represented. The solo American competitor was Weymann. France sent Edouard Nieuport and M. Chevalier; while Great Britain has three, Alec Ogilvie, Gustav Hamel and D. Grahame-Gilmour.

Grahame-White pleaded engagements as an excuse for not defending his title, won at Belmont Park, L. I., last year.

Hamel was the first to get away. He started in a strong wind and had not completed the first lap when his machine pitched violently and the aviator was thrown out, falling 50 feet. The airman was not much hurt. It was found that Hamel's mishap was due to his attempt at a too short a turn which caused his machine to overturn. The aeroplane was badly smashed. Hamel's face was cut and he received a few body bruises.

Soon after this accident Chevalier started. He negotiated several laps at tremendous speed but in the 12th lap, while turning, he got into difficulties and fell with his machine to the ground. The aviator was not hurt.

Weymann completed the full course of 93.2 miles in one hour and 11 minutes. It is almost certain that the American will be the winner of the cup.

JOSEPH NADEAU

FORMER ASSISTANT BANDMASTER GUEST OF HIS SISTER

Mr. Joseph Alphonse Nadeau, formerly assistant bandmaster aboard the U. S. North Dakota, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Lucien Daigle, of Lakeview avenue. Mr. Nadeau has severed his connection with the U. S. Marine corps after serving Uncle Sam for the past eight years. He received an honorable discharge a week ago yesterday, and he intends settling in this city.

Mr. Nadeau while in the service has visited about every country in the world and when he speaks about his different trips he is very interesting. In 1907 when the U. S. cruise made the trip around the world Mr. Nadeau was aboard the Missouri. The young man in the course of his voyages has learned several languages and has also made a very nice collection of antiques.

Heirs' Sale of Building Lots
AT PUBLIC AUCTION
Saturday, July 8th, 1911, at 2.30 o'clock P. M.

I will sell at absolute auction sale to the highest bidders, 10 exceedingly choice lots. They are situated on Bedford avenue, Lexington avenue, Melrose avenue, Shirley avenue, and Townsend avenue, and are all facing directly on the State boulevard. The lots vary in size, containing from 16,174 feet to 24,000 square feet of land, and will be sold in lots to suit purchasers. They have a large frontage on the boulevard and a proportionate depth, which makes them most attractive for the erection of a home and give an opportunity for a large garden. The location is excellent, within eight minutes' walk of the Varnum avenue line of electric cars, and on the Pawtucket boulevard, the most traveled street in the city, it being the direct line to Tyngsboro, Nashua and all points north. The lots are level and the soil is the very best that lies out doors. The avenues are 40 feet wide and are accepted by the city. This sale presents an excellent chance for anyone desirous of purchasing a building site in a first class locality where the surroundings are of the very best and the lots, inasmuch as they are of good size, containing from a quarter to half an acre of land, affords a splendid chance for anyone to raise all their own garden truck. When out for a walk or drive, go up the state boulevard, just above Dunbar avenue, and look these lots over as they will be sold on the day and hour advertised to whomsoever will bid the most for them.

Terms: $50 must be paid to the auctioneer on each lot as soon as struck off.

CLARENCE G. COBURN, For the Heirs.
